$30,000,000 Highway to Start Near Troy, Ill.—Outlay Voted by Senate - House Conferees.

A new $30,000,000 highway will be built from near Troy, Ill., to Veterans Memorial Bridge in East St. Louis with funds earmarked for Illinois under a federal highway program approved by a joint House-Senate conference committee, it was announced today.

Illinois is scheduled to receive a total of $144,000,000 in federal funds under provisions of the federal program approved thus far.

Missouri's share of the funds, if the compromise agreement is approved by Congress as expected, will be $133,400,000, but projects to be constructed have not been selected by the state highway commission.

United States Highway 40 now traverses the 20 miles between Troy, Ill. in Madison county, and East St. Louis. Under the proposed program, United States Highway 66 will join United States 40 near Troy, and the new highway will be constructed into East St. Louis.

Work on the new East Side highway will begin promptly as soon as the federal funds are approved, Illinois officials said. Immediate work calls for expenditures totaling $10,000,000.

Other affected routes. Routes in the St. Louis area designated as "interstate highways," which would make them eligible for improvements under the $133,400,000 tentatively allotted for Missouri, include U.S. 66, U.S. 40 and U.S. 61 (south). The proposed outer belt highway around the city also could be included.

In all, Missouri has 1200 miles of so-called "interstate highways," which would come under a program in which the Federal Government provides 90 per cent of the funds for improvements and the state 10 per cent.

Missouri highway engineers are meeting in Jefferson City to plan next year's work program, which will take into consideration the funds expected to be allotted to the state by Congress. This program will be submitted to the State Highway Commission early next month for approval.

In Illinois, other highway projects announced by Gov. William G. Stratton as part of the federal road program include: A 47-mile section from Cairo to Illinois Route 13, east of Herrin, at a cost of $28,000,000, and a 10-mile relocation of U.S. 50, including a by-pass at Lawrenceville and running east to Indiana, $10,000,000.

Projects also include a by-pass of Champlain and Urbana and relocation of Route 150 to Danville, costing $29,000,000; a 10-mile section of Route 150 extending from Peoria to east of Morton, $28,000,000; a 22-mile section from north of Ottawa to Route 23 to southwest of Joliet, $10,000,000.

Missouri Allotment. For the three fiscal years beginning July 1, according to the congressional compromise, Missouri will receive progressively $31,800,000, $47,000,000 and $54,200,000 for interstate highway construction. The current annual federal allocation for interstate highways in Missouri is $4,700,000.

The compromise on the highway bill provides that during the next three years the Secretary of Commerce shall make studies and prepare "realistic" estimates as the basis for additional federal aid.

DOWNTOWN, INC., SAVINGS BRANCH

GARAGE BILLS OF $3000 CASH

Head of Business Men's Group Says Majority Favors City-Owned Projects.

A majority of the members of Downtown, Inc., an organization of more than 200 merchants and business firms in the central downtown area, favor bills pending in the Board of Aldermen which would authorize condemnation of property for construction of two municipal parking garages, John J. Fritsch, acting president of the organization, said today.

"We feel there is a definite need for additional parking space in the downtown area—convenient parking space," he said. "There is a big difference between parking space from which you have to walk six or 10 blocks to your destination and convenient parking space."

"We believe construction of the two garages proposed by the city administration would be a terrific addition to the downtown area."

A delegation of members of Downtown, Inc., will attend a public hearing on the garages before the aldermanic zoning committee Friday at City Hall to speak in favor of the pending measures, Fritsch said. He is a partner in Wirtz's, a clothing store, 530 Olive street.

Blaine Introduces Bills. Alderman Archie Blaine, Sixth Ward Democrat, who introduced the two bills after it became known that Mayor Raymond R. Tucker planned to introduce them under little-used authority granted him in the city charter, said he did so with reservations. He said he was not sure if the municipal garages would be in the best interests of small business firms.

One of the bills would provide for condemnation of land in the block bounded by Chestnut, Pine and Sixth streets and Broadway, where it is proposed to erect a five-story garage with a capacity of 823 automobiles at an estimated cost of $2,700,000.

The other would authorize condemnation of all land except the southeast corner in the block bounded by Delmar boulevard, Lucas avenue, Eighth and Ninth streets. The structure proposed for this site would accommodate 642 machines and its estimated cost would be $1,830,000.

A third bill on which the aldermanic committee has scheduled a hearing for June 29, would authorize condemnation of land west of Broadway between Bittner street and Baden avenue where it is proposed to establish a municipal parking lot to accommodate 105 automobiles. Estimated cost of this project would be $75,000.

Ex-Haberdasher Truman Shows Londoner the Way to Sell Ties

LONDON, June 19 (AP)—Harry Truman, a former haberdasher, showed a striped-pants British clothing salesman today how to sell ties.

"Look, friend," said Truman, "here's the way you do it." William Lewis, clerk in a men's clothing store near Truman's hotel, was surprised when he recognized the customer across his counter as the former President.

"You twist it over the fingers of this hand with the fingers of this hand," explained Truman, picking up some neckwear. "See, now you're showing a tie just like it looks on a neck. You can sell more of them this way."

DEBT CEILING

HOUSE GROUP OFFER THIS WEEK

3 Billion Under Temporary Limit—Humphrey Approves Figure and Opposes Any Cut in Taxes.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (UP)—The House Ways and Means Committee today unanimously approved legislation fixing a legal ceiling of 278 billion dollars on the federal debt for the new fiscal year starting July 1. The new ceiling is three billion dollars higher than the present permanent debt limit, but three billion dollars lower than the "temporary" ceiling which has been in force since August 1954.

The temporary ceiling was due to expire June 30. Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey gave the Administration's endorsement to the 278 billion figure in testimony before the committee immediately preceding its vote.

Opposes Tax Cut. Humphrey also repeated the Administration's opposition to any tax relief this year. He said present budget estimates leave a "tight fit" for tax cuts and any federal surplus should be applied to reduction of the debt.

Humphrey told the committee that the United States economy does not presently need the stimulus that a tax cut would provide.

"I feel very sure there is nothing in the situation affecting the economy to justify a tax cut at this time," he said.

Humphrey said the Government will have a "tight fit" in operating under the new debt ceiling, but he said he believed it can be done.

If taxes were cut this year, he warned the committee, the Administration might have to come to Congress "immediately" for legislation to increase the debt ceiling.

Predicts Surplus. Humphrey repeated his forecast of a month ago that the Treasury hopes to show a budget surplus of about $1,800,000,000 for the 1956 fiscal year which ends a week from Saturday. He told the committee that "it will take careful management" to operate under a 278 billion dollar ceiling on the debt during the next fiscal year.

"If this becomes impossible," he added, "we shall advise the Congress promptly."

He noted that the Administration has been able to keep within the 281-billion-dollar limit during the last year by only "a narrow margin."

"On several days, we were within $700,000,000 of the debt ceiling and, at times, our operating cash balance was less than enough to cover 10 days' expenditures," Humphrey said. "This is closer than is prudent in handling the Government's huge operations efficiently."

He predicted that the national debt would stand at less than 273 billion dollars at the close of the fiscal year June 30. However, he noted that the debt will rise seasonally during July-December, a period when tax collections generally run behind Government spending.

LOTTERY BONDS
BRITAIN NOV. 1

LONDON, June 19 (AP)—Britain announced last night its new lottery bonds will go on sale Nov. 1 despite opposition from the Church of England.

The bonds offer chances at prizes as high as 1000 pounds ($2800) for one pound ($280) invested.

The lottery plan was designed to bolster bond sales in a drive to beat inflation and has aroused opposition from Church of England clergymen led by the Archbishop of Canterbury. They have decried it as Government-sponsored gambling.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Harold Macmillan told the House he knew church leaders had opposed the bonds but he insisted there was a difference of opinion among theologians.

"I do not see families broken up, children in rags, wives deserted or the horrors of the rack's progress falling upon a man's family for the sole reason that he has invested too deeply in premium bonds," Macmillan said.

MOTORIST FAILS TO NOTICE
AS HIS TRAILER BURNS UP

DALLAS, June 19 (AP)—E. S. Lunsford, Roswell (Ga.) agriculture teacher en route to an educators' convention in Portland, Ore., drove through rush-hour traffic here yesterday with the trailer his car was pulling ablaze.

"Flames were blazing up 10 feet in the air," said Deputy Sheriff O. G. Smith. "Cars honked at him. Lots of drivers waved and pointed. I saw everyone he met pulled off onto the shoulder to let him by, but he never noticed anything was wrong."

When Smith stopped the tractor, the intense heat had already melted the car's tail lights.

"My goodness," Lunsford said.

MANY LAFAYETTE
LETTERS FOUND IN OLD CASTLE

The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times.)

PARIS, June 19—Thousands of letters, papers and other possessions of the Marquis de Lafayette have been brought to light after almost a century.

The collection, whose pages recount one of the most troubled epochs in modern history, was discovered last fall in a fifteenth century castle, 30 miles east of Paris, where Lafayette made his home.

In October the castle, called La Grange, came into the possession of Count Rene de Chambrun, well-known international lawyer and a direct descendant of Lafayette. Since then he and his wife, in weekly trips to the castle, have gone from discovery to discovery, and the end is not in sight.

The mass of material and the necessity for careful sorting and classification have so far precluded any precise evaluation from a scholarly point of view.

De Chambrun said it would take several years to examine all the files. However, he added, "because of the long period covered (War of American Independence, French Revolution, Napoleonic era, the Restoration and the Revolution of 1830) many of these documents will prove, I am sure, to be of historical importance."

UPDRAFT BLOWS
GLIDER 19,200
FEET IN AIR

DETROIT, June 19 (UP)—Ray Jackson admitted today that he didn't have much choice in the matter when he bettered the Michigan glider altitude record by nearly two miles Sunday.

Jackson, of Dearborn, Mich., soared to 19,200 feet when a thermal updraft caught his light ship after it was released by a tow plane at 2500 feet.

He said at times he rose nearly 4000 feet a minute before his ship finally nosed down at speeds of up to 180 miles an hour.

He finally managed to regain control of the glider and guide it back to his take-off field.

BABIES APPARENTLY STARVE
WHILE WOMAN IS IN CUSTODY

NEW YORK, June 19—A City Welfare Department worker on a routine call yesterday found the bodies of two babies who apparently had starved to death after their mother had been taken to a psychiatric ward eight days ago.

Police tentatively identified the children as Josephine Velez, 21 months old, and her brother, Antonio, eight months.

Police said the mother, Mrs. Anastasia Rios Velez, was incoherent when she was picked up and neither the police nor hospital authorities knew that she had been on relief. Mrs. Velez, questioned at Bellevue last night, said she had left the children in the care of a woman neighbor whose name was withheld. Police said the neighbor denied Mrs. Velez's story.

WINDS FROM NUCLEAR TESTS CREDITED FOR AIR RECORDS

Australian Airlines Set New Marks for Regular Flights.

SYDNEY, Australia, June 19 (UP)—Australian airline pilots today reported "freak winds" from the recent American and British nuclear tests in the Pacific.

The pilots, who refused to be identified, said winds in the stratosphere reached up to 200 miles an hour and accounted for a number of speed records made by planes during the last few days.

One airliner covered the 634-mile Adelaide-Sydney flight in one hour and 52 minutes as compared to the usual two hours and 45 minute hop.

A Direct Answer. Today's statement of the physicians was aimed directly at a series of comments by medical authorities that there is a good chance that the President will suffer more attacks of the intestinal inflammation which prompted his sudden operation.

The statement, issued by Hagerty, said:

"The President's doctors have no intention of engaging in controversy with other doctors who have no personal knowledge of this case. Each case is a law unto itself and cannot be answered in terms of generalities. Every thoughtful physician realizes that there are biological variations in all disease processes."

Asked if the President was "aware" of a controversy on some aspects of his illness, Hagerty replied: "He's read the newspapers." Asked if Mr. Eisenhower had made any comment, Hagerty said, "No."

BLUNTLY REJECT
ILEITIS ATTACK

Won't Argue With Those 'Who Have No Knowledge of Case'—President May Quit Hospital Next Week.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (UP)—President Eisenhower's doctors today reaffirmed their verdict that he is physically able to run for re-election despite his recent operation.

They bluntly rejected suggestions of some medical authorities that Mr. Eisenhower stands a good chance of getting another attack of the intestinal inflammation, or ileitis, which sent him to Walter Reed Hospital for emergency surgery.

Dr. Isidor Ravdin, professor of surgery at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School who helped perform the June 9 operation on the President, told reporters he had never seen a recurrence of ileitis, in a patient the age of the President. Mr. Eisenhower is 65 years old.

The President's physicians discussed the case with reporters after issuing a terse, blunt statement declaring they have "no intention" of getting into a "controversy" with other medical authorities on the chances of Mr. Eisenhower's having another attack of ileitis.

Doctors Questioned. "After the formal statement was issued through White House press secretary James C. Hagerty, reporters got a rare chance to talk directly to three of the chief attending physicians as they walked across the hospital grounds."

Newsman asked the doctors if they still are satisfied that Mr. Eisenhower is physically fit for another White House term.

Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, the President's personal physician, turned to Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, who performed the operation, and said: "This fellow answered that for you," he said, patting Heaton on the shoulder.

Heaton remained silent. It was Heaton who told newsmen after the operation that the surgery had successfully relieved an intestinal block and that he didn't see any medical reason why the President should not run for another term.

Snyder quickly emphasized that politics had nothing to do with their opinion—"We can't recognize a Democrat from a Republican." He added that he had not "heard anyone" discuss politics with the President.

May Leave Next Week. Snyder said the President might leave the hospital by the "middle of next week." But he said it "probably will be longer, certainly not shorter" than that. The doctors previously had said he would be hospitalized about 15 days, which would have meant he would leave by next Monday.

Speaking of the President's appearance and condition, Snyder said, "he's looking pretty sharp these days."

In response to another question, Snyder said he believed it would be better for the President to convalesce at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm than at the White House.

The President, he said, should be able to get in more walking and have more recreational interests at the farm during this stage of his recovery.

SHEPILOV SAID TO HAVE OFFERED TO LEND EGYPT BILLION FOR DAM

Premier Won't Accept Red Proposal for Aswan Project 'at Present,' Cairo Source Reports.

CAIRO, June 19 (AP) — A source close to Premier Nasser said today the Soviet Union has offered to lend Egypt $2,400,000,000 ($1,200,000,000) to finance almost entirely the Aswan high dam.

The source said Nasser would not accept the offer "at present," pending a careful study of all angles.

The loan offer was reported made by Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov during talks over the weekend. Shepilov is here to attend Egypt's three-day celebration of British evacuation of the Suez Canal zone and Egyptian National day.

U.S. British Offer

Britain and the United States have offered to give Egypt $700,000,000 to get the big dam on the Upper Nile started, and later to lend $800,000,000 to $1,300,000,000 as work progresses. Tied in with this Western offer is the promise of a World Bank loan of $200,000,000 to $250,000,000, while Egypt would provide $760,000,000 worth of labor and local material.

Nasser has neither accepted nor rejected the Western offer. Russia previously had offered to lend the entire $400,000,000 Egypt must have from foreign sources.

The dam which will create the world's largest reservoir, will add 1,300,000 acres to Egypt's farm lands and will irrigate 700,000 more acres the year round instead of only seasonally. Nasser plans a vast industrial expansion with power the dam will produce.

Natural Ally

Shepilov told Egyptians yesterday that his Government was their reliable friend and that Soviet efforts to improve relations with the West will not be at the expense of good relations with Arab countries.

"Shepilov pictured the Soviet Union as the natural ally of independent and newly independent peoples and declared his government looks for no sources of enrichment abroad."

Only Shepilov's silence on their conflict with Israel disappointed Egyptians in his first major policy speech since he succeeded V. M. Molotov June 1.

The Red foreign minister is on the first stop of a swing around the eastern Mediterranean.

Tomorrow he will see the largest military display in modern Egyptian history. Much of the equipment to be paraded came from Communist-bloc countries in a barter deal arranged by Shepilov last year. Two warships, the Nasser and the Victorious, identified by Egyptian officials as "heavy Russian destroyers," paraded under Egyptian colors in Alexandria harbor yesterday.

Bulgarian Attends Reception at Egyptian Embassy

MOSCOW, June 19 (AP) — Soviet Premier Bulganin attended the reception at the Egyptian embassy last night marking Egypt's National day, but Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev did not appear. Bulganin was accompanied by former Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, Deputy Premier A. I. Mikoyan and former Premier Georgi Malenkov.

Bulganin offered a toast to the prosperity and happiness of the Egyptian republic and in a chat with newsmen, he said: "Our friendship with Egypt is so close that even our weather now approaches it." Moscow is having a heat wave.

Indonesia Reported Ready to Accept Aid From Moscow

JAKARTA, June 19 (AP) — Indonesia today was reported ready to accept extensive Russian aid.

An authoritative source said the Soviet Union had offered: 1. Technical assistance "identical with that Indonesia is at present receiving from the United States and the Colombo Plan."

2. Five to six-year credits for the purchase of machinery and equipment needed for Indonesia's five-year industrialization program.

3. Separate trade and payment agreements to promote mutual trade. The source said Premier Ali Sastroamidjojo's government was expected to say "yes" to the Soviets "since the Russians made clear there were no strings attached."

CBS TV STATIONS OPPOSE FCC CONTROL OF NETWORKS

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — Operators of stations affiliated with the Columbia Broadcasting System television network contended yesterday that tampering with present station-network relationships would be most dangerous.

Testifying before a Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee, they spoke against legislation that would put the network under regulation of the Federal Communications Commission.

John S. Hayes, president of the Washington Post broadcast division and chairman of a special committee of CBS TV affiliates, said current affiliate-network relationships "are operating to the advantage of the public."

'Influence' in Nicaro Project Charged in Democrats' Report

Political and Private Activities Alleged—'Blanket Rejection' by Republicans on Committee.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — Democratic House investigators today alleged "political and private influence" in a $43,000,000 Government nickel plant expansion project.

Republicans on the Government Operations Committee issued a "blanket rejection" of the charges. They accused the committee's Democratic majority of "an amazing suppression of evidence."

The charges and denials were contained in a split report on a subcommittee inquiry early this year into contracts awarded in connection with expansion of a big nickel producing plant at Nicaro, Cuba.

Subcommittee Chairman Jack Brooks (Dem., Texas), accused the Justice Department of keeping secret some microfilm records of private files "which might well point toward further irregularities in the expansion program."

The Justice Department has said it is holding on to its files as it conducts its own study of the matter.

More Hearings Urged. The three Republicans on the eight-man subcommittee demanded further hearings before any such "sweeping conclusions" as those in the report could be drawn. They spoke of "scanty evidence" and said the majority's findings "have not been properly substantiated."

The Democratic charges ranged from alleged loss of $6,500,000 worth of nickel output because of delays to "political favoritism." They also contained an implication of perjured testimony concerning what was termed a "lush brokerage fee" for a Chicago insurance agency headed by Republican friends of Edmund F. Mansure, then head of the General Services Administration. That agency had charge of the nickel project.

Mansure quit as GSA chief on Feb. 6, while the investigation was in progress. He said he wanted to leave because of "personal obligations," not because of the nickel investigation.

That inquiry dealt with an expansion project begun in 1954 with a construction subcontract held jointly by the Frederick Snare Corp. and Merritt-Chapman & Scott. It provided for $500,000 in fees for each firm.

Insurance Brokers. Also involved was insurance brokerage on the project, two-thirds of which went to the Chicago firm of Balmer & Moore, William J. Balmer and Edward F. Moore, partners in that firm, are Cook county G.O.P. leaders and friends of Mansure.

Despite sworn details by Mansure, Balmer and Moore that Mansure had steered the award to his Chicago friends, the Democratic report said the insurance brokerage was awarded on the basis of political favoritism.

"Inconsistencies in the evidence," the report added, "warrant the conclusion that false testimony was given under oath." It recommended that the Justice Department determine whether it should start perjury prosecution.

The Republicans on the committee said the Democratic findings were based almost entirely on the testimony of only one man—Randall C. Cremer, a former executive vice president of the Snare Corp. and project manager at Nicaro. Cremer said he thought Snare should have had the whole expansion subcontract, instead of just 50 per cent.

The Democrats did not specify who may have played a decisive role in the award, but they asserted that "political and private influence played an active role in the awarding of the construction subcontract." They recommended that "the GSA in the future award Government contracts in such a manner that aspiring awardees will find no advantage in seeking the intervention of the White House or either of the major political parties."

They said Mansure wrote Sherman Adams, President Eisenhower's top assistant, asking for "helpful suggestions" about who should get the contract, and that Mansure also submitted a list of four or five potential contractors to Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall. The replies from Adams and Hall, if any, were not stated. During the hearings, Mansure said Hall "took no part whatever in the selection of these contracts."

The Democrats said the Snare Corp. asked presidential secretary Bernard M. Shanley to contact Hall on its behalf, while others they said were identified with what were called "rather complex and intriguing negotiations" included Attorney General Brownell and former Secretary of the Air Force Talbot.

There was no indication, however, that any of these officials took a hand in the contract matter.

Other Findings.

The Democrats also found that: 1. "Unnecessary delay in awarding the construction contract cost the United States Government at least 10,000,000 pounds of critically needed nickel of a market value of about $6,500,000."

2. "... Frederick Snare Corp. was the only American contractor considered which was qualified to undertake the construction for the expansion project."

3. "The contribution by Merritt-Chapman & Scott to the construction joint venture has been of such insignificance that they decidedly are not earning a $500,000 fee."

$700,000,000 AID HIKE VOTED BY SENATE UNIT

$4,457,575. Authorized but Bill Is Expected to Run Into Trouble on Floor.

By WILLIAM S. WHITE
The New York Times News Service, (Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, June 19 — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee recommended yesterday a $4,457,575,000 authorization to carry forward and expand the foreign aid, or mutual security program.

The Eisenhower Administration thus won an important preliminary victory. The allocation met the minimum request of the President and was some $700,000,000 larger than had been allowed by the House of Representatives.

Great trouble still lay ahead for the bill in the Senate, where important sentiment was turning toward an increase in the purely domestic defenses of the United States and a decrease in foreign aid.

The Foreign Relations Committee had sought to abate this movement by stipulating $1,600,000,000 of the mutual security bill total must go for arms for the forces of the United States. These weapons would replace arms of equivalent value sent to this country's allies.

The Foreign Relations Committee's vote to allow the President the $4,457,575,000 that he had regarded as irreducibly necessary was 13 to 2. Those opposing the bill were Senators William Langer (Rep., North Dakota), and Russell Long (Dem., Louisiana).

Those in its support were: Democrats—Senators Walter F. George of Georgia, Theodore Francis Green of Rhode Island, J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, John J. Sparkman of Alabama, Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, Mike Mansfield of Montana and Wayne Morse of Oregon.

Republicans—Senators Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin, H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey, Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, William F. Knowland of California, George D. Aiken of Vermont and Homer E. Capehart of Indiana.

The President originally had asked for the fiscal year opening July 1, an authorization of $4,900,000,000 plus the reaffirmed authorizations of $187,500,000 or a total of $5,087,500,000.

The House had cut this to $3,800,000,000.

New Authorizations. The Senate Committee specifically voted new authorizations of $4,270,075,000 plus the reaffirmed authorizations of $187,500,000 or a total of $4,457,575,000.

The President had accepted such a figure as a tolerable one, though he would have much preferred the full original $4,900,000,000.

The Senate bill would provide $2,525,000,000 for military assistance and the rest for various forms of economic assistance.

In bringing out the bill, the Foreign Relations Committee approved a resolution requesting $300,000 for a study by that committee of the whole foreign aid program.

$125,000 BRIBE OFFER DISCLOSED BY GOV. FAUBUS

Arkansas Chief Executive Says It Was in Connection With Racing Franchise.

OLA, Ark., June 19 (AP)—Gov. Orval Faubus says he turned down a bribe of $125,000 during a scramble for a horse racing franchise in Arkansas last year.

The Governor mentioned the bribe in a speech at a barbecue in this small west Arkansas town last night.

Faubus did not reveal the source of the bribe, nor did he make it plain what he was supposed to do for the person who offered him the money.

After the speech, he told a reporter that he was referring to horse racing.

At least three groups publicly sought the license to operate horse races at Hot Springs when the Oaklawn Jockey Club's franchise expired. The three groups which submitted bids were Oaklawn, Eastern Racing Association of Boston and a group headed by used car dealer Milton Tigerman of Kansas City.

Oaklawn received the 10-year franchise on a bid of $25,000. Tigerman's bid was $11,500 and Eastern Racing offered $10,000. The bids were opened before the Arkansas Racing Commission, which consists of Faubus appointees, last Dec. 6.

The awarding of the franchise to Oaklawn ended a legal dispute that lasted for months. Faubus referred to the bribe in a portion of his speech in which he said, "If I wanted to be dishonest I could have received and would not have to run again." The barbecue was sponsored by the Ola Young Business Men's Association.

Faubus could not be reached for comment today. Arnold Sikes, an administrative assistant to the Governor, said that he "had heard" of the bribe, but he said he did not know any of the details.

It was the first hint from the Governor that he had received a bribe offer during the racing dispute. Faubus is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for re-election.

Oaklawn Jockey Club Headed by John G. Cella. Oaklawn Jockey Club, holder of the Hot Springs horse racing franchise, is headed by John G. Cella of St. Louis.

The Arkansas Supreme Court ruled last October that the racing permit, granted in 1954 for 10 years, was invalid because it was issued before the expiration date of the previous permit. The Oaklawn Jockey Club, which has conducted racing at Hot Dulles Rejects Plea to Oust Chief Soviet Delegate to U.N.

Action Already Taken is Sufficient, He Says in Reply to Demand From Senate Group.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—The State Department has rejected a recommendation of Senate investigators that the chief Soviet delegate to the United Nations, Arkady Sobolev, be thrown out of the United States.

This was disclosed today when Senator Eastland (Dem.) of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, made public an exchange of correspondence with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

In a report May 24, the subcommittee charged that Sobolev's staff had "used coercion, force and duress" to bring about the defection of five Russian seamen who had been granted asylum here after their tanker was captured by the Chinese Nationalists.

Dulles said his department felt that action already taken, including the expulsion of two low-rank members of the Soviet U.N. delegation, was sufficient and would insure against the forced repatriation of other refugees from behind the Iron Curtain.

The five seamen left New York suddenly April 7 on a Moscow-bound plane. They were among nine crewmen of the Soviet tanker Tuapse who came to this country last October after their ship was intercepted while carrying jet fuel to Red China. The other four still are here, having rebuffed Soviet efforts to lure them back to their Communist homeland.

In a letter to Dulles May 28, Eastland forwarded the subcommittee's report on its investigation of the episode and recommended that this Government demand the recall of Sobolev and of Konstantin Ekmov, first secretary of the Soviet U.N. delegation.

Dulles's reply was dated June 15, and Eastland replied to it in a letter yesterday calling attention to testimony received June 13 from an anonymous Russian emigre that he had been subjected, within recent weeks, "to the pressure tactics of two members of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations."

Springs since the mid-1930s, successfully bid for a new 10-year franchise.

The hotly-disputed horse racing franchise and one for a new dog track in West Memphis were marked by the ouster last December of the racing commission by Gov. Faubus and appointment of a new commission. Five of the former commissioners regarded as loyal to the Governor were reappointed.

USW BEGINS NEGOTIATIONS WITH 11 STEEL COMPANIES

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—The United Steel Workers followed up a strike authorization vote by starting negotiations today with 11 steel firms individually.

A union on Sunday halted joint talks with the big three—United States Steel, Bethlehem and Republic—on the ground they were getting "nowhere."

Union teams were slated to negotiate today with Pittsburgh Steel, Inland Steel and Youngstown Sheet & Tube. The union expected to have talks with all 11 firms by tomorrow. Union negotiators were empowered to call a nation-wide steel strike unless a contract agreement is reached by June 30, when present contracts expire.

SECOND BLAST IN BRITISH ATOM TESTS SET OFF

Success Claimed With Atomic Device Believed to Be H-Bomb Trigger.

SYDNEY, Australia, June 19 (AP) — Britain exploded an atomic device off Australia's northwest coast today in the second and final blast of its current series of nuclear experiments.

A brief announcement by the British Ministry of Supply said the explosion was successful and all safety precautions were in operation in the remote Monte Bello islands, 12 miles off Australia. It added that scientific records were being collected for evaluation.

The announcement gave no hint as to the nature of the device, but it has been generally accepted that the tests were planned to develop a trigger for Britain's first hydrogen bomb. The British H-bomb, which still is being developed, is to be tested next year in the vicinity of Christmas Island, about 1400 miles south of Hawaii.

The first explosion of the current British series took place May 16. It also was described as an atomic device.

Britain exploded its first atomic bomb in October 1952, in the Monte Bello area. Its second test series was held in 1953 at the Woomera rocket range on the Australian mainland.

Observers at Onslow, a mainland port some 90 miles south of the Monte Bello area, said today's blast provided the biggest spectacle of any explosion set off in the island area and the shock waves were more severe.

According to the observers, the cloud from the blast was something unique. They said it (1) formed into a cone, (2) changed into a double mushroom shape, (3) took the shape of a woman's head with a turned-up nose and bobbed hair as it moved skyward and (4) finally changed into the form of a cauliflower with a neck stretching back to the ground.

PUBLIC HEARING ON DELINQUENCY HERE IS PLANNED BY STATE GROUP

Two Other Cities Also on Itinerary of Joint Committee — Police Oppose Supervised Drag Racing.

Preparations for public hearings in St. Louis and two other Missouri cities for discussion of the juvenile delinquency problem were announced today by a joint legislative committee, meeting at Jefferson City.

Prior to the hearings, to be held here and at Kansas City and Jefferson City next September, a research staff will study the manner in which delinquency is handled in other states. A tentative code will be drawn, for discussion by the committee with juvenile authorities.

Senator George A. Spencer of Columbia, committee chairman, pointed out that provisions for the rehabilitation of young people who get into trouble are contained in two acts, one enacted in 1911 and the other six years later. Although amended several times, the acts need wholesale revision to bring them up to date, Spencer observed.

Drag Races Opposed. Opposition to supervised drag racing in St. Louis was announced by the Police Board yesterday. This is a form of racing in which drivers accelerate as rapidly as possible from a standing start in an agreed distance.

The board said it did not believe young persons should be encouraged "to build, modify or race passenger cars capable of excessively dangerous speeds, well beyond original specifications."

Another reason advanced by the board was that efforts made in behalf of drag racing "might well detract from more sensible and basic efforts to understand and get at the unrest that motivates these reckless youngsters."

I. A. Long, Police Board president, said in a formal statement:

"We are well aware of the claims and arguments of those who propose that supervised drag racing would give a certain element of our youth a chance to work off their speed mania in comparative safety."

"We would not sponsor or encourage supervised drag racing for two main reasons:

"1. We do not believe there should be any encouragement for young people to build, modify or race passenger cars capable of excessively dangerous speeds, well beyond original specifications."

"These hotrods are driven on public streets and highways and would continue to be, even if there were a supervised strip for racing. These souped-up cars are a constant danger and hazard to the public, their drivers and passengers."

"Practice Strips." "We are afraid the public streets and highways would become practice strips for the proposed supervised race strips."

"It is important to keep in mind that these cars are built and modified by youthful challengers and those who expect to be challenged. We would not want to lead them into temptation."

"2. The effort to establish and supervise drag racing might well detract from more sensible and basic efforts to understand and get at the unrest that motivates these reckless youngsters."

"Drag racing, along with rowdiness and terrorism, is a manifestation of a serious social problem."

"To dignify drag racing as a worthwhile and approved form of sportsmanship would not get at the cause or alleviate the effect."

Representatives of 11 hot rod clubs in the area formed a collective association last night to represent all hot rod organizations. Although the higher echelon group does not yet have a name or charter, legal formation proceedings are under way, it was reported.

According to Leroy J. Boettcher, an adult adviser of a St. Louis hot rod club, the

AIR CONDITIONED TEST BUS KEEPS LUCKY FEW COOL

While most bus passengers hung out the windows gasping for gusts of air, a few breezed downtown in cool comfort this morning as Public Service Co.'s experimental air conditioned bus began its second day of test trips.

A five-ton cooling unit mounted on the roof of the bus, which is making one morning and one evening rush hour trip on the Lindell Express line, has kept temperatures 10 to 15 degrees below those outside. It also dehumidifies the air.

Dispositions of both riders and driver appeared less frayed after the bus had ridden into the mouth of the rush hour heat and traffic, it was reported, and furthermore, passengers didn't step on each other with quite the same viciousness in racing for vacant seats.

The experimental vehicle will be rotated on the company's other express lines, as well as on the Red Bird and Municipal Opera Express lines. Future installations of the air-conditioning unit will cost $2500 a bus, it was estimated.

FORMER DE SOTO HOTEL RENAMED HOTEL ALVERNE

The former DeSoto Hotel at Eleventh and Locust streets, converted into a hotel for old people under auspices of the Archdiocese of St. Louis, has been renamed Hotel Alverne, it was announced today by the chancery.

Yesterday it was reported that the name DeSoto Hotel would be taken by the old Majestic Hotel, Eleventh and Pine streets, to which three floors will be added. Bernard H. Tureen, the owner, said his company acquired the good will, as well as the name of the DeSoto. Hotel Alverne will be operated on a non-profit basis by the Franciscan Missionaries of Mary for elderly persons, who will be admitted without regard for creed or religion.

DRIVER KILLED, AUTO HITS FARM WAGON BEING TOWED

Floyd Hill Jr., 115 De Smet drive, Florissant, a painter, died today at St. Louis County Hospital of chest injuries suffered yesterday when his automobile collided with a farm wagon being towed by a pick-up truck on Lindbergh boulevard at Missouri Bottom road.

Hill, southbound in Lindbergh, struck the wagon as Edgar E. Blake, driver of the northbound truck, sought to make a left turn into Missouri Bottom road. Blake, superintendent of Missouri Baptist Children's Home at Pattonville, was uninjured.

Turkish Foreign Minister Quits

ANKARA, June 19 (AP)—Turkey's foreign minister, Fuad Koprulu, resigned today. His resignation was conveyed in a letter to Premier Menderes. Informed sources said the resignation was not connected with Turkey's foreign policies.

Alky Burners, the group was formed to establish a uniform code of safety and control, help organize general hot rod activities and to maintain equal control over members.

Under National Rules. The association, Boettcher said, will abide by National Hot Rod Association rules. The group aims to help eliminate unorganized drag racing.

Elected co-chairmen were George Emerson, East St. Louis Jaycees, and Kenneth Grisson, Belleville Jaycees. Chosen to be adult advisor was Wayne Mertens of the Belleville Gear Jammers.

Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd today said several youths who have been in trouble with authorities will be called before the grand jury next week in a broad investigation into juvenile delinquency. An effort will be made to determine what caused the young men to get into difficulty, Dowd said.

In the course of the inquiry, grand jury witnesses to be called will include juvenile officers, juvenile court authorities, city recreation workers and representatives of various churches and religious groups, the circuit attorney stated.

Priest Hits Lack of Play Areas In Heavily Populated Districts

The Rev. W. C. Poeppering Warns City Faces Rise in Juvenile Crime Because of Poorly-Located Facilities.

"St. Louis faces the risk of a skyrocketing juvenile crime rate in the most crowded districts because of grotesquely bad location of recreational facilities, especially baseball parks," the Rev. William C. Poeppering said today.

Father Poeppering, pastor of Holy Guardian Angels Catholic Church, 1020 St. Ange avenue, since 1951, has been invited to testify in the circuit court grand jury investigation of juvenile delinquency starting Thursday. His parish consists mainly of the Clinton-Peabody housing project.

Citing figures and a map in "Children in Trouble," a recent Police Department publication, Father Poeppering pointed out that the Lynch street police district, in which his parish is located, has a population of 122,000, largest in the city. It ranked fourth in the number of major crimes committed last year.

On the map Father Poeppering had sketched locations of existing and projected baseball playing fields, mostly in Carondelet, Hampton avenue and other lightly populated districts.

Hits Locations. "Two ball parks are going in at Jamieson and Pernod avenues, a $1,000,000 skating rink is planned in Forest Park and the city has just paid $100,000 for land for recreational purposes at Hampton and Fyler avenues," he said.

"They don't need ball parks out there half as badly as we do. Lt. Adolph Jacobsmeier, police juvenile division head, is right, of course, when he says the most important factor in keeping a boy happy and out of trouble is his family and his feeling of being wanted."

"But after that factor comes the outside agency, offering such activity as organized baseball or soccer league team play. Unfortunately, we in the densely crowded parts of the city have a high proportion of split families, with fathers absent because of death or other reasons. Thus the outside agency, making contact through athletics takes on special significance here."

The baseball field nearest to the Clinton-Peabody project, with its 680 families, is in Cherokee Playground, about two miles away, and across main traffic arteries. Father Poeppering pointed out, adding that even these facilities are overcrowded.

"If the kids are thinking about their own ball playing, wondering whether Red Schoendienst should have been traded or whether Stan Musial is in a slump, they aren't planning crimes," the priest said. "You can't think of two things at once."

Potential Leaders. "I've worked with many so-called juvenile delinquents, but I've never met one who wasn't potentially a fine person in himself. The wonder is, not that we have so many children in trouble down here, but that we don't have more."

As Father Poeppering spoke, a group of his boys played ball in the street, with an old mop as home plate and against a background of broken windows in his own church.

He has worked hard to promote sports events in St. Louis. In his earlier pastorates at St. Philip Neri and Our Lady of Sorrows churches, he organized soccer, baseball and basketball programs that are still going strong.

Youths he has worked with have gone on to distinguish themselves with the Kutis soccer team and as basketball captains at St. Louis University and Notre Dame.

Father Poeppering, 51 years old, was reared in North St. Louis. He was graduated as an electrical engineer in 1927 from Purdue University, where he earned letters in baseball and basketball. After a year as an engineer, he decided he wanted to become a priest, studied at Kenrick Seminary and was ordained in 1934. As an Army chaplain in World War II, he was twice decorated for service with combat troops in Europe.

WILLIAM BUDER, J.C. CASEY NAMED CIRCUIT JUDGES

Appointed by Governor to Succeed Retiring Judges Sartorius, Williams.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 19 —William E. Buder and John C. Casey, St. Louis lawyers, were appointed late yesterday by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly as St. Louis Circuit Court judges under the Missouri nonpartisan court plan.

Casey, 45, a Democrat and a trial attorney, succeeds Judge Francis E. Williams, 79, who retired April 21 under state judicial retirement laws. Williams had been an Eighth Judicial Circuit judge since 1940, and retired because of impaired hearing.

Buder, 53, now a Republican member and secretary of the St. Louis Board of Election Commissioners under appointment by the Governor, replaces Judge Eugene J. Sartorius, 72, who retired March 16 because of physical disability. Sartorius was on the bench for 21 years. Buder will resign from the election board.

Two Panels Submitted. The appointments were made by Donnelly from two panels of three nominees each submitted to the Governor by the Eighth Circuit Judicial Commission.

The panel from which Donnelly selected Buder also included James V. Frank, assistant city counselor of St. Louis, and Lackland H. Bloom, trial lawyer and the only Democrat on the panel.

Members of the other panel, in addition to Casey, were Vernon W. Meyer, in charge of the St. Louis office of the State Division of Workmen's Compensation, and Edward W. Frederickson, engaged in general law practice. All three nominees are Democrats.

Buder, who lives at 4568 Tower Grove place, is a graduate of Washington University Law School and formerly was president of the St. Louis Bar Association. He has been engaged in the general practice of law since 1924. The Governor did not indicate who would be appointed to succeed Buder as a member of the Board of Election Commissioners.

On Bar Committees. Casey, 6635 Neosho street, is a graduate of Christian Brothers College and St. Louis University, and was admitted to the bar in 1933. He has engaged in the general practice of law for 22 years and has served on various committees of the Missouri bar and St. Louis Bar Association. He was appointed in 1932 as a member of the board of freeholders for the Metropolitan Sewer District.

The two appointments yesterday bring the total nonpartisan court plan selections to 40 since the court plan amendment to the Constitution was adopted in 1940. Voters of the state rejected a repeal proposal in 1942.

The 40 appointments include 26 Democrats and 14 Republicans. Donnelly, in his first term as Governor, 1945-1948, made five appointments, all Democrats, under the court plan. So far in his second term he has appointed 15 judges, seven Republicans and eight Democrats, for a two-term total of seven Republicans and 13 Democrats.

3 ST. LOUISANS INJURED WHEN PLANE HITS TREES

Three St. Louisans were injured yesterday when a private airplane in which they were returning here from a fishing trip struck some trees as it was taking off from Gainesville (Mo.) airport, 275 miles southwest of St. Louis.

Everett Weast, 6261 Clemens avenue, owner and pilot of the plane, suffered a broken wrist, chest injuries, a sprained ankle and shock. Harold D. Cortor, 6041 Waterman boulevard, suffered chest and jaw injuries and lacerations. The other passenger, William Burt, 4339 Olive street, escaped with lacerations and a back injury.

The men, all taxicab drivers, were returning from a weekend fishing trip at Bull Shoals. Weast, has been a pilot for two years. The plane struck some treetops just as it had cleared the runway.

Weast and Cortor were brought to Normandy Osteopathic Hospital, 7840 Natural Bridge road, and Burt was taken to the home of a brother at St. Clair, Mo. Weast, who said the accident was probably due to a down draft in the intense heat, was in a similar crash in another plane on a farm near Gainesville last summer.

BOARD TO HEAR OFFICERS NAMED IN PAY-OFF CASE

Police Commissioners Summon 21 After Receiving Reports Written by Them.

Twenty-one St. Louis policemen who were named in the investigation of charges that pay-offs were made to some officers by prostitutes will be summoned before the Police Board next Monday and asked to make statements, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

Detailed reports, written by the 21 officers at the request of the inspector's office were submitted to the board at its meeting yesterday by Inspector James F. Thompson. It was pointed out that no definite accusations have been made against most of the 21, but they were required to file reports because their names were mentioned by witnesses in the investigation.

Thompson was directed to prepare departmental charges against three officers awaiting trial in circuit court for allegedly accepting bribes. Board President I. A. Long said the three, Detective Capt. William Greenspan, Lt. F. Lyman Davis and Cpl. George R. Wood, will be charged with violation of the police manual.

Action against the officers will be delayed, however, until disposition of the criminal cases, Long added. The three are under suspension and can be fired by the board following a hearing.

The present circuit court grand jury, sworn in earlier this month, was urged by the previous grand jury to insist that the police commissioners make a final and complete report of the departmental investigation so that officers who have been under suspicion will either be punished or absolved.

Thompson was assigned by the police board last year to assist Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd in his investigation of the pay-off charges. Later, Thompson began carrying out the police department's own inquiry into the matter.

ate professors. The organization opened offices last month at 8147 Delmar boulevard, University City.

HELL'S CANYON DAM BILL SENT TO SENATE FLOOR

Committee for Full Vote on U.S. Project —G.O.P. Walkout in House Unit.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 19 — The Senate Interior Committee voted today to report the controversial Hell's Canyon bill to the full Senate.

Backers of the proposal for a high federal dam on the Snake river between Oregon and Idaho now see a good chance that the bill will pass both Houses before the end of this session of Congress.

The Senate committee acted by voice vote in executive session. There were a few votes in opposition.

Senators Eugene D. Millikin (Rep.) of Colorado, and Thomas H. Kuchel (Rep.) of California, joined those who voted to report the bill out. The Post-Dispatch was told. Those two were quoted as saying they opposed the bill but thought it should be voted on by the full Senate.

Supporters of the bill believed a strong effort would be required to obtain passage by both Houses but believed such an effort would be made.

Republican Walkout.

A House committee also had been scheduled to vote today on the Hell's Canyon bill, but five Republicans walked out of the committee room to prevent consideration of the measure. Democratic backers of the huge federal project had hoped to obtain a majority and report the bill out, until the Republican walkout prevented the necessary quorum and the meeting was adjourned.

Only two Republicans were in their seats when Chairman Clair Engle (Dem.), California, called the House Interior Committee to order 20 minutes after the scheduled opening time of 10 a.m.

Five other Republicans had been in the room—A. L. Miller of Nebraska, James B. Utt and Craig Hosmer of California, William A. Dawson of Utah and Jack Westland of Washington—but they walked out without taking their seats.

Hosmer told a reporter afterward: "Apparently there was no quorum there, so there was no use wasting my time."

The two Republicans who answered a roll call—Hamer H. Budge of Idaho and J. Edgar Chenoweth of Colorado—together with 12 of the 16 committee Democrats, lacked one of making up the necessary quorum of 15.

Engle explained afterward that the Republicans "just walked off and created the absence of a quorum." He said: "When you've exhausted reasonable prospects, the only thing you can do is adjourn."

Powell at a Hearing.

Engle said Representative Adam Clayton Powell Jr. (Dem.) of New York probably would be gone all morning as a witness before another committee on civil rights legislation.

Another Democrat, James A. Haley of Florida, was said to be "the only other Democrat who is in town and is not here."

Representative Lee Metcalf (Dem.), Montana, and Mrs. Gracie Pfof (Dem.), Idaho, both strong backers of the high federal dam proposal, threatened to withhold their support from legislation sought by the absentees.

"This is a two-way street," Metcalf said.

Mrs. Pfof told reporters: "Some of us didn't appreciate voting for a package deal on the Upper Colorado project. But at least we were gentlemanly and womanly enough to come and vote because we were interested in the development of the Northwest."

Democratic hopes for passage of the Hell's Canyon bill this session rose recently when Representative Chenoweth indicated he had switched sides. He now supports the bill. In return, he wants the Democrats to help him approve the proposed $156,000,000 Frying Pan-Arkansas project, now pending before the House Rules Committee.

Fighting Fire With Fire. Representative Walter Rogers (Dem.), Texas, indicated he would attempt to get the Hell's Canyon bill called up at a routine meeting later this week.

Noting the absence of Republican members, he said "fire can be fought with fire."

"No punches are going to be pulled from now on," he said.

By the Associated Press.

The dam, planned by Army engineers years ago for the Snake river on the Idaho-Oregon border, has never made much headway in Congress.

It nevertheless has become the focal point of one of the loudest private vs. public power issues in the nation.

The Federal Power Commission has licensed a private utility, the Idaho Power Co., to build three Hell's Canyon area dams that would flood the federal site. The company is already at work despite a pending court challenge of the legality of the FPC license.

The dispute spilled over into politics when the Eisenhower Administration withdrew Interior Department opposition to the company's plan. Under preceding Democratic administrations the department had intervened actively against the utility's applications.

Democrats contend the Administration's tacit approval of the Idaho power plans is a "give-away" of one of the last great dam sites in the West. Hell's Canyon is the deepest river gorge in North America.

Republicans answer that the federal project would not produce the company dams to an extent warranting the cost, pointing out the private projects will cost the Government nothing.

RUSSIA REBUFFED AT ILO MEETING

Fails to Win Changes in Statement on Forced Labor.

The New York Herald Tribune—Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

GENEVA, June 19.—The Soviet Union yesterday suffered its first major setback at the International Labor Conference when two amendments submitted by the government delegation of the U. S. S. R. to the proposed new prohibition of forced labor convention were rejected with substantial majorities.

The worker delegation group suggested that the preamble to the convention should contain the principle that forced or compulsory labor constitutes a violation of the rights of man as defined by the Charter of the United Nations.

The Soviet Union introduced an amendment that referred to forced or compulsory labor "in all its forms and everywhere." The Soviet amendment was defeated and the worker group suggestion was then adopted unanimously.

The government delegation of the Soviet Union proposed to replace the whole text of the ILO draft on the scope of the new convention, which was short, simple and all embracing, with one of its own. This Soviet amendment, which is 13 times as long as the ILO text, attempts to explain forced labor under nine separate definitions and is prefaced by a preamble. Yesterday only the preamble was put to a vote and was defeated, 103 to 22.

PAIR MARRIED 50 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bokerman, 4037 Pleasant street, will observe their fiftieth wedding anniversary tomorrow. They celebrated the occasion Sunday with a family gathering at the home of their son, Frederick Bokerman II, of 9141 Leamont drive, Jennings.

Bokerman, 73 years old, was a painter before recently retiring. His wife, 72, is the former Margaret Stoltz. They also have a daughter, Mrs. Conrad Fries; three grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

INSPECTOR OF POLICE IN MAPLEWOOD RESIGNS

Harold O. Webb, Maplewood inspector of police since December 1954, said today he had resigned because of interference with his work by a city official whom he declined to identify. He said he had refused a request to remain in the part-time, $50 a month job. Webb, formerly a St. Louis policeman for 20 years, was the first man to hold the position of inspector. He was given responsibility for developing programs for police training and traffic regulation. He is 58 years old and lives at 2848 Oakland avenue, Maplewood. His resignation was effective June 1.

U.N. CALLS ON U.S. TO PAY ISLANDERS FOR BIKINI LAND

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., June 19 (AP)—A United Nations committee reported today that the United States has been testing nuclear weapons on Bikini atoll for 10 years without paying the 167 former inhabitants for their land. It called for settlement of the claims "without further delay."

The U.N. Visiting Mission to Trust Territories in the Pacific said the delay in settling land claims had fostered reluctance of the Bikinese to "accept the fact that they never could return."

The report, which the U.N. Trusteeship Council was to begin discussing today, did not say why the population could not return to Bikini. The United States delegation said this was due to "permanent changes in the islands that have been made for test purposes," including much concrete construction.

The report also did not say what had delayed payment of the land claims. Policy disagreements between United States Government departments were understood to be involved.

FRENCH EXECUTE TWO ALGERIANS AS TERRORISTS

One a Soldier in French Army Who Joined Rebels in Nighttime Attack.

ALGIERS, June 19 (AP)—The French today chopped off the heads of two Algerians convicted as terrorists.

One of the men sent to the guillotine was a member of the French army who was found guilty of joining the rebels for a night raid.

These were the first executions of terrorists that have been announced for many months. About 100 men under death sentence are being held in the Algiers prison pending a final decision from Paris on their execution.

European residents in Algeria have been pressing to have the death sentences carried out as an evidence of the Government's intention to deal firmly with rebels. The Government has been reluctant to take any measures which might stir up too much resentment among the Moslem population it is trying to woo.

The two men executed today were Zahana ben Mohammed and Ferradj Abdelkader ben Moussa. Zahana ben Mohammed was accused of leading an attack in which a forest guard was killed. Ferradj Abdelkader was convicted of participating in an attack on a farm near Palestro on March 7 during an unauthorized overnight absence from his French army unit stationed nearby.

French officials said today the rebels seem to have switched their tactics and now are relying solely on isolated terrorist attacks, avoiding all lional allocations for the remaining years of the program for completion of the interstate highway systems in all 48 states.

Thus, the conferees arrived at fixed allocations for a start on the interstate highways, the most important feature of the program, with a so-called "need" formula to be substituted in arriving at apportionment of funds after the initial three-year period.

For primary, urban and secondary road projects, which are separate from interstate highways, the House version of the bill set up a total of $725,000,000 for division among the states in the first year of the program, with this amount increasing at the rate of $25,000,000 a year up to a final total in the thirteenth year of $1,075,000,000.

The Senate bill would have provided $900,000,000 each year for the next five years for primary, urban and secondary projects.

This conflict was compromised by the conferees by providing $825,000,000 the first year, starting July 1; $850,000,000 the second year, and $875,000,000 the third year.

ice available in rural areas, provides for a program of federal grants.

He also signed transmittal letters covering the dispatch to Congress of two annual reports—one by the National Advisory Council on international monetary and financial problems, the other a document dealing with activities of the Office of the Alien Property Custodian.

Among other documents, the President approved a recommendation by the Civil Aeronautics Board and an atomic energy agreement between the United States and France. Neither of those was made public.

Housing Shortage.

He also signed a letter to the Housing and Home Finance Administration designating Blytheville, Ark., as an area of acute housing shortage. That action qualifies defense workers in the area for occupation of low-rental housing.

In other official actions, Mr. Eisenhower reappointed Hugh M. Conner of Birmingham, Ala., as a member of the National Monument Commission and redesignated Clarence G. Morse as chairman of the Federal Maritime Board.

Before the meeting with Adams, the President received and chuckled over a booklet of photographs of his eight-year-old grandson, David, playing golf.

The booklet, a gift from the White House Photographers Association, was put together in the format of the usual golf instruction book with captions as though written by David. Actually, they were written by Henry Burroughs of the Associated Press.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the President got a big kick out of the gift and laughed heartily over it.

No Decision on Farley.

In reply to a question, Hagerty said there still has been no decision as to whether Mr. Eisenhower will go to Panama City for a meeting with the Presidents of other American republics. Mr. Eisenhower had been scheduled to attend a June 25-26 conference there, but the session has been called off for those dates because of his illness.

Responding to another question, Hagerty said he had heard July 20 mentioned as a possible new date for the conference, "but nothing has been firmed up at all."

HOTEL TO OPERATE 'TRAIN' FOR GUESTS AND LUGGAGE

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—A passenger and freight "train" soon will be rolling around the 16-acre grounds of the Sheraton-Park Hotel here to handle guests and their luggage.

The two-car "train" will be powered by an automobile engine under a mock diesel hood. The $20,000 vehicle will have a capacity of 27 passengers. It will roll on rubber tires along hotel sidewalks and roads between the hotel, swimming pool, tennis courts, parking lot and garage.

REGULAR OVERNIGHT FLIGHTS TO MEXICO CITY STARTING

Regular overnight service five days a week from St. Louis to Mexico City will be started at 9:25 o'clock tonight by American Airlines, Brooke Payne, district sales manager, announced today.

The new service will be operated each day except Monday and Friday, with flights beginning here at 9:25 p.m. and arriving in Mexico City at 7:30 a.m. to make a connection to Acapulco. Planes used on the flight will be DC-6s carrying 54 to 62 passengers.

Citizenship Day Proclaimed.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—President Eisenhower called yesterday for wide observance of Sept. 17 as Citizenship day so that "all our people may gain a deeper appreciation of the great heritage secured to us by the Constitution." He signed the proclamation at Walter Reed Army Hospital where he is recuperating from abdominal surgery.

128 CHINESE REDS REPORTED KILLED IN REVOLT OF TRIBE

TAIPEI, Formosa, June 19 (AP)—An official Chinese Nationalist news agency reported today that tribesmen in the Pohai area of South Yunnan revolted in March and in three days of fighting killed 128 Chinese Reds.

The interior ministry's Tatoo news agency, which claims underground contacts on the mainland, said the tribesmen were armed only with spears, old hunting guns and other inadequate weapons and suffered heavy casualties.

The agency said the tribesmen were protesting against Communist rule in general and high taxes in particular.

Red Leaders Toast Tito, Women, Peace and 'Down With Protocol'

Khrushchev Contributes: 'May the Ministers of Defense Busy Themselves With Egg Incubators.'

MOSCOW, June 19 (UP)—The Soviet leaders discarded inhibitions at a reception for Marshal Josip (Tito) Broz last night and toasted almost everything under the sun to cries of "down with protocol."

There were innumerable toasts—to women, to fishermen, to peace and to humanity.

President Tito, wearing a field gray uniform with 13 medal ribbons and a diamond and the ruby-studded Yugoslav Order of Freedom, sat near his wife who wore a stunning evening dress.

After an hour and a half of merry-making, the Yugoslav protocol chief tried to talk Tito into leaving, but Communist party Secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev said politely but firmly: "Down with protocol!"

At the other end of the tables Bulganin exhorted Soviet newsmen to make friends with Western correspondents after one Westerner complained that he had never been invited out by a Soviet newsmen during two years in Moscow.

"You should invite these people," Bulganin said as he pointed a finger at the Soviet correspondents. "You should get drunk together. The Western newsmen are our friends."

He shooed away MVD (secret service) plainclothesmen who constantly shoved the Western newsmen away from the Soviet leaders.

Khrushchev told the Iranian ambassador, "We are neighbors and friends and we can never be separated."

United States Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen reminded Khrushchev that the United States and Russia were neighbors, separated only by the narrow reaches of the Bering Strait.

"We shall also be friends," Khrushchev said. "I firmly believe it will be like that."

(The Associated Press reported Bohlen responded to a proposal by Soviet President Klement Voroshilov that they drink to peace by saying:

"I'll be glad to drink a toast to peace for after all who would toast to war? But if peace is to be maintained, one must establish a basis for peace, and that is justice."

Tito then asked: "Are you suggesting anyone here is against justice?"

(Bohlen answered: "I am not suggesting anything. I am only saying justice is necessary to peace.")

At one time Khrushchev looked at Defense Minister Marshal Georgi Zhukov and proposed a toast: "May marshals be unemployed."

"May defense ministers become peace ministers," Zhukov replied.

Tito raised his glass to this and Khrushchev added, "May the ministers of defense busy themselves with egg incubators."

Holiday's exciting Summer Travel Issue

Here's a bright new Holiday—packed from cover to cover with tips, tours, ways to get the most out of your best days of the year.

MASSACHUSETTS

She's fifth-smallest, sixth-richest, most visited state of the 48! What draws millions to the Bay State every year? Scenery, of course... climate, too... but mostly it's her very unusual brand of Yankee charm. Novelist Henry Morton Robinson tells how and where to see it at its best! 15 colorful Holiday photos!

SIERRA NEVADA

California's incredibly beautiful mountain range—400 miles of scenery that reaches the length of the state! In them you'll find the country's highest mountain—Mt. Whitney. Its most beautiful lake—Lake Tahoe. Its most famous park—Yosemite. All this plus vacation pleasures that stagger the imagination!

5 UNUSUAL HOLIDAY TOURS

MIAMI BEACH—a four-day, $50 bargain visit to Florida's Gold Coast in the season when she's at her best—summer!

NEW ENGLAND AND OLD CANADA—3 weeks to enjoy right in your own car—in countryside of unequalled charm.

MEXICO—driving there can be as much fun as your stay in the country itself. Holiday shows you why!

NATIONAL PARKS AND THE CANADIAN ROCKIES—if mountains are your dish, this Western tour's for you!

ALASKA—gold mining, Eskimos, even a step across the Arctic Circle! And much cheaper than you'd think!

SPECIAL FEATURE! HIGH SOCIETY BLUES

When New Orleans jazz hit ritzy Newport, it stirred up an indignant rumpus that can still be heard! Cleveland Amory tells the uproarious, behind-the-scenes story.

PLUS: Holiday's annual Restaurant Awards—a guide to top American dining. Bull Run by Bruce Catton. Eric Ambler's How to Spot a Spy, and more!

BALKY RED INQUIRY WITNESS LOSES JOB

Says Employer Told Him He Was Being Dropped for Returning Veteran.

John W. Simpson said today his appearance as a witness in the Communist hearings of the House Un-American Affairs Committee here earlier this month had cost him his job.

Simpson appeared twice before the investigating subcommittee and refused to answer any questions put to him about his life or his political beliefs, invoking the Fifth Amendment. He was recommended for a contempt citation.

He told the Post-Dispatch he was fired the next day upon returning to his job as a grocery clerk at Bettendorf's Hampton Village store. He had worked there for three months.

The company told him he was being let go in order for it to rehire a returning veteran. "If this is true it certainly happened at a very, very convenient time," Simpson commented.

A company spokesman declined to comment on Simpson's dismissal, saying it was against company policy to do so. Simpson, who had attended the University of Illinois for one year, said he now had a steady job doing "plain, old unskilled labor."

A survey by the Post-Dispatch today showed that 17 witnesses available for comment reported no detrimental effects following their appearance as uncooperative witnesses before the subcommittee. All refused to discuss Communist activities in the St. Louis area.

Several said friends and neighbors had made a point of expressing sympathy for them.

Three persons had previously been fired from their jobs following appearances as unfriendly witnesses. They are William Henry Holland, Elliott Waxman and Edwin L. Richardson.

Richardson, formerly employed at Graham Paper Co., said he still was awaiting action by Teamsters Union 688 to protest his dismissal, which he said was made without cause. A union spokesman said Richardson would probably be asked to appear before the local's executive committee within the next two weeks.

Since being dismissed from his warehouse job, Richardson said he had been unable to find a steady job.

CHURCH OF CHRIST WINS ANOTHER LAWSUIT IN ITALY

FLORENCE, Italy, June 19 (AP)—The Church of Christ, which has headquarters in the United States, yesterday won its second court decision for greater religious freedom in four days.

A Florence court ordered charges dropped against the Rev. Lido Petri, an Italian minister of the church arrested in Leghorn in February 1954 after preaching there. He was charged with disturbing public order and ordered to stay out of Leghorn for five years.

The Protestant Church of Christ has had several legal difficulties in Italy, where Roman Catholicism is the state church. Last Thursday Italy's constitutional court nullified a Fascist-era police rule preventing it from placing a sign on the church's building in Rome.

POLICE WON'T PROSECUTE LIBERACE BROTHER, RUDOLPH
VAN NUYS, Calif., June 19 (AP) — Police said yesterday they would not prosecute planist Liberace's younger brother, Rudolph, arrested early Saturday after a door-pounding episode.
Detectives said neither of the two residents whose complaints led to the arrest of Rudolph wishes to prosecute. He was jailed after the residents complained he had banged on their door with a rubber hose and yelled for his wife to come outside. Officers said he had been drinking.

AUSTRIA REPORTS NEW FLOW OF YUGOSLAV REFUGEES
VIENNA, June 19 (UP)—A new stream of Yugoslav refugees has started flowing into neutral Austria since Marshal Josip (Tito) Broz's visit to Russia, according to an official of the Styrian provincial government.
The official said the refugees have told him they are fleeing because of fear that the Moscow talks will result in a new close alliance between Yugoslavia and the Kremlin.

PRESENT RUSSIAN BOSSES ASSAILED BY FRENCH REDS Handling of Anti-Stalin Campaign Criticized — Moscow May Have Dictated Line.
PARIS, June 19 (UP)—The French Communist party finally joined Moscow's anti-Stalin line today but coupled it with criticism of the present Kremlin bosses.
In the first formal statement on the barrage loosed against the former Soviet premier in Moscow four months ago, the French party newspaper L'Humanite admitted Stalin had feet of clay. But the newspaper scored his successors for the way they treated Stalin's memory and the manner in which they handled themselves while Stalin was alive.
It said it would be "unjust today to attribute to Stalin alone everything that was negative in the activity of the Soviet Union's Communist party."
Similar expressions of dissatisfaction have appeared within the last few days in Communist publications in the United States, Britain and Italy.
Line Believed Dictated.
L'Humanite carried as its two-column lead article a "declaration of the Political Bureau" which complained of Kremlin handling of the campaign and plainly showed French Communists' dissatisfaction with recent party events.
The statement amounted to a declaration of independence from the Kremlin, but seasoned western observers said the independence line itself was Moscow-dictated. Such a line would permit western Reds to operate more freely within anti-Soviet countries.
The first major step in questioning Kremlin leadership came from Palmiro Togliatti, leader of Italy's Communist party which polled 6,000,000 votes in the recent elections. He said Nikita Khrushchev's collective leadership had to share the blame for Stalin's errors.
But in Moscow last night Khrushchev flatly declared his confidence in Togliatti without reading his speech.
"I have heard about it but I haven't read it," Khrushchev told newsmen. "But even without knowing it I am certain it was a good speech because he always makes good speeches. I am saying this because I know Togliatti. There is only one Togliatti."
The London Daily Worker bannerlined Togliatti's attack on Kremlin leadership yesterday and in an editorial expressed the British Reds independence line. The paper asked the Kremlin leaders to "elucidate further" on my Stalin was permitted to commit such grievous errors while the current Communist party leaders were working so closely with him.
Explanation Demanded.
The London Daily Worker also printed excerpts from an article in the New York Daily Worker by Howard Fast, in which Fast expressed his determination to remain a friend but a "severe and implacable" critic of the Soviet Union.

Observers noted that the recent dissolution of the Cominform prepared the way for an independence movement among national Communist parties. They also noted that French Communist leader Maurice Thorez had conferred recently with Togliatti and that Togliatti himself talked with Yugoslav Marshal Tito.

Russians Free 50 Japanese.
WAKKANAI, Hokkaido, Japan, June 19 (AP)—Fifty Japanese fishermen returned here today after a month of captivity in Siberia and said the Russians were still holding the five skippers on charges of "violation of territorial waters and unlicensed fishing."

The Guaranteee shall have his choice of any of the following makes, but not types, of picture tubes whenever needed: General Electric, Claremont, R.C.A., Sylvania or Cardinal. This contract shall be issued on black and white picture tubes only.

All replacement or repair work shall be performed by thoroughly competent and qualified technicians of the Guarantor, said work to be guaranteed by a performance bond issued by a nationally known insurance company.

The Guaranty represented by this certificate covers the diagnosis of current condition of picture tube repair and replacement whenever needed. Unlimited calls Monday through Friday, and whenever possible on Saturday at no charge other than the original cost of this guarantee certificate.

In the event of a Strike by the employees or an act of God, the Company will not be obligated to carry out the conditions of this policy until consummation of the aforementioned.

This guaranty is in effect while the Guaranteee lives in St. Louis, East St. Louis or St. Louis County. Upon moving from these boundaries, no service will be furnished unless set is brought into our shop. No balance of policy will be refunded.

1. If the picture tube is replaced or repaired by any other person, fictitious or not, or anyone other than the Guarantor, this contract is to be void under the following conditions:

2. If the picture tube is destroyed, damaged, or rendered unserviceable by any accidental breakage or deliberate act by anyone. However, the Guarantor guarantees to replace or repair any and all picture tubes which become defective through normal wear and tear.

PROGRESS CITED IN LONG RANGE MISSILE PLANS

Officer Says U.S. Has 'Firm' Program for Intercontinental Weapons.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Donald L. Putt, Air Force research chief, says this country has "a real, firm program" for development of an intercontinental ballistic missile. Putt, Air Force deputy chief of staff for development, was questioned May 17 at a closed-door session of a Senate Armed Services subcommittee investigating relative United States and Russian air power. His testimony was made public today, after security censorship.

Often termed "the ultimate weapon," an intercontinental missile could carry a nuclear warhead from this country to Russia—or in the reverse direction—in a matter of minutes. The aim is to develop a rocket capable of traveling 5000 miles and dropping right on target.

Disclosure of Putt's testimony followed a speech yesterday by Eger V. Murphree, special assistant to the Secretary of Defense for guided missiles, before a joint meeting of the American Rocket Society and the Society of Mechanical Engineers in Cleveland, at which he reported rapid progress in development of improved missiles.

Missiles From Bombers.
Murphree said the Navy is already operating and the Air Force will soon have missiles which can be launched from a bomber against targets far beyond the aircraft's range. He said the Navy's Petrel and the Air Force Rascal "will permit a bomber to deliver highly effective payloads without the necessity of the bombers penetrating defense surrounding the target."

Gen. Putt's cautious optimism on the intercontinental ballistic missile was coupled with sharp criticism of cuts in recent years in funds for Air Force research and development. He also cautioned that Russia might surpass this country soon in quality as well as numbers of new weapons and aircraft.

Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.), Missouri, the subcommittee chairman, asked Putt about prospects for eventual developments of an I.C.B.M., saying:

"Do you believe it is going to be done?"

'Realistic Schedule.'
"I think it is a rather realistic schedule," Putt replied, "and the fact that we have met the milestones in the program to date would indicate that at least the early planning had been quite realistic, and I have no reason to believe that subject to the vicissitudes of not knowing exactly where we will wind up, that it is not a real firm program."

The censored version of Putt's testimony did not show what period of time was involved in the schedule Putt spoke of.

While protesting that funds for this and other Air Force research projects had been reduced in recent years, he disclosed that more than one billion dollars had been earmarked for the I.C.B.M. project since 1954. This includes $583,000,000 in the bookkeeping year that begins July 1.

Putt testified that the long-range missile was given overriding priority by the Air Force in 1954, and by the Defense Department in 1955.

Later, he said, the Army and Navy joined in work on a shorter, intermediate range ballistic missile, and this he said was given a similar priority rating.

Warns of Russian Progress.
Answering questions, Putt said he believes this country still is ahead of the Russians in jet engines, radar and missiles "but at least this gives me small comfort."

Asked why, he replied: "Because of the rate with which they are demonstrating a capability to do some pretty difficult and complicated things."

If the Russians continue their scientific and production feats, Putt said, it is possible they could surpass this country in air power and weapons in the near future.

At first he said "within a decade" but later he said he preferred not to fix a definite time.

Murphree said in his speech he had found no case where either lack of money or administrative red tape was limiting progress in the development of guided missiles.

Last week, former Assistant Air Force Secretary Trevor Gardner testified before a Senate committee that the American missile program had been delayed by limitations on funds and by poor management.

Praises Nike.
Murphree, taking note of some congressional criticism of the Army's Nike anti-aircraft missile, said it "is a very effective missile and improvements in this missile are now being made."

He said that Nike, like the Navy's Terrier anti-aircraft missile "has demonstrated a high kill capability."

Also referring to arguments that the Navy's Talos missile, now under development, should be substituted for Nike, Murphree said that Talos should be "compared with improvements now on the way for the Nike." He added that "the relative merits of these two missiles for different applications is now receiving detailed study."

HOUSE GROUP SETS VOTE ON SCHOOL BILL

Chairman Predicts Committee Will Send Measure to Floor Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (UPI)—The House Rules Committee today agreed to vote tomorrow afternoon on sending the $1,600,000,000 school construction bill to the floor for action.

Chairman Howard W. Smith (Dem.), Virginia, predicted the bill would get a green light.

President Eisenhower has repeatedly urged congressional action on the long-stalled school bill.

The measure came under fire from Southerners at a Rules Committee meeting today.

Smith himself led today's assault on the measure, which earlier had been pigeonholed by the rules group and all but given up for dead. The bill was dusted off for renewed hearings only after a committee revolt last week against Smith's leadership.

Smith assailed the measure today as "half-baked and cockeyed." He said it ought to be sent back to the Education and Labor Committee, which drafted it, for correction of numerous "defects."

Representative Ray J. Madden (Dem.), Indiana, protested against this suggestion. He argued against "trying to find excuses for delaying and postponing needed legislation."

Clearance by the rules group is required to get the bill to the floor. Representative Cleveland M. Bailey (Dem.), West Virginia, one of the bill's sponsors, told the committee he had not pressed for action earlier because he wasn't sure enough votes were lined up in the House to pass it. He said he now is "reasonably sure" the bill will be passed.

In advance of today's session, Representative Phil M. Landrum (Dem.), Georgia, predicted that school aid funds would be denied states maintaining racially segregated schools.

Landrum expressed a fear of many of his fellow Southerners that the school construction bill would open the door to federal control of education and become another weapon in efforts to force integration in Dixie schools.

YOUTH CHALLENGES DEPUTY TO DRAG RACE--AND LOSES

Clifford Flood of St. Clair county accepted a challenge to a drag race late Sunday night knowing he couldn't lose. Flood is chief deputy sheriff of the county. His challenger was James Johnston, 23 years old, of Belleville.

Johnston's car pulled up beside Flood's at a stoplight on the edge of East St. Louis. Flood's 17-year-old son Sam was driving his father's car. The Belleville youth said, "How about a race." The two cars raced at speeds up to 70 miles an hour for five blocks, before Flood directed his son to force Johnston to pull over.

Johnston was "very contrite" when arrested, Flood said. Belleville Justice of the Peace Edgar Grossman accepted his apology, suspending payment of a $100 fine he levied against him yesterday.

BRITISH OFFICIAL DECLINES BID TO SOVIET AIR SHOW

LONDON, June 19 (AP)—Britain's Minister of Supply Reginald Maudling has turned down a Soviet invitation to attend the big Moscow air day display June 24 but is sending a team of top specialists instead.

The Soviet ministry of aircraft production forwarded the invitation to Maudling last week. The minister was forced to decline because of "pressure of work," aids said today.

Air Minister Nigel Birch and several top air force officers already have accepted invitations to visit the display as has Gen. Nathan Twining, United States air chief of staff.

It is the first time the Soviets have invited Western guests not stationed in Moscow to attend the big air display, at which the latest Soviet achievements in aircraft production sometimes are shown off.

MAN SENTENCED TO 90 DAYS FOR LEAVING CRASH SCENE

William Findley, a mechanic of the 2500 block of Elliott street, was found guilty yesterday of leaving the scene of an accident by Police Judge Morris Rosenthal, and sentenced to 90 days in the City Workhouse.

Police testified Findley was arrested when found under his bed at his home, shortly after he had been in a collision with another automobile at Hadley and Madison streets. Findley denied the accident was his fault.

Water Use Curtailed.

NUEVO LAREDO, Mexico, June 19 (INS)—Stiff restrictions on the use of water became effective today along a 155-mile stretch of the Rio Grande, where a recent sharp drop in the flow has created a shortage. Fines and jail sentences were provided for persons pumping for irrigation purposes between midnight and 6 a.m.

TESTIFIES SOME YIELDED EASILY TO BRAINWASHING

Doctor Says G.I. Prisoners Who Defected Were Not Under Great Pressure.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—Dr. Harold G. Wolff, chief of neurology at Cornell Medical School, testified today United States prisoners of war in Korea who defected to Communism "were not exposed to a great deal of pressure."

"In some instances," Wolff told the Senate Investigations subcommittee, the defectors feared to return to this country lest they be punished for such easy yielding.

The physician described Communist "brainwashing" techniques as the grimmest, most effective the world has known—a "refinement" of centuries of police state methods. The subcommittee is investigating brainwashing and how to resist it.

Brainwashing Studied. Wolff said he is one of 20 civilian and military scientists who have devoted two and a half years to a study of brainwashing and how men may combat it if they fall into Communist hands as prisoners. He has compiled but not yet published a book on the technique, which he says the Russians taught Red China.

Wolff said he agrees with Chairman McClellan (Dem., Arkansas), that men "with strong religious faith had more resistance" than others, but he added:

"Without equivocation, knowledge about the brainwashing process is the greatest defense." The military, he said, now has "a program to do more than that—to prepare a man for this kind of abuse," but he said "I cannot go into that further" in a public hearing.

Wolff expressed a hope that "something can be done through the United Nations to tackle this problem at its source." He swung then into more details of the "refined" cruelties he wants outlawed.

On one point he was firm: that "for the most part" the effects of brainwashing are not lasting. Victims, once restored to normal surroundings, "rather quickly fell into a place in society not very different to that which they had had."

Group Called Red Fronts.

A former FBI undercover informant told the House Committee on Un-American Activities yesterday that the Save Our Sons Committee was a Communist-controlled organization.

Anzeln A. Czarnowski of Argo, Ill., told the committee, investigating propaganda among United States prisoners of war in Korea, that the S.O.S.C. was designed to undermine this country's Korean war effort. Czarnowski reported to the FBI about Communist activities in Illinois from 1944 to 1955.

He testified that Mrs. Florence Gowgiew, chairman of the Save Our Sons organization, has been a Communist party member since 1946. He said Mrs. Gowgiew, also of Argo, ran the organization to foster Communist purposes.

Followed Party Line.

Members of the S.O.S.C., he said, wrote letters to American prisoners of war, to service men in Korea, to the parents of service men and to Congressmen. He said the organization followed the Communist party line that "our boys in Korea were being sacrificed to protect American monopolists and imperialists—the interests."

He asserted that Mrs. Gowgiew said during the Korean war that American soldiers "behaved like beasts, massacring women and children." He said she also accused the United States of waging germ warfare and committing other atrocities.

Mrs. Elizabeth Mitterer, identified by the committee as secretary-treasurer of the organization, refused to tell the committee whether she is a Communist or to answer questions about the Save Our Sons Committee. She based her refusal on the Fifth Amendment's protection against possible self-incrimination. Mrs. Mitterer, ordered to produce the organization's records, said she did not have them and did not know who does.

Leader Expects to Testify. Mrs. Gowgiew, called to the stand today, refused to answer questions about the S.O.S.C. She, too, invoked the Fifth Amendment.

Frank S. Tavenner Jr., committee counsel, said there was a report the S.O.S.C. had organizations in 17 states besides Illinois and asked Mrs. Gowgiew to name them. Mrs. Gowgiew refused to answer.

Tavenner asked Mrs. Gowgiew if a delegation from St. Louis attended a Midwest assembly in Springfield, Ill., and if any organizational work was done about St. Louis. She refused to answer.

Russia Sends Pakistan Food.

LONDON, June 19 (AP)—The Moscow radio said today the Soviet Union is sending Pakistan 20,000 tons of rice and 20,000 tons of wheat to relieve a food shortage caused by floods and insect pests.

YOUTH'S CHILDISH VIOLATION BRINGS CHILDISH PENALTY

A child-like punishment for a child-like action was handed out yesterday by Magistrate Raymond L. Harris at the county courthouse. He ordered Franklin W. West, of the 2100 block of Sixty-ninth street, Hillside, to write 1000 times, "I will never use a Hollywood muffer again."

The 17-year-old youth was found guilty of using an automobile equipped with the illegal device, which makes a car's muffer emit a loud, hollow noise. He also was fined $5. West was arrested by the Highway Patrol June 8 on a by-pass route of U.S. Highway 40.

The parole of Wilfred R. Young, laborer, 700 block of South Geyer road, Kirkwood, was revoked because Young was arrested Sunday by Crestwood police on a charge of careless and reckless driving. Young had been paroled Jan. 9 on another automobile charge.

James S. Mathews, 17, 3100 block of Lucas-Hunt road, Normandy, and Earl W. Davis, 22, Wood River, Ill., were given 30-day jail sentences and paroled from them for six months.

Mathews was paroled on condition he would not drive for 90 days; Davis, on condition he would not drive in Missouri for six months. Davis was fined $50. Both had been convicted of careless and reckless driving.

Democrats' Line Likely to Be Sympathy for a President Being Pressured Into Staying in Race

Critics Are Wary of Health Issue Back-firing, and G.O.P. Counts on It Too—But Dispute Over Eisenhower's Fitness Will Go On and On.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS

A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright 1956, The Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

WASHINGTON, June 19. THE issue of President Eisenhower's health will not be ruled out no matter how optimistic the assurances of his doctors and his associates. As a candidate for a second term, it will confront him until election day.

Those close to the President profess to be not in the least concerned at this prospect. They are confident that the President's recovery from his operation and his own optimistic temperament will answer any and all insinuations about his capacity to serve for another four years. Moreover, they say that any effort to exploit the health issue is certain to backfire and build up sympathy for Mr. Eisenhower.

There are indications that the Democrats, too, are afraid any effort to capitalize on the President's illnesses will bring a sentimental reaction on the part of many people who will want to show him that they are sorry for him and they believe in him no matter what has happened. The Democratic line is likely therefore to be also one of sympathy—sympathy for a gallant soldier pressured by self-seeking politicians into the intolerable ordeal of another four years in the White House when he should be allowed to retire to well-earned peace and quiet.

Cynicism Developing.

But health will be uppermost in the minds of many politicians in both parties.

Photostats are being widely circulated in Washington of a news story from the Milwaukee Journal headed "Ike Had 'Wrong Operation,' Philadelphia Surgeon Says." This was based on an interview with Dr. Robert B. Laucks of the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Medicine, who said that the by-passing operation would not relieve the President's symptoms of pain and discomfort although it did get around the intestinal obstruction.

Another University of Pennsylvania specialist, Dr. Isidor Ravdin, was one of the team of surgeons present at the time of the President's operation. Dr. Ravdin, who joined with the other doctors in the optimistic report the President would recover sufficiently to run for reelection, has stayed at Walter Reed Hospital virtually since the time since the emergency operation was performed. If the wide range of medical reports has not confused the public, it has at any rate evoked a great deal of cynicism about the medical profession and politics.

Advertisements by Contractors Keep Up Inter-Service Feuds

By DREW PEARSON

(Copyright, 1956.)

WASHINGTON. THE armed services have found a way to get around budget restrictions on publicity. The Army, Navy, and Air Force simply use their contractors to buy advertising for them.

Connecticut's G.O.P. Congressman Pat Patterson, a House Armed Services Committee member, has dug up statistics showing that defense contractors spend millions in advertising for the separate services.

Latest available figures show that Air Force contractors spent $2,348,082 in 1954 to plug the Air Force. Navy contractors spent $2,351,606 to advertise the Navy, not counting an additional $335,070 on Marine Corps advertising. The Army got the least out of its contractors—only $248,030 worth of advertising.

This was the amount of money spent for magazine advertising alone and does not include other propaganda costs footed by the contractors. For example, Air Force contractors spend millions more to promote the Air Force through the Air Force Association. Navy contractors also help subsidize the Navy League, which puts out pro-Navy propaganda.

The cost of all this propaganda, of course, comes indirectly from the taxpayers through defense contracts. The contractors actually set aside a portion of their defense profits to buy advertising and openly take sides in the Army-Navy-Air Force feud.

As private companies, they are not restricted by the Pentagon rules against feuding. Thus the services get the benefit of this indirect publicity without having it charged against their public budgets.

Congressman Patterson has obtained a confidential breakdown of how much defense money was spent on armed services advertising in 1954.

Here are the amounts some of the biggest defense contractors spent in that year:

United Aircraft Corp., $642,833; Borg-Warner Corp., $515,184; Douglas Aircraft Co., $341,808; Boeing Airplane Co., $299,425; General Electric, $258,823; Grumman Aircraft Engine Corp., $227,043; Lockheed Aircraft Corp., $179,531; General Dynamics Corp., $174,425; Bell Telephone, $118,885; General Motors, $121,247; Republic Aviation, $144,725.

Since most of the business of several of these companies is from the armed services, they probably did not need

'White House Office' Carries Heavy Burden—And Exercises Vast Power

Its Chief, Adams, Accountable Only to President—Beyond Scrutiny of Congress.

By JAMES RESTON

The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, June 19. PRESIDENT EISENHOWER is on a restricted diet of food and work, but "the White House office," which carries the main work-load of the presidency, is busier than Times Square on a Saturday night.

For example:

1. More than 2100 letters poured into the White House mail room yesterday for the President.

2. Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Lewis L. Strauss sent his monthly report on peaceful uses of atomic energy to the President. It was put in his folder for today.

3. William H. Jackson, special assistant to the President on foreign affairs, delivered a report to the White House on the Operations Co-ordinating Board.

4. A group of local and state officials met in the White House and was addressed by the assistant to the President, Sherman Adams.

5. There were staff discussions with the Bureau of the Budget over funds to finance a research atomic reactor for a foreign country, and more discussions about when the President's plane would be available to bring visiting officials to the United States, among them Prime Minister Nehru of India.

Numerous Odds and Ends.

6. In addition—there was only a small part of the day's work, the President's staff secretary, Andrew J. Goodpastor, had to route from the White House to the various departments and agencies a vast number of communications on all kinds of things—a complaint from a citizen against allied acts of violence in the Mediterranean; an appeal from a feed manufacturer in Chicago for drought relief in Iowa; a complaint from a citizen that he couldn't get a federal job, and a proposal to send a high school band and chorus overseas on a goodwill tour.

Anyone who studies the flow of work in "the White House office" will soon understand what President Wilson meant by saying "the office of the president is so much greater than any man could honestly imagine himself to be that the most he can do is to look grave enough and self-possessed enough to seem to fill it."

In the first of these articles, the work that cannot be delegated to the President's staff is enumerated, but in addition there is a great deal of work that can and does go on regardless of the President's absence from the White House.

56 Agencies, Departments.

The duties and responsibilities of the presidency have grown as vigorously as the growth of the nation itself. In 1790, under President Washington, there were nine executive departments, each doing fairly simple duties. This had grown to only 11 under President Lincoln in 1864. Today, President Eisenhower is responsible for 56 agencies and departments, many of them much larger than the whole federal executive establishment in the nineteenth century.

In 1789, President Washington approved 27 laws and three executive orders; in 1955, Mr. Eisenhower signed 390 public laws, 490 private laws, 65 executive orders and 42 proclamations.

Similarly, in 1789, Washington transmitted 20 military and 65 civilian nominations to the Senate, while last year, Mr. Eisenhower sent 237,467 military and 3219 civilian nominations. The civilian personnel of the Federal Government in 1789 was 1000, the military 1300. Today the civilian personnel is about 2,371,421, and the military 2,935,107.

One Secretary for Washington.

President Washington had one full-time secretary, Lawrence Lewis, his nephew.

Today, the "White House office"—as distinguished from the executive office of the President, which includes the Bureau of the Budget, and several other large "arms of the presidency"—numbers 398 persons with an annual budget of $3,375,000.

Who runs this vast establishment? Where did they come from? And how good are they? The central figure in the coordination and direction of "the office" is Adams. His principal assistants are Gen. Wilton P. Persons, who as Adams' deputy, worries primarily about legislation; is a threat to major "secretsaries," Bernard Shanley, who keeps the appointments and directs the flow of people in and out of the President's office; James C. Hagerty, who deals with the press, and Goodpastor, who keeps the right papers going to their proper destination.

The core of this White House staff moved right in with the President from his campaign train in 1952. This was true of Adams, Persons, Shanley and Hagerty. It was also true of two of the President's main administrative assistants, Gabriel Hauge, a magazine writer who wrote speeches in the 1952 campaign, and Fred Seaton, a Nebraska newspaper publisher, who recently moved from the Interior.

Others on the campaign train

WILTON PERSONS

BERNARD SHANLEY

who are now in the White House are Kevin McCann, a 1952 speech writer who is doing the same job as a special assistant; the military aide to the President, Col. Robert L. Schulz, who was with Gen. Eisenhower in Paris and at Columbia University, and Maxwell M. Rabb, a Boston lawyer, who worked with Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. on the campaign train and is now secretary to the Eisenhower Cabinet.

The two innovations President Eisenhower has brought to the functioning of "the White House office" are (1) a much clearer line of authority and delegation of authority to and through Adams, and (2) the introduction of a corps of special assistants to the President on special subjects (disarmament, foreign affairs, foreign economic policy, etc.).

Both are still controversial, probably because they are new. There is general agreement that Adams has produced a tidier and more efficient administration of the White House staff, and during the President's illnesses, he has been both a rallying point and a source of continuity for the whole administration.

Has Vast Powers.

Even his critics in this political community, who are numerous, agree that he is a diligent, clear-headed man of character. However, he is exercising vast powers beyond the scrutiny of Congress in a position where he is accountable only to the President. The question is whether he is establishing precedents which other men, of lesser character, might exercise in the absence of his critics.

Murray Again Urges U.S. to Build Reactors

He Differs With Strauss Over Relying Only on Private Power Firms.

By ANTHONY LEWIS

The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, June 19. ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSIONER THOMAS E. MURRAY made another urgent appeal yesterday for Government construction of large atomic power reactors in this country.

He thus sharpened his long-standing dispute with AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss and the other commissioners. The official AEC peacetime atomic program calls for government construction of only small test power reactors, leaving industrial-scale reactors to private firms.

"The present prospect of getting any substantial quantity of industrial atomic power in this country by 1960 is very gloomy and getting more gloomy every day," Murray said in a statement to the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee.

Major Assertions.

He made these major assertions:

1. "The Government has prematurely abdicated to private industry the primary responsibility for building large power reactors."

2. The major types of reactors now envisaged have each been "staked out by individual companies or groups," and development work is being left to them. These firms have made no promises as to when they might actually build their reactors.

3. The Government should build "several large power reactors." They should be placed at AEC production plants, to supply electricity there "thus eliminating the issue of public versus private power."

Murray conceded that there may be no economic demand for atomic power in this country, but he said an immediate construction program is necessary to give the United States world leadership in the peaceful atom.

"It is a tragic mistake for this nation to base its atomic power program primarily on its own economic interests," Murray said. "To do this is to fail to recognize the vast political and humanitarian implications of atomic energy throughout the world."

Unwarranted Fear.

"The fact that we are taking this course is the result of fear—fear by private industry that it will be out of business."

U.S. Not a Nation of 'Softies' But It Could Be, Nixon Warns Participation Is Aim in Physical Fitness Program, He Tells Conference on Well-Being of Youth.

By LEONARD BUDER

The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 19. VICE PRESIDENT RICHARD NIXON told the President's conference on fitness of American youth that, contrary to the pessimism often expressed, "we are not a nation of softies." He warned, however, that the nation could become soft, "if proper attention is not given to the trend of the time, which is toward the invention of all sorts of gadgetry to make life easy, and in so doing to reduce the opportunity for normal physical, health-giving exercise."

Nixon spoke at the opening session of the White House-sponsored conference at the Naval Academy here yesterday. The Vice President is serving as chairman of the program, which is being attended by 150 presidents of national organizations and others concerned with the well-being of youth.

Nixon extended to the conference the greetings of President Eisenhower, who had originally planned to attend, and added:

"I saw him this morning and I can tell from the reports of the doctors, and his great spirit confirms the opinion, that he will soon be out of the hospital and be physically fit to carry out the hardest job in the world."

Cites Lack of Facilities.

In his keynote address, Nixon called attention to the following statements, which he said should be a matter of concern to all Americans:

Less than 50 per cent of the boys and girls in high schools have physical education.

Ninety-one per cent of the nation's 150,000 elementary schools have no gymnasium.

Ninety per cent of the elementary schools have less than the recommended five acres of land necessary for essential play areas.

Only 1200 of the 17,000 communities in the United States have full-time recreation leadership.

Less than 5 per cent of the nation's youth have had the opportunity to enjoy the experience of camping and outdoor living.

Forty per cent of those who entered the armed forces during World War II were unable to swim as far as 50 feet. (Drownings between the ages of 4 and 44 are second only to motor vehicles in accidental deaths, he noted.)

Participation Is Objective.

Pointing up the need for greater fitness, the Vice President declared that "the objective of an adequate physical fitness program can be summed up in one word—participation—participation on the part of

Then the Westinghouse compressor, developed in over 20 years' experience, was compared to the compressor used in nearly half of all home air conditioners. Check these results, too.

Four-Way Saving for Homeowners!

When you buy the luxury, comfort, and health that air conditioning can give your entire family—get the most for your money. Westinghouse saves for you these four ways: 1. You save on initial cost; Westinghouse units are priced below competition. 2. You save, thanks to Westinghouse Extra-Reserve Capacity; in many cases, you can install a Westinghouse 3-ton unit where often a 5-ton competitive unit would be needed. 3. You save on operating costs, thanks to Westinghouse efficiency. 4. You save on maintenance; many Westinghouse commercial units are still functioning quietly and efficiently after 20 years of summer operation. You are protected by a five-year warranty.

Look at These Comparative Tests of Typical Units:

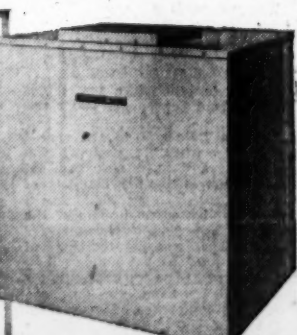

Capacity	Operating Cost Ratio
Westinghouse Air Conditioner.....37,000 BTU/Hour	Westinghouse Air Conditioner.....1.00
Brand A.....34,300 BTU/Hour	Brand A.....1.02
Brand B.....29,400 BTU/Hour	Brand B.....1.20
Brand C.....26,700 BTU/Hour	Brand C.....1.22
Brand D.....25,100 BTU/Hour	Brand D.....1.30

Look at This Test of the Westinghouse Compressor Compared to a Compressor Used in nearly half of all Air Conditioners made:

Westinghouse Waterless Air Conditioner Compressor	Compressor Used on nearly half of all Air Conditioners made
Capacity.....41,300 BTU/Hour	31,300 BTU/Hour
Efficiency.....11.5 BTU/Hour/Watt	9.32 BTU/Hour/Watt

Test Conditions: Condensing Temperature.....110° F.
Evaporating Temperature.....40° F.
Suction Gas Temperature.....65° F.

Test Conclusions:
Westinghouse has 32% more cooling capacity than nearly half of all air conditioners made. It costs 23.4% less per 1,000 BTU of cooling capacity delivered to operate the Westinghouse unit.

ACU: installs indoors or out; uses no water; connects to furnace ducts.

Compare These Features:

- Uses no water—saves on cost, installing, and maintenance.
- Installs indoors or out; easy occasional maintenance checks.
- Remote control—works on your furnace thermostat.
- Reserve capacity—cools on hottest days, even during big parties or laundry or cooking.
- Quiet; acoustically insulated.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Name and address must accompany every letter, but on request will not be published. Letters not exceeding 200 words will receive preference.

Rep. Karsten on the Arch

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I read your editorial regarding the Riverfront Arch.

Recently, I addressed a communication to Senator Clinton Anderson as acting chairman of the United States Territorial Expansion Memorial Commission requesting that a meeting be called to discuss the Saarinen arch. I am the one Congressional member from Missouri on the Commission.

This is not a new suggestion, for I had previously taken the matter up with the late Senator Barkley, who before his death was giving consideration to the possibility of eliminating restrictions in the law.

In my opinion, it would be most desirable if the Commission could adopt a resolution recommending the repeal of the restrictions which prohibit the arch. While the Commission has no power to report legislation, the adoption of a formal resolution would undoubtedly have some weight in House and Senate.

In the years I have been in Washington, I have never made it a policy to secure the prior approval of my colleagues for letters I may have occasion to write, or suggestions I may make, in the conduct of my official duties.

My colleagues do not always agree with me, and the Republicans generally don't. During the last 23 years, I have written over a million letters on almost every conceivable subject, from farmers' bulletins to the Saarinen arch. In no case have I ever requested the permission or approval of my colleagues in advance of writing a single letter.

Notwithstanding this policy, had I for a moment suspected my good friends, Mr. Curtis and Mrs. Sullivan, would share a different view in this important matter, I would have informed them of my continued efforts to secure a meeting of the Commission for the purpose of discussing the Saarinen arch.

In my opinion, if this matter is too long delayed, instead of an historic shrine on the riverfront we may wind up with a Federal park or something else. Rumors are again current about stadiums and other utilitarian structures which would commercialize the project.

I agree with you that developing the riverfront without the arch would be like laying out St. Peter's Square without its Cathedral. It is my view the sooner that Congress acts affirmatively in expressing its intention for a fitting Memorial, the better.

Accurate and Interesting

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I read with pleasure and gratification John Keasler's interesting article about our correctional institution at Seagoville, Tex.

There have been many articles written by newspaper men about that experiment in penology, but none that seemed to me to catch the spirit and atmosphere and objectives of the institution better than Mr. Keasler's.

The People Befogged

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I want to tell you a few things I enjoy about your paper and a few I don't.

Being a Democrat to the core I resent the fine big write-up you gave the President—a sick man, but covered snugly by the blankets of expediency.

You had better read some of the small print in your own columns. They let out a few truths now and then—Reston, Stokes—about how handy Hagerty is with hand-outs for the President's hand.

A world conference of world-shaking affairs between the President and Dulles and Adenauer lasting 10 minutes, eh? Whenever one picks up a paper and sees the brink so close—and "we the people" so befogged by headlines—it is pitiful.

No Sale for Farmers

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
To all the faithful patrons and customers who have been coming to our farmers' market at Broadway and O'Fallon street for the last 25 years, we wish to bring to your attention that the Mark Twain highway will take this lot.

At the beginning of this year a committee of farmers made a call at the St. Louis City Hall in order to obtain permission to use a new lot location at Broadway and St. Louis avenue. We were reasonably assured at that time, that we could use the lot for a market. The farmers went ahead and paid $75 each to rent stands.

Now, lo and behold, right at our market season the police refuse to let the farmers stand on this lot and sell the vegetables and fruit they have grown on their own farms in the surrounding areas of Missouri and Illinois. Is this politics or what?

How to Help the Aid Bill

The White House can help the lagging foreign aid bill by responding promptly and favorably to the request of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for a thorough review of the effectiveness of the United States' mutual security program.

The bill, now reported to the Senate floor with $702,000,000 more than the House approved, also carries a proposal of Senators George of Georgia and Mansfield of Montana for $300,000 for "exhaustive studies." The purpose of these thoughtful Democratic Senators would be to find out how the foreign aid provided by United States taxpayers "serves," can be made to serve or does not serve the national interest.

The George-Mansfield amendment would put in the bill a proposal made earlier in the session by Secretary of State Dulles on behalf of the Eisenhower Administration. Secretary Dulles's proposal was that a group of citizens be appointed to review the foreign aid program to observe and report on its effectiveness. If more White House emphasis had been put on this study, perhaps the Administration's foreign aid program would not have been cut so heavily in Congress.

That is water over the dam. If the President hopes to get the bill through the Senate with two thirds of the House's cut restored, he will need to reassure a good many doubting Senators. To influence the Senate and the House—and the latter may be disinclined to restore the $700,000,000 even if it is voted by the Senate—the President would do well to endorse warmly the George-Mansfield study idea.

A counting of noses shows that every vote will be needed for the foreign aid program. Senator Bridges of New Hampshire, senior Republican, has announced that he is against the restoration and that, in fact, he favors a cut under the sum voted by the House. The G.O.P. Senate Leader, Knowland of California, has conducted a check in his ranks to find that only about 20 Republicans out of 47 in the Senate can be expected to restore even part of the cut.

This means that aside from the group of Republicans who issued a joint statement in support of the President's aid program last week only about 10 others can be counted on. Certainly the President deserves better backing than that on the Republican side.

According to the Associated Press, the Democratic situation is about the same. Senator Johnson of Texas, the Majority Leader, is said to be able to count on only a like number for "any substantial increase" over the House's authorization total.

So firm a friend of foreign aid as The Washington Post has said that the House cut "is an ominous portent of what may happen next year unless there is more assurance that the aid program on which Americans are asked to spend their dollars is fully abreast of the times." As The Post says, the vote in the House "argues the compelling need for an independent study of foreign aid."

The Milwaukee Journal, another friend of mutual security, underscores this thought when it writes: "What's needed, pretty obviously, is a sound, comprehensive, nonpartisan study of the whole problem," and then adds that "the President and his administration had better do something about it quickly." The Manchester Guardian of England, in a perceptive editorial, says with respect to NATO: "The futility of the present half-force in Europe needed to be explained more widely. Sooner or later the Government will have to admit that the old basis of military planning is defective."

These are the concerns of friends. They are not designed to give comfort to the Brickers, Jenners, McCarthys and Bridges who want to scuttle foreign aid, abandon NATO and pull out of the U.N. These comments then are all the more significant. We hope to see the White House demonstrate in its reassessment that it recognizes the need for economic assistance and expert help as against straight military aid and that it is willing to keep the mutual security program under continuous review.

Let us hope that the President's progress toward recovery will enable him very soon to take more of a hand in this situation. Mr. Eisenhower's long overseas experience and his personal knowledge of world affairs ought to give him a special competence in handling the foreign aid problem at this critical stage.

State, City—Now County

The Board of Aldermen has taken a commendable and constructive step toward really doing something about the transit problem. It has approved a $140,000 appropriation to cover the city's share of the cost of the pending metropolitan transportation survey.

This comprehensive examination of the area's transit-traffic problems, in an attempt to determine how best to solve them, already has attracted firm support from the Missouri State Highway Department. The state agency has agreed to finance the $235,000 origin-and-destination phase of the study.

All that is necessary now is for St. Louis county to put up its share of the cost. Experts then can be put to work seeking definitive answers to what is perhaps the metropolitan area's most pressing local problem. Supervisor Matthews and the County Council surely do not want to hold up the parade.

Hold That Focus

J. Edgar Hoover, about whose work as a police officer we have had occasion to say kind words, has not become one of our favorite authors by his latest efforts in that field. The director of the FBI contributes to a symposium on Russia's new anti-Stalin line published by the House Committee on Un-American Activities under the title "The Great Pretense."

"When," writes Mr. Hoover, "the Communist smirk begins to change to a smile, as is the case right now, we would be well advised to refocus our sights. Behind those changing spots, the same bad blood still flows through the leopard's veins."

While agreeing with what Author Hoover is getting at, we disagree with how he has got at it. To start at the end and work back, we doubt that Mr. Hoover stands on sound zoological grounds in referring to the Russian bear as a leopard. Bears are members of the family Ursidae, order Carnivora, while leopards are of the Felis pardus. One can see at a glance what mischief might come of getting them confused.

Nor does Mr. Hoover appear to tread on any firmer physiological ground in referring to the leopard's blood. He calls it "bad blood," standard idiom for "hostility," and therefore so far, so good; but when he implies that there might be some connection between whether the leopard's blood is good or bad and whether or not it has spots, he becomes—as they say in Washington—controversial.

It is also our painful duty to suggest to Mr.

Hoover that leopards do not change their spots. In fact, if there is any one thing which leopards are more famous for than any other, it is for not changing their spots.

As a parting counsel, we would urge Mr. Hoover against refocusing his sights when the Communist smirk begins to change to a smile. If he had them in focus on the smirk (and such is our confidence in Mr. Hoover that we do not care to entertain the idea that he did not) changing would only—but here he is probably already way ahead of us.

Let Author Hoover not feel dismayed by these minor lapses in his writing, however. Every man to his own trade, we always say. Some of our favorite authors couldn't catch a criminal.

Alibis or Action on Lobbying?

Can the Senate's special lobby investigating committee be more interested in an alibi for Congress than in disclosing the pressure of money and influence for the enactment of legislation hardly in accord with the general welfare?

The remarks of Senator McClellan of Arkansas, chairman of the committee created after the attempted campaign gift of $2500 to Senator Case in connection with the natural gas bill, certainly are cause enough for asking this question.

McClellan said testimony given the committee showed that the Natural Gas and Oil Resources Committee had spent $1,753,000 to convince the public that federal regulation of natural gas rates is undesirable. Representatives of this lobbying group said they inspired a flood of mail to members of Congress instead of approaching these men directly. And one of their "public relations" men said that, given enough money, they could "put across" any special interest legislation not obviously vicious.

Surely Senator McClellan and his associates have been in public life long enough to be familiar with such high pressure methods and the mail they produce. Recognizing the undesirability of a bill, do they vote for it just because they get an extra sack or two of mail? Surely they can calculate how many of their constituents were not "educated" to write in its favor. Would they vote for a measure to the disadvantage of the letter-writers themselves? Is not Congress the ideal forum for enlightening the public and offsetting such a campaign?

It is a public service to alert the voters against such tactics, but it is a disgrace to imply that they "put over" legislation. It would have been wiser to join Senator Anderson of New Mexico in pointing out that, under our eroded tax laws, the public actually pays 52 per cent of the cost of such propaganda. That is something for Congress to think about.

Congress might also think about the foot-dragging, over-cautious way that the lobby investigation is being dragged out. Is it just to fade away, to be forgotten as other events come into the forefront of the news?

They Mean Business in Carondelet

Why has the youth program of the Carondelet Sunday Morning Athletic Club proved so successful? Since its founding 12 years ago, the club has absorbed the energies of some 3000 South Side youngsters, and this has led to a remarkable record: In all that time, so far as club officers know, not one of their boys has ever been in trouble.

Like most organizations in the youth field, the club tries to attract boys at an early age and then keep them continuously interested in sports. Currently, for example, it operates 22 teams in six sports from a new $33,000 headquarters on Loughborough avenue, just south of Carondelet Park.

But what gives direction to the whole is the conscientious adult leadership it enjoys. Some 75 adults attempt to make the program interesting and attractive. And then by explanation and example—mostly by example—they put life into such abstractions as good sportsmanship and fair play. The adult leaders contribute up to 18 hours a week apiece to the work.

Another important factor in the C.S.M.A.C.'s flourishing success is the support of the whole Carondelet community. Financial and moral, help comes not merely from business men and parents, but from just about everybody. And that is probably the real secret of the club's success: The people of Carondelet not only want it to succeed; they have made it their business to see that it does succeed.

Congress's Togetherness

One of the most lyrical congressional outbursts in quite some time now may be credited to Representative Craig Hosmer of California. Mr. Hosmer likes Togetherness, the watchword of McCall's, the magazine of Togetherness. He likes it very much, and he likes McCall's Editor Otis Lee Wiese's definition of Togetherness as "the trend toward closer family relationships that is the hope of our time." Carried away by this general suffusion of good will, Representative Hosmer declares it to be his matured and deliberate conviction that "Congress is the epitome of Togetherness."

Well, now, that depends. In fact, it depends quite a good deal, and occasionally even more than that. Oftentimes, if we may say so without offense to Mr. Hosmer, McCall's, or Upper or Lower House, Congress is considerable of an epitome of Contrariness, a trend which is no particular hope of our time or anybody else's. In the case of budding presidential candidates, Congress may epitomize a sizeable amount of Apathy. But if there is any one thing Congress is more an epitome of than any other, the chips being down, it is probably Getreellectness. On that proposition, at least, there really is considerable Togetherness in Congress, after all.

Not Ready for Quite a While

The Department of Justice's request for a 30-day extension of time in answering the Dixon-Yates syndicate's suit for $3,500,000 in damages is a surprising and puzzling development.

The suit was filed six months ago. Government lawyers have thus had all of six months in which to prepare their answer. Actually, they have had longer than that, for it was evident that the suit would be brought when President Eisenhower canceled, 11 months ago, the contract he had earlier, by executive fiat, ordered the Atomic Energy Commission and TVA to make with the private syndicate for a power supply. The New York Times reported from Washington as late as June 9 that "indications are that the answer will go on in time."

Has not a year and more been ample and better than ample time in which to prepare the Government's reply? It must be hoped that the further delay signifies no reluctance to bring up the defense. The Dixon-Yates scheme, including the damage suit which has been its only product, will be an issue in the presidential campaign leading up to the November elections. Democrats will portray it as an effort to scuttle TVA, Republicans as a blow struck in behalf of private enterprise.

OVER ONE BIG HUMP

The Mirror
Public Opinion

Veteran of 30 years' experience offers guideposts to young men entering profession; first rule is to remember council's supremacy and responsibility to people; open eyes and ears, closed mouth, prescribed for council meetings; when in doubt, procrastinate.

L. P. Cookingham, City Manager, Kansas City, Mo., in Public Management

During the three decades that I have been a city manager, 45 young men have served as interns and assistants in my office. Subsequently 29 of these young men became city managers and 21 are now serving as managers in 16 states.

Occasionally, when one of these men takes his first manager position, I write a friendly letter to him to review a few of the practices and principles which I have found to be successful guideposts in practicing municipal administration.

These guideposts are:
1. Never forget that the council, to the best of its ability, expresses the will of the people. There will be times when you will not understand why the council takes certain actions, but you will find that the council is generally right and the members express public opinion as they see it and as they learn it from their constituents.

2. Formal acts of the council become public policy, and you as city manager must always do your best to translate these policies into action. You should do this in a manner to best realize the intent of the council. In some cases you may not agree with the policy, but it is your duty as city manager to carry out the policy to the best of your ability unless it is illegal or fraudulent.

3. You have to "give and take" all along the way, but when you must give ground to the "left," be sure that when you return toward center you go to the "right" as far as possible.

4. Remember that the average fellow with whom you talk, whether he is a member of the council, one of the city's staff, or a citizen, does not know as much about the job of municipal administration as you know now or will know in the years ahead; so don't get too far beyond him, for he will not be able to follow you.

5. Be as humble as the humblest with whom you deal, and subdue by your patience those who are inclined to be too arrogant.

6. Lead those whom you contact—members of the council, subordinate employees, and citizens—into the proper channel by tactful suggestion rather than by too persuasive argument. Make them feel that they have had a major part in making the decisions.

7. Don't let any problems frighten you, for there is a logical solution to each one you have to face. If they seem too tough for today, let them go until tomorrow whenever possible, for then they will seem simpler. The problems which concern you today may be completely forgotten in a week.

8. Treat everyone in the city, friend or foe, as if your success depended on the manner in which you handled his problem.

9. Get acquainted with your employees as rapidly as possible, and take time to let them show you what they have in their departments and how they do their work. (If you do not approve, go slowly in making drastic changes—the results will be much better and the improvements more lasting.)

10. Give credit where credit belongs, and always give the council all the credit you can. They have to be re-elected.

11. Never forget that you are a servant of the people, and instill that philosophy in each of your employees. If you find one who cannot understand this philosophy, remove him, for he will be no good to you or to the city. If you ever get the idea that you are a ruler, you, also, will be no good to the city or to the form of government.

12. Work hard to gain and keep the full confidence of the council and the respect of your department heads, and your job will be easier.

13. Don't let the "cranks" worry you too much, for if you do they will outlive you.

14. Be sure to develop good press relations; give all the time necessary to help the press, radio, and other media to keep the public informed, because any one of these media can ruin your program with very little effort.

15. Keep your eyes and ears open and your mouth shut during council meetings. I have known more managers who have talked themselves out of jobs than into jobs.

16. Don't pursue your program at a faster pace than the council, the employees, and public can follow. You will always see plenty of things to do and have plenty of changes to make, but be sure that everyone understands why you are doing this and how it will benefit the city or its government before you proceed.

17. Never put in writing anything you can't prove. Someday someone might embarrass you with it.

18. Always take the chip off the complainant's shoulder before you let him go. This will be a hard task in some cases, but use every resource at your command to make friends out of potential enemies.

19. Always remember that you will never get in trouble or be embarrassed by doing what is right. You may lose your job for standing up for what you think is right, but you'll always get another and better job. Besides, you will be able to sleep soundly every night.

20. Keep your personal contacts with other city managers. The greatest compliment you can pay them is to ask how they handle a certain problem.

21. Always think of the city in which you work as your city. Participate in civic movements for its betterment, and above all, live in your city.

22. Keep a framed copy of "The City Manager's Code of Ethics" in your office. Read it once in a while. Always abide by it.

Panty Raiders

From The Chicago Tribune

Much has been said in defense of the fraternity system at large universities—how it teaches young men a code of honor and how it helps the university administration maintain discipline.

It is fair to ask, therefore, what happened to the fraternity system at the University of California, where mobs of students invaded sorority houses, stripped girls, knocked down a house-mother, stole clothing and caused heavy damage. The majority appear to have been fraternity men.

All mobs have leaders; they don't just happen. The university authorities ought to be able to discover who the leaders were and who committed the worst acts of violence. If several hundred rioters were dismissed from the university, there would be no more outrages of this kind. A college administration that cannot deal effectively with this kind of outrage plainly isn't competent to run a college.

Red Jade and Prince Lien

A HOUSE IN PEKING, by Robert Payne. (Doubleday, 320 pp., $1.75.)

Red Jade had gorgeous red hair. She was the Manchou Emperor's favorite concubine. Prince Lien saved the Emperor's life and was given five wishes in reward. He wished for Red Jade—and got her! Then they lived happily ever after—until the plots of the White Lotus Society, underground conspirators of the old Ming Dynasty, brought death and disaster crashing down on the Mandarins.

Is this familiar? Indeed yes, Marco Polo started these tales of the Orient's lotus land with his enthralling yarns about emeralds as big as ox-carts and beautiful slave-girls with almond eyes and the fabulous Kublai Khan. The enchanting dream has never died.

Lafcadio Hearn embroidered it in a legendary fantasy, replete with evil spirits, lovers who died star-cursed, Oriental tales themselves have made it sparkle like the morning dew in medieval Far Eastern versions of court intrigue. Witness Lady Murasaki's "Tale of Genji." And that poetic daughter of a poet who married a poet, Judith Gautier, used feminine imagination and poetic intuition to establish once and for all the hall mark of the Western novel of Eastern love. In "The Imperial Dragon," almost a century ago, raven-haired Judith created the magnificent court where silk-clad eunuchs prostrated themselves before the golden-skinned girls who whiled away the nights of the Emperor of heaven.

Payne's chief contribution to the genre is the device of the sleeping beauty undrugged save for her lover's adoring (and cataloging) gaze. This technique of naked description, borrowed from today's historical boudoir pieces, is calculated to lend a judicious flavoring of the risqué to an otherwise unimaginative plot. There are a half-dozen such occasions in which the charms of dozing concubine and the napping slave-girl are dilated upon in overblown prose.

COLLIER FORD.

Story of Two Worlds

THE SUDDEN STRANGERS, by William E. Barrett. (Doubleday, 314 pp., $1.75.)

Subtitled "A Story of Two Worlds—and of a Path Between," this novel at least presents an unusual family situation. Bart McBride, a Cornell graduate who has been playing professional baseball, returns to New York at the end of the season. Here his mother, Dorinda Daly, whose playing season is just beginning, is a famed musical comedy star. Bart checks in at the Algonquin and sees his mother when her busy schedule permits.

It is a period of unrest and search for Bart. Getting the information at last from Dorinda, he looks up the father who had deserted him as a baby and who is now a lay brother in an upstate monastery. Bart has another problem that might be called the obverse of this one, in that during his Korean hitch a girl has written him to announce that her romance with Bart was productive, but has always been evasive about the whereabouts of the child.

The maturing Bart has a natural desire to understand his father and to see and care for his own son of whose existence he is not even certain. These quests lead to complications, still, as the subtitle implies, Bart finds a "path between."

The author has rigged up an interesting plot and leavened it with some fairly witty lines. Perhaps the only shortcoming is that the characters are brushed in too lightly and lack intensity and depth. Most summer reader-ship, though, will be pleasantly aware of this. WILL WHARTON.

Oil Men Work 'Inside' Government

WASHINGTON. HOW POLITICALLY POWERFUL big oil is in Washington, and how it exerts that power upon Congress, the executive branch of government and regulatory agencies to try to get what it wants, is again being revealed here in a current Senate investigation and in other developments.

This is an aftermath of the fight a few months back in the Senate over the Harris-Fulbright bill which would have exempted natural gas producers from regulation by the Federal Power Commission and thus nullified a Supreme Court decision holding that such regulation is imposed by the 1938 Natural Gas Act.

Douglas

That bill, you will recall, was killed by President Eisenhower's veto which he exercised, to the surprise of the industry, because of the "arrogant" activities of the oil and gas lobby to put the measure over.

Finally, after many weeks, the special Senate Lobby investigating Committee that grew out of that episode is beginning to turn the light in public hearings on the last network of pressures organized to move the public and Congress.

No Taxes on Propaganda.

Among the instrumentalities was the so-called Natural Gas and Oil Resources Committee set up by the nation's biggest oil companies which is now shown to have spent $1,753,513 in a campaign of "education" against federal regulation. A total of $1,972,545 was collected from oil and gas companies.

The practice indicated among the oil companies was to charge their contributions to "business expenses" and deduct them from their income tax so that the Government and taxpayers helped to foot the bill for their campaign which, had the Harris-Fulbright bill become law, would also have cost natural gas consumers in higher rates.

Contacts With Congress.

The committee enlisted 2100 employees of oil companies to work with regional and state committees, without extra compensation, to arouse the public to bring pressure upon Congress against regulation.

The Senate committee was unable to get an estimate of what time and service of these people would amount to in dollars from Leonard F. McCollum of Houston, Tex., president of Continental Oil Co., who is chairman of the Natural Gas and Oil Resources Committee. This committee had interlocking connections with another committee, the General Gas Committee. Most of the major oil companies had members on each. Mr. McCollum said that the G.G.C. was supposed to carry on contact with members of Congress about the legislation, while his committee was confined to "education" activities, which was in conflict with the testimony here a few weeks ago by the chairman of the General Gas Committee, Maston Nixon, that his committee did not engage in any lobbying on the bill but also confined itself to dispensing information.

FPC Avoiding Its Duty?

But oil also had interlocking connections in the executive branch of Government on this issue. Though not brought up at the Senate committee hearings, an official of Continental Oil of which Mr. McCollum is president was an expert consultant for the so-called President's Committee on Energy Supplies and Resource Policies appointed by President Eisenhower in September, 1954.

The question of the influence of big oil with the Federal Power Commission, which is supposed to regulate the natural gas industry, was raised in the Senate a few days ago by Senator Paul H. Douglas, Democrat of Illinois, in a speech complaining about the way the FPC is dragging its feet in carrying out regulation of natural gas producers in accordance with the Phillips case which was handed down two years ago and which Congress failed to set aside when the President vetoed the Harris-Fulbright bill.

At a Slow Pace.

Referring to the slow pace of the commission, Senator Douglas said: "I would not like to think it is yielding or bending to the kind of industry pressures which were so evident during the debate on the natural gas bill in Congress and which are opposed both to the public interest and the clear duty of the commission under the law. But the results—so favorable to the industry and so harmful to consumers—speak for themselves."

It may be recalled that four of the five FPC members urged Congress to enact the Harris-Fulbright bill and relieve it of authority to regulate producers, so that it is understandable why it brings so little enthusiasm to this task which a majority of the Supreme Court thought important to consumers.

By MYLES STANDISH

"Paint Your Wagon," by composer Frederick Loewe and librettist Alan Jay Lerner, which was given its first St. Louis performance at Municipal Opera last night, never achieves the loveliness of their "Brigadoon," or the brilliance of their current Broadway sensation, "My Fair Lady," but it is a lively, lusty account of the California gold strike which makes a good evening's entertainment.

The 1951 Broadway musical, which never reached the American here, is particularly suited for the huge outdoor stage of the Forest Park Theater, and John Kennedy and his staff give it a first-rate big-scale production, which has verve and drive, and in which the casting is uniformly good, down even to the bit parts.

It has several songs which fall pleasantly on the ears, although none is haunting or overpowering—the melodious "Wand'ring Star," a couple of pretty if slightly love numbers in "I Talk to the Trees," and "Carino Mio," a lively ditty, "The Wheels of the Wagon," and a poetic one, "They Call the Wind Maria." It has a couple of dancing numbers which fairly burst with explosive energy. The book serves enough to propel the piece in its heartier aspects, although its wit is only occasional and its love story seems rather perfunctory—doesn't achieve real poignancy or deep tenderness. So if it has just missed on some of the qualities of a great musical, it is nevertheless a nice one to see, and the 7500 persons in last evening's crowd seemed to enjoy themselves.

Edwin Steffe, who can call the Forest Park stage his second home, made a robust, happy-go-lucky Ben Runson, who discovers gold while burying a pal, throws a town bearing his name, founds a fortune as the gold strike and the town finally peter out, and ends up going for the hills again. Not only did he have the necessary genial force, but his rich baritone was in good form for his half-dozen songs. His timbre was smooth, and he used it with dexterity. Christine Mathews was piquant and appealing as his daughter, Jennifer. Her presence in a town of 400 male causes much commotion. Tony Bavaar, in his original Broadway role of Julio, the Mexican boy, acted with intensity and showed a warm trend in the love songs.

There was a warm-up dance in which Nan McFarland, as the second wife of a Mormon who is auctioned off to Ben as the highest bidder, celebrates

Learning About Daniel Boone

MRS. FRANK GROOM KIRTZ, an instructor at Missouri Historical Society, opening summer classes for children yesterday with a talk on Daniel Boone, illustrated with an authentic musket and powder horn of the period. The classes, sponsored by Famous-Barr Co., are held at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays in Jefferson Memorial in Forest Park.

with the miners in Dutch's saloon, which was a warning of what was to come. When, in the first act finale, the dance-hall girls arrive in Rumson, the dance is acrobatic, frenetic, slightly ribald. But the opening of the second act is positively atomic in its frenzied action, its whirling, leaping, writhing bodies. That this tornado resulted in no casualties was a triumph, although one girl was hit on the shin by a thrown stool, and a dancer tripped jumping through his belt. The staging of these dances was some of the best work of this sort we've seen at Muncy Opera. Christine Mayer, Wana Allison and Val Buttigieg were the principal dancers.

Paul McGuire's settings were quite effective, particularly a cabin shrouded in a grove against a light sky. There was, incidentally, too much noise in scene changes behind the downstage partition which serves in lieu of a drop.

Among the actors who were quite capable in minor roles, such as Oliver Cliff, Susan Shaute, Roy Urhausen, Harry Weber, Vince Vernon, Joseph Cusack and Ruth Schumacher, we would have liked to have mentioned another, but he got stage fright at the last moment and stubbornly refused to come on. He was the burro Steffe was supposed to lead on in the closing scene. Probably he'll prove more tractable in one of the following performances through Sunday night, and, who knows, he may become another Francis.

MISS MARGARET ELIOT DIES IN EAST, SISTER OF POET

Miss Margaret D. Eliot, who was born in St. Louis and was a sister of the noted poet and dramatist, T. S. Eliot, was found dead yesterday in her apartment at Cambridge, Mass. She was 85 years old. Police said death was due to natural causes.

Miss Eliot lived here prior to about 1920, when her family moved to Cambridge. She was an 1890 graduate of Mary Institute, and was president of her class. She was a former member of the Cambridge Civic Association and the Cambridge Community Center.

T. S. Eliot, who also was born in St. Louis but now lives in England, visited his sister about two weeks ago. Surviving in addition to the brother is a sister, Miss Marian Eliot of Cambridge. Mrs. Leonard C. Martin of Webster Groves is a first cousin.

TWO TO RECEIVE MEDALS OF CHRISTIAN-JEWISH GROUP

Mrs. Charles Rice and Mrs. C. Oscar Lamy, members of the St. Louis board of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, will receive medals for their services to the organization at a private gathering this evening at Mrs. Rice's home, 1 Oak Knoll, Clayton.

Presentation will be made by Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president of the National Conference. Mrs. Lamy served for eight years as Catholic co-chairman on the board. Both she and Mrs. Rice are also members of the national board of directors.

"Through their personal devotion to the goals of the organization, they have been influential in enlarging the membership and influence of the local N.C.C.J.," Virgil L. Border, director of the local office, stated.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR SAMUEL A. O'NEAL

Special to the Post-Dispatch. WASHINGTON, June 19 — A requiem mass for Samuel A. O'Neal, former St. Louis newspaper man, was celebrated today at the Church of the Little Flower in nearby Maryland. Mr. O'Neal died Sunday of lung cancer.

In recent years he had been head of his own public relations firm. Before that he was director of publicity for the Democratic National Committee. Among the active pallbearers were Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and Representatives Sid Simpson of Illinois and A. S. Herlong Jr. of Florida. Former presidents of the National Press Club, of which Mr. O'Neal was president in 1944, were honorary pallbearers.

Burial will be in the family plot tomorrow at Boonville, Mo.

ARTHUR LIEBER JR. HEADS WORLD FEDERALISTS HERE

Arthur Lieber Jr., a certified public accountant, was elected president of the United World Federalists of St. Louis at a dinner meeting last night at Sportsmen's Inn, 7800 Clayton road.

Elected vice presidents were Henry S. Chadeayne, T. Ben Harris, Elieard B. Heffern and Louis T. Iglehart. Miss Eliza Rodevald was named treasurer and Mrs. Lyman L. Ross, secretary. Jerome Spingarn of Washington, representative of the organization in the nation's capital, discussed various aspects of the problem of disarmament.

THOMAS J. WATSON, HEAD OF I.B.M., DIES

Suffers Heart Attack at 82 — Active in Business Until Recently.

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—Thomas J. Watson, chairman of the board of the International Business Machines Corp., died of a heart attack today at Roosevelt Hospital. He was 82 years old.

Mr. Watson had been active until recently in the affairs of the business he built up from a comparatively small concern to a world-wide enterprise. He took part in its annual meeting April 24.

Recently he had complained of what appeared to be a digestive upset, and went to the hospital last Sunday from his summer home at New Canaan, Conn.

Members of his immediate family were with him when he died.

They included his wife and their four children, Thomas J. Watson Jr., president of I.B.M.; Arthur K. Watson, president of I.B.M. World Trade Corp.; Mrs. John N. Irwin II, of New York; and Mrs. Walker G. Buckner of Bronxville, N.Y.

In addition, he is survived by 15 grandchildren. Last May Mr. Watson stepped down as chief executive officer of I.B.M. and turned that job over to his son, Thomas J. Watson Jr. However, he continued on as chairman of the board, with the son as president.

Born in the village of Campbell, N.Y., Feb. 17, 1874, Mr. Watson attended Addison Academy, and the Elmira (N.Y.) School of Commerce for a year.

Then he went to work as a bookkeeper for a market in Painted Post, N.Y., but soon decided selling was his vocation. For two years he worked for a hardware dealer in the same village, selling musical instruments. Then he joined the National Cash Register Co. as a salesman in Buffalo. For several weeks he failed to make a sale. But when he hit his stride he moved fast.

He remained with the company for 18 years, rising to general sales manager. In the spring of 1914 he was chosen to head the Computing-Tabulating-Recording Co., which evolved into the International Business Machines Corp.

BRANCH SITES PICKED FOR COUNTY LIBRARY

Selection of building locations for a $1,750,000 expansion program of the St. Louis County Library has been completed, it was announced today, following approval last night of a special permit to allow construction of a headquarters and central library on Lindbergh boulevard south of Clayton road in Ladue.

Unanimous approval was given by the Ladue City Council after a public hearing at which Mahlon B. Wallace Jr., president of the library board, said the proposed structure would be a "fine adjunct" to Ladue public schools. That view was seconded in a letter from Richard S. Jones, vice president of the Ladue Board of Education.

The proposed building will include administrative offices, reading rooms, an auditorium for 300 persons and storage space for the principal part of the library's book collection. The building, to cost $1,000,000, will be constructed on an eight-acre site.

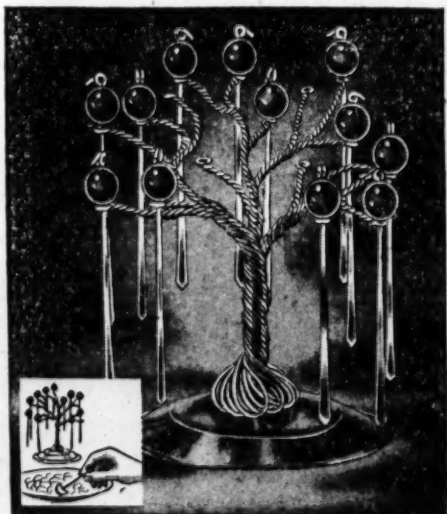

The library's present headquarters at 6814 Natural Bridge road, Beverly Hills, will be remodeled to serve as one of four branches, Wallace said. Sites have been acquired for two other branches, one near the intersection of Tesson Ferry road and Lindbergh boulevard, and the other near the intersection of Old Halls Ferry road and Highway 61-66. A theater at 10267 St. Charles road, St. Ann, has been acquired for the fourth branch.

Construction will be financed by a 10-cent increase in the library tax approved by county voters in April 1953. Two other branches already are in operation in Overland and Kinloch.

A request for a special permit to allow construction of a church at Watson and Des Peres roads by the congregation of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church was taken under advisement by the Ladue council after two residents objected.

Mantle Hits His 25th Homer as Yankees Tame Tigers

Redlegs Move to Top Spot

NEW YORK, June 19 (INS)—Mickey Mantle hit another one—and if you're tired of hearing that, just imagine how those poor beleaguered American League pitchers feel about it.

Mickey's twenty-fifth home run of the season yesterday was another of those super mantle specials—the second ball hit out of Detroit's Briggs Stadium since it was remodeled in 1937.

And the kid from Commerce, Okla., picked a strategic spot to unload it, too—with two men on base in the eighth inning off the Tigers' Paul Foytack to break a 4-all tie and give the New York Yankees a 7-4-4 victory.

Mantle's homer, socked into the teeth of a strong wind, bounced off the roof of the double-decked right field stands, 370 feet from the plate and 110 above the ground level. Only other ball to be knocked clear out of the park was hit by Ted Williams in 1939.

And if you're keeping track of such things, Mantle now is 12 games and 12 days ahead of Babe Ruth's record 1927 pace when he hit 60 homers. The

MONDAY'S STARS

PITCHING—WARREN SPAHN, Braves—Tripped Pirates out of National League lead with an eight-hitter for his fifth victory 3-2, striking out seven and walking none.

HITTING—MICKEY MANTLE, Yankees—Became second man (Ted Williams was first) to send a home run out of Detroit's Briggs Stadium, poling his twenty-fifth of the season over the right field stands with two on to break 4-all tie and beat Tigers 7-4.

Babe didn't get No. 25 until the seventeenth game of the season. There were other garden variety homers by Wayne Belardi and Ray Boone of Detroit and Gil McDougald of the Yankees. Boone's represented the only run off Don Larsen, the winning pitcher, who relieved Bob Turley with the bases full and one across in the third inning.

The Yankees "needed" the victory, too, because the second-place Chicago White Sox downed Baltimore, 5 to 2, to remain 3½ games behind the American League leaders. Kansas City snapped its virtual last-place tie with Washington, defeating the Senators, 4 to 3.

Cincinnati replaced Pittsburgh atop the scrambled National League standings. The Redlegs shoved over three runs in the tenth inning to trim Philadelphia, 7 to 4, while Milwaukee downed the Pirates, 3 to 2, in the only other game scheduled.

The Redlegs now are a half-game ahead of the runners for Pirates and only one and a half better than the fifth-place Braves.

Roy McMillan's bases-loaded fly, which dropped at Gran Hamner's feet in short right center, opened the gates for the Redlegs' big tenth. Harvey Haddix was the victim, while Brooks Lawrence, who pitched the last two innings in relief, picked up his eighth win without a loss.

Rajabian's hit his twelfth homer of the season for the Redlegs. It was No. 87 for Cincinnati's bulky boys.

Joe Adcock's two-run double in the first off loser Ron Kline, working with only two days' rest, and an unearned run in the third on Dick Groat's fumble gave the Braves a 3-for-3 record under new Manager Fred Haney. Roy Race pitched scoreless ball in relief after the third.

Jack Shepard's fourth-inning homer accounted for the only scoring off winner Warren Spahn (4-6). The veteran southpaw got stronger as he went along, retiring the last 10 men in order and notching four of his seven strikeouts in the last three innings.

Jim Wilson won his ninth game of the season against three losses as he tamed his old Oriole teammates with seven hits. The White Sox collected 10 off loser Bill Wright and two successors, giving their suddenly awakened attack 45 safeties in the last three games.

The Rock Takes a Sock

ROCKY MARCIANO, who once aspired to be a major league catcher and had a tryout with the Chicago Cubs, will play baseball with the Chicago police department team. The retired heavyweight champion took his cuts at the ball in preparation for a benefit game with the Glenview Naval Air Station June 29. Proceeds of the game will go to widows and children of policemen killed in line of duty. The batting practice catcher is JOE ASPLUND.

Sporty Joe Seeks Fourth Fairmount Win

It will be a battle of previous winners, when the seven horse field goes to the post in the six furlong sixth race at Fairmount Park, tonight.

There's Sporty Joe, which will be seeking its fourth victory of the meeting. Lonoke Flash, Signal Code and Seashore have scored two wins. The others entered are Flying Jet, Sir Galla Bill and Mickey D.

Sporty Joe, Seashore, Sir Galla Bill and Lonoke Flash will carry top weight of 119 pounds each.

A breakdown of the wagering on the $15,000 added Fairmount Handicap won by Styrruner last Saturday night, shows that in addition to the $9489 to win, a total of $3225 to place and $1803 to show was wagered on the Mrs. A. M. Creech runner. The show pool on Styrruner was the largest bet on any horse.

Here's how they bet on the race:

PCC Council Orders Review of Penalties for Illegal Aid

Calls for Equitable Treatment

BERKELEY, Calif., June 19 (AP)—Penalties assessed the University of Washington and U.C.L.A. by the Pacific Coast Conference for "under-the-table aid" to athletes by booster clubs are due for imminent review and possible change. These penalties include the loss of one year's eligibility by football players at U.C.L.A. and this one could be the crux of an announcement yesterday following a meeting of the powerful Presidents' Council.

The announcement said the school leaders voted unanimously.

"To recommend to their faculty representatives that the process of deliberating on individual cases and assessing penalties be carried to prompt conclusion; and that as soon as it is concluded and before Sept. 1, 1956, all cases and penalties be reviewed at one time to be certain that there has been fully equitable treatment between and among cases."

"It is understood that penalties should be not only equitable but also commensurate with the violations, some of which have been serious."

Other Schools Accused.
The "all cases" would include also the charges made against the Universities of Southern California and California, which have not yet felt conference action.

The announcement can be interpreted two ways:
1. That penalties against Washington, which included no blanket ineligibility, be increased; or
2. That those against U.C.L.A. be modified.

The conference action is by the faculty representatives and they are the ones who voted the penalties originally. But the Presidents' Council can be considered all-powerful and their recommendation of a review considered a mandate.

The council asked the faculty representatives further to make a survey toward possible revision of conference rules and reaffirmed "that each institution has the individual responsibility for investigating each coach and booster club covering activities during the year 1955-56 to ascertain the degree of compliance with conference rules."

It called for reports of such activities be made to the conference commissioner by July 15.

President Robert G. Sproul of the University of California, chairman of the council, asserted, "The Presidents will rule with a firm hand from now on."

Criticism Are Cited.
Sproul said there had been criticisms of inequalities in the penalties against Washington and U.C.L.A. and these criticisms were "possibly justified." He pointed out that action against the two were taken in separate conference meetings and it was felt the review of all cases should be taken at one time.

On May 6, the conference placed Washington on probation for two years during which time the school cannot win a sports title, play in a post-season game or share in Rose Bowl receipts. This amounted to a $52,000 slap in the pocketbook although not listed officially as a fine.

Two weeks later U.C.L.A. was placed on probation three years, fined an additional $15,000 to increase its total to $93,000 and football players lost a year of eligibility unless it was proved they did not receive illegal aid from booster groups.

Since then U.C.L.A. alumnus, J. Miller Leavy, has charged a group of University of Southern California alumni had raised $71,235 and paid it to 60 Trojan athletes over two years. He charged also that California had a "phony job racket" in which athletes were promised or given off-campus jobs with pay but little or no work. California officials denied the allegation but last week said they had found 20 "technical violations" of the conference code involving about $1100.

Morrow Best Sprinter of Modern Times, Brutus Hamilton Says

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19 (UP)—The best sprinter of modern times, says Brutus Hamilton, 1952 United States Olympic track and field coach, is Bobby Morrow, the power-man from Abilene, Texas.

"Morrow is the best sprinter of this generation," said Hamilton after watching the Texan whip such formidable foes as Dave Sime of Duke, Bobby Whilden of Texas, Mike Agostini of Fresno State, Dick Blair of Kansas and Leonon King of California in the N.C.A.A. championships.

What impressed Hamilton wasn't so much the fact that Morrow won, but the way he did it. The powerfully-built, 190-pounder just took one step off the starting blocks and it was such a strong one that he was in front of the rest of the field right away. He didn't get a better start than the rest—just stronger.

Many had thought that Sime would beat Morrow—but they hadn't counted on an important item called "experience" figuring in the final results. This was especially true in the 200-meter race, where the Duke sophomore was a heavy favorite. Sime pulled up with a groin injury. It was only the second time that Sime had run around a curve (the first time was the day before) and he showed lack of experience.

"There's an art to running around a curve at full speed," Morrow pointed out later. "You need to practice it. You have to lean into the curve, swing your right arm across the body and cross your right leg to avoid falling off balance. Coming off the bend, I straighten up, relax until I can feel my jaw muscles loose, then drive to the wire."

In most U.S. meets, the 220-yard dash is run on a straightaway. But with the Olympics coming up, the N.C.A.A. always runs the 200-meter race around a curve, because that's the way they do it in international competition.

After his sad showing in the 200 in which he had to pull up after about 100 meters, the discouraged Sime said that he might forget track entirely and devote his time to baseball. He claims baseball is his "first love"—and these are reports that some major league scouts are talking in terms of a bonus that might run between $25,000 and $50,000.

Knick Sign Shavlik.

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—Ronnie Shavlik, 6-8 North Carolina State star, has signed with the New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Association giving the Knicks their second promising big man.

Shavlik, the club's No. 1 draft selection, joins Utah's Gary Bergen, also 6-8, on the Knick roster. Ron earned second team All-America honors last winter while producing a 18.5 average for the Wolfpack.

BRANIFF International AIRWAYS

Allison Turbo-Prop Engines

and Aeroproducts Propellers—to bring you over-400-mile-an-hour luxury travel in Lockheed Electras

Airlines are going Turbo-Prop in a big way!

Now Braniff International Airways is moving into the jet era—with its purchase of new Lockheed Electras, and has specified Allison Turbo-Prop Engines and Aeroproducts Propellers to power these new luxury airliners.

This matched engine-propeller team is the most advanced aircraft power plant of its type available today. It is backed by the full technical resources and skills of General Motors, plus Allison's experience in building gas turbine engines which have accumulated more than 8 million hours' flight time in military aircraft.

The new luxurious Allison-powered Lockheed Electras will cruise at over 400 miles an hour, bringing jet-age performance on both nonstop and multi-stop operations between the major traffic centers on Braniff's domestic and international routes.

From its beginning, with one airplane flying between Tulsa and Oklahoma City 28 years ago, Braniff has pioneered many achievements in air travel and has grown step by step with the continuing advances in commercial aviation.

Braniff's current investment program in new aircraft reflects the confidence this great carrier has in the further and rapid growth of air traffic.

We are happy that this great new General Motors Turbo-Prop power development has received such enthusiastic acceptance by airlines. We congratulate Braniff International Airways on this important step in the never-ending progress of air travel.

Braniff airliners powered by Allison Turbo-Prop will give you...

FASTER FLIGHTS—than any commercial airliner now flying—cruising speeds of over 400 miles an hour

SMOOTHER TAKE-OFFS—and from airports now served only by smaller aircraft

HIGHER CRUISING ALTITUDE for greater latitude in selecting favorable flying conditions

NEW COMFORT AND CONVENIENCE—unprecedented new standards of smoothness and quiet in air travel

HIGHEST DEPENDABILITY—proved by Allison's record of more than 8 million hours of jet engine flight time

SHORT TERM MONEY RATE IS LOWERED

Cost to Treasury 2.430 Pct., Lowest Since F.R.B. Firmed Money Rate.

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—Price changes on the bond market were irregular and generally narrow in late trading today, with the over-all market very slightly lower.

Utilities were generally steady after showing some early weakness.

The treasury's short-term borrowing costs have declined to their lowest level since the Federal Reserve Board tightened credit in mid-April. The latest issue of 91-day treasury bills sold at a price equivalent to an average yield of 2.430 per cent. Last week a similar issue drew 2.551 per cent.

Rails and industrial issues were mixed and investment quality issues steady.

United States Treasury bonds were unchanged for intermediates and off 1-32 for long-term in quiet trading.

Australian, German and Japanese dollar issues moved up fractionally in a generally higher foreign department. Australian 3½s gained 1½ at 95½ at one time.

A.T. & T. REGISTERS ISSUE OF 200 MILLION DEBENTURES

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has registered $250,000,000 of debentures and said it plans to spend more than two billion dollars this year on new construction and expansion.

The registration statement, filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, said the 34-year debentures due July 1, 1990 will be offered for public sale on a competitive bid basis with the interest rate and other details to be determined later.

AT&T said it plans to advance the funds to its subsidiaries and associated companies. The money will be used in connection with expansion of plants and facilities and for general corporate purposes.

The company said that in the five-year period 1951-55 it spent $6,757,000,000 on new construction and additional equipment.

Yearly spending for this purpose rose from $1,658,000,000 in 1951 to $1,643,000,000 last year.

TWO ALTON HARBOR PROJECTS PUT IN BILL

Commercial and Small-Boat Facilities OK'd by House Group.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—A commercial harbor costing $246,000 and a small-boat harbor estimated at $100,300, both at Alton, Ill., were approved today by a House public works subcommittee for inclusion in an omnibus construction bill.

The commercial harbor would be nine feet deep and would extend 2800 feet along the Alton waterfront below Lock and Dam 26. The small-boat harbor would be at the mouth of the Alton creek, six miles north of Alton. It would have a depth of six feet, width of 500 feet and a length of 800 feet.

In another action, the board of engineers for rivers and harbors of the Army Corps of Engineers recommended that Congress approve funds for construction of a new dam across the Mississippi in the Chain of Rocks reach above St. Louis.

It was estimated that a rock-filled dam with depressed spillway would cost about $5,810,000 to build and that maintenance costs would total about $300,000 a year. A bill to authorize construction is now pending in Congress.

The dam would be about 900 feet down the river from the Chain of Rocks highway bridge.

General purpose of the dam would be to back up sufficient water to restore the nine-foot minimum depth at the lower end of the lock at Alton, Low-water levels at this point in recent years have seriously hampered barge traffic.

THREE AMERICAN RABBIS LEAVE FOR VISIT TO RUSSIA

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—Three American Orthodox rabbis left by plane last night for a five-week visit to Russia, the first such visit since the Communist revolution of 1917.

Rabbi David B. Hollander, president of the Rabbinical Council of America, said he and the others were making the trip "to examine the relative status of the religious life of our brothers and sisters in Russia."

Accompanying him were Rabbi Samuel Edelman, of Congregation Adath Jeshurun, Newport News, Va.; and Rabbi Herschel Schacter, of the Mosholu Jewish Center, the Bronx. They will be joined in Moscow by two other Orthodox rabbis who are leaving here next Monday.

32 PCT. INCREASE NOTED IN CITY TRAFFIC DEATHS

St. Louis has had a distressingly heavy increase of 32 per cent in traffic deaths this year compared with the same period in 1955, the Safety Council of Greater St. Louis warned yesterday.

Latest Police Department figures show 53 persons dead as a result of traffic accidents within the city this year. At the same time last year, the death toll was 40.

In 1955, the fifty-third traffic fatality was not recorded until Sept. 17. The Safety Council observed it is quite unlikely the city could reduce its traffic death rate to last year's pace since it means there could be no traffic fatalities for almost three months.

DONNELLY ATTENDS OPENING OF BUILDING IN KANSAS CITY

SPECIAL TO THE POST-DISPATCH. JEFFERSON CITY, June 19.—Gov. Phil M. Donnelly went to Kansas City this morning by plane to attend the formal opening of a new office building built by the city for the state-controlled Kansas City Board of Election Commissioners. He will return to the capital tonight.

CITY'S NEGRO VOTE PUT AT 70,000, OR 18.6 PCT. OF TOTAL

More than 70,000 Negro voters are on the St. Louis registration lists, following the addition of an estimated 9000 in the June 7 special registration, the St. Louis Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People reported yesterday.

The total is about 18.6 per cent of the city's registration. The Election Board reported there are 376,000 registered voters now, but the number is expected to be reduced to about 340,000 in the city-wide canvass next month, preparatory to the Aug. 7 primary election.

Ernest Calloway, president of the St. Louis Branch of the N.A.A.C.P., said Negroes now are a majority of the voters in seven of the 28 wards. These include the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Eighth, Ninth, Twentieth and Twenty-sixth wards.

DEFENSE DEPT. DISAPPROVES HOOVER REPORT ON SUPPLIES

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19 (AP)—The Defense Department has disapproved a Hoover Commission recommendation to unify the supply system of the armed forces, Assistant Secretary of the Army Frank H. Higgins said in a statement here yesterday.

Defense officials do not believe the Hoover plan would function in wartime, Higgins said.

The Defense Department has, instead, adopted a compromise system in which one officer from each service will buy particular items for all branches. The new program does not apply to weapons, he said.

TRAFTON WINS G.O.P. PRIMARY IN MAINE

Relative Political Newcomer Will Face Gov. Muskie in Fall Election.

PORTLAND, Maine, June 19 (AP)—A relative newcomer to Maine politics won the Republican nomination for governor yesterday.

House Speaker Willis A. Trafton Jr., 38 years old, who never had campaigned outside his home city of Auburn before, soundly whipped State Senator Philip F. Chapman Jr. and ex-Attorney General Alexander A. Laflaur.

Trafton, father of seven children, got a little more than half of an unusually tight vote.

In September he will tackle Gov. Edmund S. Muskie (Dem.) in the nation's first state election. Muskie had no primary opposition.

September will see the 1954 candidates battling again for the First District House seat. Republicans okayed 66-year-old Robert Hale's bid for an eighth consecutive term. The Democrats put up James C. Oliver, 60. Once a Republican congressman, Oliver as a Democrat, almost beat Hale two years ago. Each won a three-way race yesterday.

In the second district, the G.O.P. picked State Senator James L. Reid, 48, of Hallowell to succeed retiring Representative Charles P. Nelson. His Democratic foe will be State Committee Chairman Frank M. Coffin, 36, of Lewiston.

Third district Representative Clifford G. McIntire (Rep.) was unopposed for a fourth term. Kenneth B. Colbath, whom Mc-Intire defeated in '54, won the Democratic bid without contest. With only six small precincts of the state's 630 missing, Trafton polled 43,015 votes, Chapman 24,641 and Laflaur 16,506.

CONNECTICUT REPUBLICANS RENOMINATE SENATOR BUSH

HARTFORD, Conn., June 19 (UP)—The Republican state convention today unanimously nominated United States Senator Prescott Bush for a full six-year term.

His name was placed before the convention by Senator William A. Purtell who described the Greenwich lawmaker as "one of these stalwart legislators who fought courageously, vigorously and effectively for the program of President Eisenhower."

Miss Vivien Kellems, cable-grip manufacturer who had threatened to oppose Bush, withdrew just as he was about to be nominated.

The convention also renominated Antoni N. Sadiak for Congressman-at-large.

The convention was buoyed by a prediction of Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall that Bush and Sadiak would be re-elected "absolutely." Hall told newsmen, "I feel good about Connecticut. Every report is good. We're going to elect all incumbent Republican House members and we'll even carry that other congressional district."

He was referring to the First District where Hartford's big Democratic majority has thwarted G.O.P. candidates since 1948. All other Connecticut Congressmen are Republican.

Dr. Harry F. Wahl Dies. KANSAS CITY, Kan., June 19 (AP)—Dr. Harry F. Wahl, formerly dean of the University of Kansas Medical School, died yesterday of cancer, which had been one of his primary interests in his long career as a pathologist. He was 70 years old.

MARTIN, LEWIS FINALLY SPLIT UP AS MOVIE TEAM

HOLLYWOOD, June 19 (AP)—Dean Martin, who wants to live like Bing Crosby, and Jerry Lewis, who wants to be a Charlie Chaplin, next month will formally end a $4,000,000-a-year partnership.

Final barrier to the split was removed last night when producer Hal Wallis, who first brought them into the movies, agreed to let each make a separate movie. As a team, they have been among the biggest box office attractions in movie history.

The final feud developed over Lewis's plans to direct what was to have been the pair's next picture, Martin objected.

The easy-going Dean makes no secret of the fact that he would like to live like his idol—Crosby—doing a few pictures, a few appearances and playing lots of golf.

Jerry, one of the hardest workers in show business, believes you have to be on stage every week of the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Bedford F. Hines, 432 North Kirkwood road, Kirkwood, observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary today. In honor of the event, their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bedford F. Hones Jr., 1612 Dougherty Ferry road, Kirkwood, will have a family dinner party for them Sunday at their home.

Hines, 79 years old, is a retired district manager of the storage battery division of Thomas A. Edison Inc. here. Mrs. Hines is 68. They have lived in St. Louis since 1918 and have two other children and seven grandchildren.

MURRAY AGAIN CALLS ON U.S. TO BUILD REACTORS

Government will enter the power business as a consequence of its accelerating development through power reactor construction. Such fears are unwarranted; they cannot rightly be countenanced as cause for delay.

"The traditional role of private industry in the production of electric power must be preserved. But private industry is not helped by an artificial argument which seeks to preserve industrial atomic power as private industry's domain at the expense of the national interest."

Murray is the last appointee of former President Truman on the five-man commission. He has differed with Strauss and the other commissioners on a number of issues, including a proposal of Murray's for limitations on future testing of atomic weapons.

Democratic Support.

Last February Murray proposed a Government program with a goal of 2,000,000 kilowatts of atomic power by 1960. His call was taken up by leading Democratic members of the Atomic Energy Committee, including Senator Albert Gore of Tennessee.

Last month Gore urged a "crash" atomic power program and said indications were the United States "may be running far behind" other countries in the field. Strauss retorted that the United States holds "a position of genuine leadership" in peaceful uses of the atom.

Murray said that under present plans "the only significant amount of (atomic) electric power available in this country

SCHOOL SYSTEM APPRAISAL URGED BY CLAYTON GROUP

The Clayton Association for Public Schools announced today it has asked the Clayton Board of Education to appoint a special committee to evaluate the school system before the selection of a new superintendent.

The request, contained in a letter to board president Morris Glaser, said a committee of the six board members and four or five persons chosen from the community could provide "a broadly representative appraisal of the school problems."

The association's letter declared that an exhaustive study of the school system's aims is necessary before an intelligent selection of a new superintendent can be made. John L. Bracken resigned as Clayton superintendent last month, saying he wished to spend more time with his family.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN HOME

Mrs. Nellie Riley, 1220 Benton street, was found dead in the kitchen of her home today, her head in the oven. The gas was turned on.

Mrs. Riley, 59 years old, had stuffed blankets around the closed rear door and then seated herself in a chair in front of the oven before turning on the gas and inserting her head, police reported. The body was found by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Frances Riley, 2514 Benton. No notes were found.

FORD sets 500-mile record at Indianapolis Speedway

Again proves nobody outperforms Ford

... dramatic demonstration of the kind of performance and roadability that makes all your driving more fun in a Ford!

A Ford V-8 hurtled across the brick and asphalt surface of tough and testing Indianapolis Speedway...whirling through the tight turns and flashing over the straight stretches...to set a mark that no stock car ever reached before!

Previous to Ford's record run, no other stock car had gone even one lap at Indianapolis at 100 m.p.h., but one of Ford's laps was timed at the electrifying speed of 113.7 m.p.h. And Ford averaged 107.126 m.p.h. for the full five hundred miles...close to the average set by the extremely costly, specially-built racer which won the Memorial Day "500"!

Ford fully realizes that the welter of claims and counter claims about "racing victories" (many of them completely contradictory) must be confusing and disillusioning to the public. Ford ran this race against time, over the true "Classic" distance and at the most famous track in America, in order to dispel this cloud of doubt and disbelief and prove that no one outperforms Ford!

Peter de Paolo, leader of the team of drivers that piloted the winning Ford, states flatly: "No other stock car could have equalled this performance!" And Pete de Paolo should know, for he was the first driver to win the "500" Classic with a better than 100 m.p.h. average. And now he comes back with a group of drivers to establish a stock car record with the great '56 Ford!

Yet, this was no mere race against the stop watch.

Ford's alert responsiveness and sheer roadability proved more than a match for the treacherous turns...taking them smoothly and giving the great Ford V-8 a chance to use its blazing acceleration in the straightaways.

Ford wrote this new mark large and bold in the record books. And the whole Ford did the trick. From the hood-full of throbbing horsepower to the road-hugging rear end, Ford demonstrated that it has what it takes to make your driving more enjoyable. Convince yourself that driving a Ford can be real fun. A test drive in a '56 Ford will be a real eye opener for you. There's a set of keys waiting for you, so come in and sample all the things that enabled Ford to hang up this brilliant new record at Indianapolis.

BAKING WITH DUNCAN HINES IS FUN!

MERINGUE IS SPREAD ON BATTER, BAKES RIGHT WITH CAKE LAYERS

Follow package directions for Duncan Hines Yellow Cake, except in Step 2 add 4 egg yolks instead of 2 whole eggs. Spread batter in 2 greased and floured 9-in. round or 8-in. square layer cake pans. Spread this meringue over batter. Beat 4 egg whites with few grains salt until frothy. Gradually beat in $\frac{2}{3}$ cup sugar.

Over meringue sprinkle 2 tablespoons sugar and $\frac{1}{4}$ cup shaved blanched almonds. Bake at 350° for 40 to 45 minutes.

Cool in pans for 15 minutes. Remove from pans. Cool on rack meringue-side up.

To serve, cover meringue-side of one layer with a package of frozen red raspberries or strawberries, partially thawed and drained. Over berries spread 1 cup whipping cream whipped stiff with 2 tablespoons sugar. (Save some whipped cream and a few berries to decorate the top.) Cover with other layer, meringue-side up. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

This European specialty is one of the famous cakes of the world—easy to make with our fine Yellow Cake Mix.

"If you were lucky enough to have a good German cook as an ancestor, you probably know the Blitz Torte. If not, you'll discover one of the great cakes of the world the first time you make it.

"What makes a Blitz Torte so very different is the thick layer of meringue that bakes crisp-cruled and almond-studded, right on the yellow cake layers. That cake is the kind you make with our Yellow Cake Mix—fine and light and moist, tasting deliciously of the fresh egg yolks you add in this recipe. (The word 'blitz' means lightning—and with our cake mix it's truly lightning-quick, without the old-fashioned work of mixing from scratch.)

"So, you see, your cake layers come from the oven already 'frosted' with golden-brown meringue. And when you're ready to serve, put them together with something creamy for contrast. Often, a custard—plain or fruit-flavored. I like it with a tart fruit like red raspberries, and whipped cream.

"This is the kind of cake that cookbooks call a complete dessert. And I think you'll agree it couldn't be better—or easier!"

Try baking meringue on layers of cake made with our other mixes:
Spice with peaches as fruit; White Cake with cherries; Devil's Food with bananas.

U.S. Leaders Hope Nehru's Visit Will Clarify Stand of Both Sides

Indian Prime Minister Leaves Thursday for Month-Long Tour That Will Take Him to Washington.

By HAROLD K. MILKS
NEW DELHI, June 19 (AP)—
Prime Minister Nehru is leaving Thursday for a month-long tour that will take him to Washington.

American diplomats hope the visit with President Eisenhower in July will help clarify the motives of both sides and provide a more friendly atmosphere for future co-operation.

Indian leaders are not so optimistic, though recent statements by Mr. Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster
Dulles indicate the United States is doing some new thinking about its position toward neutrals.

What is the actual situation in India on the eve of Nehru's visit, and what are the real chances for improved relations?
If you look at India through Indian eyes, and then through the eyes of a Westerner, the two views are likely to be vastly different.

India still sees itself as completely neutral, friendly to all and without links to either side in the world's cold war.
Many outsiders see this nation of 370,000,000 people, only eight years old in its independence, dangerously close to Soviet Russia and Red China and moving steadily to the left both politically and economically.

Hordes of Red Visitors.
Visitors from Russia and its satellites are swarming over friendly India. Every arriving plane seems to bring its quota of commercial, cultural or technical missions and agents from behind the Iron Curtain.

What causes Indian editors to give large headlines to each gesture of Soviet assistance and pass lightly over more substantial American gifts and loans? What has happened that Indians in general and Nehru in particular find so much to praise in Soviet policies and so little that pleases them in Western policies?

Probably two basic factors lie behind the trend:

1—Kashmir, over which India and Pakistan have battled to the verge of war, and 2—American military assistance to Pakistan.
Indian leaders say they never er political and economic stability, India has a real fear of Pakistan.

"Double Standard."

"Dulles has said the United States has guaranteed that arms given to Pakistan won't be used against us," says one member of the Indian government, "but we know Pakistan better than he does. The day Pakistan believes itself strong enough to attack India there will be no peace on this subcontinent."

Critics of the Nehru government complain of its seeming "double standard" covering problems of direct interest to India and other problems more remote.

Nehru has complained vehemently against military pacts, particularly the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization and the Baghdad pact, both of which involve Pakistan.

But no similar outcry was heard against Soviet military alliances with Red China and its East European satellites.

India's greatest criticism is that the United States puts too much emphasis on military might at a time when most Indians accept Russia's professions of peaceful intentions. But India is far from de-emphasizing military preparedness against Pakistan.

Hospitality on the Highway!

● A conscientious job of cleaning your windows all the way around is typical of the service offered by Phillips 66 Dealers.

"Hospitality on the Highway" means more than just filling your car's gas tank or checking the oil. To Phillips 66 Dealers it includes maintaining clean rest rooms. It means having your car brushed out... your battery and tires checked... your radiator filled.
It includes road maps if you need them. It means friendliness, courtesy, the desire to please you.

Your Phillips 66 Dealer believes that in the service he gives, as well as in the products he sells, "It's Performance that Counts."

Tito, Khrushchev Deny Ties They Have Made Threaten West

Crowd in Moscow Stadium Cheers as Two Leaders Assert They Will Never Again Split.

MOSCOW, June 19 (AP)—President Josip (Tito) Broz of Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union's Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev said today they have forged anew a bond that they say is no threat to the Western world.

The two Communist leaders told 80,000 cheering Russians at a mass rally in Moscow's Dynamo Stadium their ties can never again be torn asunder.

"We cannot help those people who don't like our relations with the Soviet Union," Tito said. The packed stadium roared approval.

In a half-hour speech preceding Tito, Khrushchev said Western critics were "deeply mistaken" if they thought the newly established friendship between Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union would damage their relations with other countries.

"We don't want this," Khrushchev said. "We want both Yugoslavia's and our relations with other countries to flourish and develop."

The signing of a joint communiqué detailing results of Tito's conferences with Soviet leaders was postponed at the last minute without explanation. A spokesman said the communiqué would not be signed tonight.

Tito's stadium speech ranged over Soviet-Yugoslav party and government relations and the problems of Germany, European security and the Middle East.

The entire diplomatic corps was present, including NATO nation ambassadors. The stadium was decorated with flags of the Soviet Union, Yugoslavia and the 16 separate Soviet Republics.

Tito, in a meeting with newsmen last night at a Yugoslav dinner party, indicated the expected communiqué would make no provision for any formal Cominform-like grouping of the Soviet and Yugoslav parties.

"We are pretty much in agreement," he said, "not on the framework of a general organization, but on the basis of bilateral co-operation."

Tito told the newsmen not to expect anything sensational. He said the basis of the agreement would be on a relationship of consultation and co-operation between two independent equals.

Tito also said he has not made any arrangements for military co-operation with the Soviet Union during his trip, and that no agreement had been reached on a future economic program between the two countries.

He denied reports that Yugoslavia will manufacture MIG jet fighter planes under Soviet license but added, "As to what will happen in the future, I am no prophet."

Tito said there was "no discussion of military matters" in the talks.

"We are concerned with peace, not war," he declared.

During the dinner, Tito and former Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov drank toasts to each other and had a long serious conversation. Informal sources said they made up their differences.

Molotov had joined with Stalin in booting Tito from the Cominform in 1948. He resigned as foreign minister on the eve of Tito's arrival in Moscow in a move generally accepted as a gesture from the Soviet government to the Yugoslav President.

MID-AMERICA JUBILEE BOOKS 12 CHILDREN'S RIDES

The Mid-America Jubilee which will take place on the riverfront throughout September, will have 12 carnival-type rides operating for the amusement of children—and interested adults.

Alfred Stern, managing director of the Jubilee, said contracts had been signed to insure the availability of a carousel, large and small ferris wheels, two miniature railways, an octopus, boat ride, scooter, hot rod, comet, airplane ride and a roving trolley ride.

These attractions, Stern added, are in addition to the pony and stagecoach rides already booked.

PAY RISE FOR MECHANICS

A total of 650 automobile mechanics and body repairmen employed in St. Clair and Madison counties signed a new two-year contract which provides a 12-cent-an-hour wage increase retroactive to June 1 and an additional 10-cent increase next June 1.

Settlement of the contract was reached Saturday in negotiations between representatives of the International Association of Machinists, District 9, and the St. Clair and Madison County Automotive Dealers Association. Under the new contract, mechanics will earn $2.22 an hour, and body repairmen, $2.32.

The man from Schweppes is here!

MEET Commander Edward Whitehead, Schweppesman Extraordinary from London, England, where the house of Schweppes has been an institution since 1794.

The Commander has come to these United States to make sure that every drop of Schweppes Quinine Water bottled here has the original flavor which has made it the essential mixer for an authentic Gin-and-Tonic all over the world.

He imports the original Schweppes elixir, and the secret of Schweppes unique carbonation is securely locked in his brief case. "Schweppesvance," says the Commander, "lasts the whole drink through."

The unique Schweppes flavor is difficult to describe but impossible to miss. Here's how one famous Englishman puts it: "Schweppes has a sharp, almost astringent, impact on the palate, with a bitter-sweet aftertaste. It's curiously refreshing in hot weather."

Now that Schweppes have given up the extravagant practice of transporting heavy bottles across 3,000 miles of Atlantic Ocean, you can buy their incomparable Quinine Water in handy six-bottle cartons, popularly priced, at grocers throughout this area.

It took Schweppes almost a hundred years to bring the flavor and Schweppesvance of their Quinine Water to its present perfection. But it will take you or the barman only thirty seconds to mix it with ice and gin in a highball glass.

And then, gentle reader, you will bless the day you read this advertisement.

FRANKFORT LAWYER NAMED TO BARKLEY'S SENATE SEAT

FRANKFORT, Ky., June 19 (AP)—Gov. A. B. Chandler yesterday named Frankfort attorney Joseph J. Leary to the United States Senate as a temporary replacement for the late Senator Alben Barkley.

The Governor announced his choice on the eve of today's meeting of the Democratic state central executive committee in Louisville. The committee will name its nominee to run in the November election for the four remaining years of Barkley's term.

Leary, 49 years old, a close advisor of the Governor, was appointed to serve until November. He was co-chairman of Chandler's campaign in last year's gubernatorial race.

PINEAU SEEKING U.S. SUPPORT IN ALGERIAN FIGHT

He and Dulles Agree on Encouraging 'Evolutionary Process' in Russia.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau appealed to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today for firm American support in France's costly battle to crush the revolt in Algeria.

The North African fighting, which now is costing France as much as its ill-fated Indochina campaign, came up for review during a meeting at the State Department. The talk was the second of three set up to review foreign policy problems.

Dulles and Pineau turned to the Algerian problem after agreeing in their opening meeting yesterday that the West must take steps to encourage what was termed an "evolutionary process" in Russia since Stalin's death.

While agreeing on this long-range objective, they apparently have failed to agree thus far on specific steps to deal with Russia's quick-changing policies.

Dulles was reported to have shown a marked lack of enthusiasm for three of Pineau's suggested moves: (1) Further expansion of East-West trade controls, (2) sizable American contributions to a proposed United Nations fund for aiding less developed areas, and (3) big Western cultural exchanges with Russia.

Dulles advised Pineau, informants said, that he was willing to let experts study the trade control problem, but with the understanding that western nations should be extremely careful lest they build up Russia's war machine.

The secretary was understood to have stressed that it would be "dangerous and reckless" to assume that the seemingly more moderate trend in Russia was irreversible.

The Soviets could switch swiftly to their former tough tactics, he was reported to have said, if their military power grew as a result of western shipments of urgently needed raw materials and machinery.

Without specifically rejecting the cultural idea, Dulles said to have cautioned that such exchanges should be considered in the light of whether they will mean a net gain or loss for the free world.

Dulles was pictured as listening carefully, but without comment, when Pineau outlined his plan for channeling part of America foreign aid money through the U.N. officials made clear afterward Dulles has not budged from his previously stated opposition to any such move, even though Pineau emphasized the United States could continue distributing up to 94 per cent of its aid directly to friendly countries.

U.S. ARMY OBSERVERS TO SEE SOME RUSSIAN TROOPS QUIT GERMANY

BONN, June 19 (AP)—American Army observers will be there to watch when some Red army troops start their withdrawal from East Germany tomorrow and Thursday.

The United States Embassy announced acceptance of the invitation from Lt. Gen. N. P. Sidelnikov, chief of staff of the Soviet forces in Germany, Britain and France already had said they would send observers.

The Russians originally asked the Allied chiefs of staff in Germany to witness the withdrawal. All three said they would send staff officers for their missions to the Red army stationed at Potsdam, just outside East Berlin.

The Russians claim to be pulling 33,500 soldiers out of East Germany as part of their highly publicized reduction of Red army strength.

MAN AWAITING TRIAL CAUGHT IN BURGLARY

Ronald Goodin, Companion Found Inside County Filling Station.

Ronald L. Goodin, 2402 North Ninth street, who is awaiting trial on two charges of assault with intent to kill, and another man were arrested early today when they were found inside a service station at 9010 U.S. Highway 66, Crestwood.

Crestwood Deputy Marshal Walter Swarthout said he became suspicious as he was driving by the station and saw an unfamiliar automobile parked in front.

Investigating, he reported that the padlock of the front door was gone.

Swarthout said he obtained a shotgun from his car and shouted at the intruders, who were in a rear office at a desk, to come out. They offered no resistance, he reported.

An undetermined amount of change was missing. No currency is kept at the station overnight, the owner, Frank Lindhorst, said.

Arrested with Goodin was Joseph L. Prusik, who gave an address at the 3700 block of North Twentieth street. Both men denied breaking into the place.

Swarthout reported finding a wire cutter, which apparently was used to snip the padlock, and a tire tool, used to force the door.

Prusik and Goodin said they found the door open and walked in to look around.

Goodin was booked at Ladue police headquarters suspected of burglary and larceny and Prusik was held at County Police Headquarters in Clayton on the same charge. Warrants will be sought.

Goodin was charged with assault to kill after he shot and wounded two men in a dispute last March 20 at his mother's tavern at 2400 North Ninth. At that time, Prusik and Goodin had gotten into a fight in a tavern at Nineteenth and Dodder streets and shot the two men, companions of the man with whom he fought, later in the evening as they entered his mother's tavern.

140 REPORTED KILLED IN AFGHAN EARTHQUAKE

LAHORE, Pakistan, June 19 (UP)—A Kabul radio broadcast last night reported between 140 and 150 persons killed and some 900 injured in an earthquake Sunday in Afghanistan's Kunhar river valley.

The broadcast from the Afghan capital said authorities feared that the final toll of dead and injured would reach 2000.

Kabul radio said the earthquake loosed huge boulders which crashed down the mountainsides into a river causing the waters to rise. It said several villages were buried in the debris.

2 KILLED, 7 HURT IN FALL DOWN POWER PLANT CHIMNEY

EVERETT, Mass., June 19 (UP)—Two men were killed and seven were injured seriously today when a staging collapsed, hurling them 50 feet to the bottom of a new steam generator plant chimney. The dead were identified as Fred Landry, foreman of the crew, and Stephen A. Quinn.

The men were pouring a section of the concrete chimney at the Boston Edison Co. plant when the wooden platform inside the chimney "suddenly let go with a crash," witnesses said.

BURGLARS STEAL $229 AT LOCUST STREET TAVERN

After stealing the money from a box behind the bar, the burglars left by side door. A watchman found the door ajar and called police.

BOY CONVICTED OF KILLING

CHICAGO, June 19 (AP)—A 12-year-old boy was convicted yesterday of involuntary manslaughter.

Judge Henry L. Burman placed Rudolph Diaz in the custody of the Illinois Youth Commission for a maximum period of 14 years. Diaz was convicted of fatally stabbing another 12-year-old, Anthony (Tony) Brown, March 13. The original charge of murder was reduced to manslaughter.

TAYLOR BUS LINES REROUTING APPROVED

90-Day Trial Authorized for Runs on Three Blocks of Enright.

The Board of Public Service today authorized St. Louis Public Service Co. to operate buses of the Taylor line over a three-block section of Enright avenue between Taylor and Euclid avenue for a 90-day experimental period.

The authorization was granted at the request of the company which wants to remove the Taylor line from Delmar boulevard where two left turns in heavy traffic are required. There also are plans for electric signals at both Taylor and Delmar, further complicating the transit operation.

It was pointed out by the office of Director of Streets and Sewers, Frank Krueger, that there are 67 trees along the route, of which five probably would have to be removed and 53 others trimmed. Because Enright at this point has only a 36-foot width, parking would have to be barred on one side during the morning and evening peak traffic periods.

Bids for an estimated $50,000 worth of improvements in the Plaza area will be received next July 24, the board announced.

These improvements consist of widening Chestnut by four feet on each side between Fifteenth and Eighteenth streets, constructing new sidewalks and curbs and the closing of Sixteenth street between Market and Chestnut streets.

The board also set July 24 as the date on which it would receive bids for the construction of a recreational building in Euclid stadium Park, a 1935 bond issue project. Cost of the structure is estimated at about $40,000.

The board approved the draft of a proposed ordinance which would authorize the City Council to begin condemnation proceedings to acquire a site for a new health center at Jefferson and Cass avenues. This is another 1935 bond issue project.

LOUISVILLE LEADERS MAKE TOUR OF CITY'S PROJECTS

A group of city and business leaders from Louisville, Ky., toured St. Louis yesterday, inspecting various public improvement projects, including public housing, hospitals and schools.

They were accompanied by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, Sam Mashburn, a Louisville director of the St. Louis Housing and Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authorities and other city officials. The Louisville group was headed by Mayor Tom Riffe of Louisville.

Mr. Riffe, who is mayor of Louisville, said the 32 officials included on their tour the new terminal building at Lambert-St. Louis field and, after dinner at Hotel Chase, a brief visit to Municipal Opera. They left last night.

EISENHOWER AUTHORIZES ATOMIC PACT WITH CANADA

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—President Eisenhower authorized the State Department yesterday to enter into an atomic agreement with Canada to bring United States nuclear relations with Canada in line with those with Britain.

Officials said the document concerns exchange of atomic military data between the United States and Canada. They said it authorizes a United States-Canadian agreement similar to the United States-British agreement which would permit the British, among other things, to inspect the nuclear power plants of the United States submarine Nautilus.

Mr. Eisenhower also signed papers authorizing the State Department to reach agreement with Australia on civilian uses of atomic energy. This would be similar to other records signed with about 25 friendly countries.

DEAD-END HYDRANTS BLAMED FOR LACK OF WATER AT FIRE

Dead-end fire hydrants were responsible for the low water pressure that kept firemen from extinguishing a fire that destroyed St. Louis Catholic Church in East St. Louis last April 18. Fire Chief Gerald Fallon said last night.

Fallon told a meeting of citizens of the Edgemont area that East St. Louis and Interurban Water Co. had prepared plans for establishing a grid system of fire hydrants which would permit firemen to pump the water even during periods of low pressure.

Fire Commissioner Edgar Lehman said the city was giving consideration to the building of another fire station in the Edgemont community. The meeting was held at First Presbyterian Church, 6901 State street, East St. Louis.

MARYLAND GIRL STRANDED, PATHOLOGIST'S REPORT SAYS

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—An apparent case of double murder developed today with a pathologist's report that a Maryland teen-ager was strangled before her body was flung into a Virginia stream.

The finding left Maryland and Virginia police with virtually no clues in the death of Shelby Jean Venable, 16 years old, of North Laurel, Md., and Mary Elizabeth Fellers, 18, of Beltsville, Md.

Erwin Fellers, Mary Elizabeth's 13-year-old brother, said he saw the two girls into a blue automobile on June 1. Erwin said the driver was a scar-faced young man who gave him a "dirty look" as he sped away.

Blood Pressure

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: I've understood that high blood pressure, if not kept down, or near normal, is likely to cause a stroke. Is this true? If so, I would like to ask you this. If one got an instrument for taking blood pressure, and learned to take his own, and take tablets to keep it near normal, if needed, would it eliminate the possibility of a stroke? Sincerely, Miss A.W.

ANSWER: I remember a woman who would always come in with her husband on the occasion of his office appointments. Diabetes was his ailment and she came, apparently, to check with me on his diet. Invariably, however, she would say this at the end of each visit: "Doctor, while I'm here, would you mind taking my blood pressure?" Contrary to my feelings in the matter, I took her pressure at her husband's first visit—but never again.

LET ME TELL YOU WHY. I believe that, as a nation, we have become too blood-pressure conscious. Many patients "die a death" every time the doctor wraps the blood pressure cuff around their arm. You pump in the air and the patient turns his eyes toward the machine and you sense how tense he is. He watches the mercury intently. No trader in a bull or bear market ever followed the gyrations of the tape more closely. Even before you have let out all the air the patient's eyes are now fully on your own. He can't wait until you remove the stethoscope from your ears. You hear him say: "How high is it today, doctor?" You say it is better. But the patient does not accept this statement. He says: "Just how high? How many points?" To prevent actual hostility you must give him the exact figure.

I tell patients that the actual height of the pressure is not always the true criterion of their state of health. The blood pressure reading, is but one of many factors we use in estimating their true condition. Many a patient with a pressure of 200 is better off than one with a reading of 170. There are other important considerations.

For example, what is the condition of your arteries? Does the examination of your eye-grounds indicate advanced arteriosclerosis? How are your kidneys functioning? Is your heart enlarged? Are you too fat? Do you have other complications like diabetes or coronary disease? What does your electrocardiogram show?

DO NOT MISUNDERSTAND. Your blood pressure reading is important—but it is not all-important. I tell my colleagues that perhaps it is our own fault. We have gotten you into the habit of expecting a blood pressure reading every time you come to the office. You would feel cheated without one. Many is the time that I have finished a check-up on a patient without taking his blood pressure. He would invariably say: "Haven't you forgotten something? You haven't taken my pressure." You try to explain. Usually the patient is beyond convincing. He wants it taken. He thinks that if his pressure has fallen from 180 to 174 that he has reason to celebrate. Contrariwise, if it climbs from 180 to 186 he reacts as if his world is surely coming to an end.

If you will remember that your pressure is only one indication of your condition, you will be less likely to be anxious about it. If your doctor says it is better, be thankful for that, it is needless for you to know "just how many points" it has gone up or down.

Try and Stop Me

'Overdraw on Supply of Body Energy and You Face Physical, Mental Bankruptcy'

By Edwin Diamond

This the third and concluding article in a series on how to take it easy and get the most out of your leisure.

IF you are overdrawn on your bank account your checks bounce and new deposits are needed to keep you from going bankrupt. Dr. Edmund Jacobson of Chicago says the same thing happens with your body energy—overdraw on your supply and you face mental and physical bankruptcy.

For more than 40 years, Dr. Jacobson has been searching for the way to prevent this bankruptcy and keep the body's health accounts balanced.

First at Harvard, later at the University of Chicago and now at his own laboratory for clinical physiology, Dr. Jacobson evolved his theory and developed his techniques. Today, he believes he knows how we overdraw on our energy reserves and what we can do about it.

In addition, he has an instrument to measure how much energy is being expended—just like the monthly bank statement of your account.

Dr. Jacobson believes muscular tension accounts for "practically the entire energy output of the body above its basic living needs." Other tissues, he says, such as the nerves, brain or kidneys, take up a small, almost constant, energy amount.

FOR THIS REASON, you may be sitting in what you believe to be a relaxed position and appear outwardly calm—but Dr. Jacobson says this is not necessarily the correct picture. To get an accurate "health account statement," Dr. Jacobson designed the neurovoltage meter—an instrument that measures muscular nerve currents. Here is how it works:

Two fine platinum electrodes are inserted into the biceps muscle in the left arm about an inch apart. The electrodes are connected to an extra-sensitive amplifier; an oscilloscope is hooked into this circuit to record the electric action of the muscle on a television-like screen.

On this screen is flashed the amount of muscle contraction (a measure of muscle tension). If the person is tensed up internally, a fluorescent green line dances wildly on the screen. Thus real tension or real relaxation can be measured tangibly by the jumps and dips of the green line.

"There is no evidence to support the common belief that the neuromusculature really 'relaxes' when persons play games like golf or cards, or when they are quietly sitting and conversing, reading, smoking or resting," Dr. Jacobson said. "Our findings are that many such persons continue in a chronic state of efforts and sub-efforts by day and by night. Even in their sleep they fail to relax."

Dr. Jacobson doesn't even need his neurovoltage meter to assay the energy balance in many people. And neither do you if you look for these tell-tale tension signs in your friends—or your own mirror: Eye blinking, frowning of brow, frowning, neck tensing, jaw stiffening, arm or leg jiggling.

If you are overdoing any or a combination of the above, Dr. Jacobson recognizes it as an indication of excessive nerve-muscle tension, the open door to high blood pressure and coronary heart diseases—the nation's number one killer. He adds:

"Rest is inadequate treatment for the over-reacting, over-tense person. What is needed is to teach the patient to relax each of his chief muscle groups so that excess tension measurably disappears."

In the series of scientific relaxation steps Dr. Jacobson prescribes, the chief target is the head muscles, particularly those related to seeing and speaking. Try this eye unloading procedure:

First, wrinkle your forehead, then frown; then gradually unfrown the brow. Next, shut the eye lids tightly. Gradually loosen up on them until wrinkling has become infrequent or absent. Then, with the eyes still closed, "look" to the right, left and forward. Then try to let your eyes "go"—don't try to look in any direction.

This and other scientific relaxation tips are contained in Dr. Jacobson's book, "You Must Relax." (Published by McGraw-Hill.)

SOME questioning voices lately have begun to ask: "Is our new leisure time a burden or a blessing?" These questioners point to the decline in the work week from 60 hours in 1890 to 40 or less today and the almost $10,000,000,000 Americans spend for play each year and argue: "With more free time and

Designing Woman Decoration Suggestion

By Elizabeth Hillier

THEY'RE colorful and eye-catching, and sometimes they're art—the best designed of today's covers for photograph record albums. They can make quite a splash as decoration for the family's recreation headquarters, or for the music corner of a teenager's room.

Special frame brackets mounted on the wall make it possible to slip several album covers side by side in a continuous strip, and any one can be slipped out again to make way for another. For striking background for a studio bed, two strips of the most attractive designs, as wide as the bed.

Without the framing, the bright covers can be mounted on composition board that's thick enough to set them out from the wall, and hung like pictures. Or a door can be decorated all over with either the large or the smaller size album covers. Make a composition of the covers to suit the space.

MRS. A. D. "To make it look like a picture window, we ran a valance across an entire wall where there are two ordinary-size windows and three strips of wall, narrow strips toward the corners and a wider one in the center. Could crisscross curtains be used, or what else would you suggest?"

Straight hanging curtains, on a traverse rod rigged to open in two places over the window glass, will do most to create the picture window effect. Curtains could be crossed over in the two places over the glass and hang straight on the wall, but a sheer fabric wouldn't hide the wall well enough. If you want all the light possible, the straight hang all the way is the better idea because more glass is uncovered when the curtains are open.

Find out what's wrong with the room before you change it. Check it over with the help of Elizabeth Hillier's booklet "What's Wrong With That Room?" Send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please with your booklet request addressed to Miss Hillier at the Post-Dispatch.

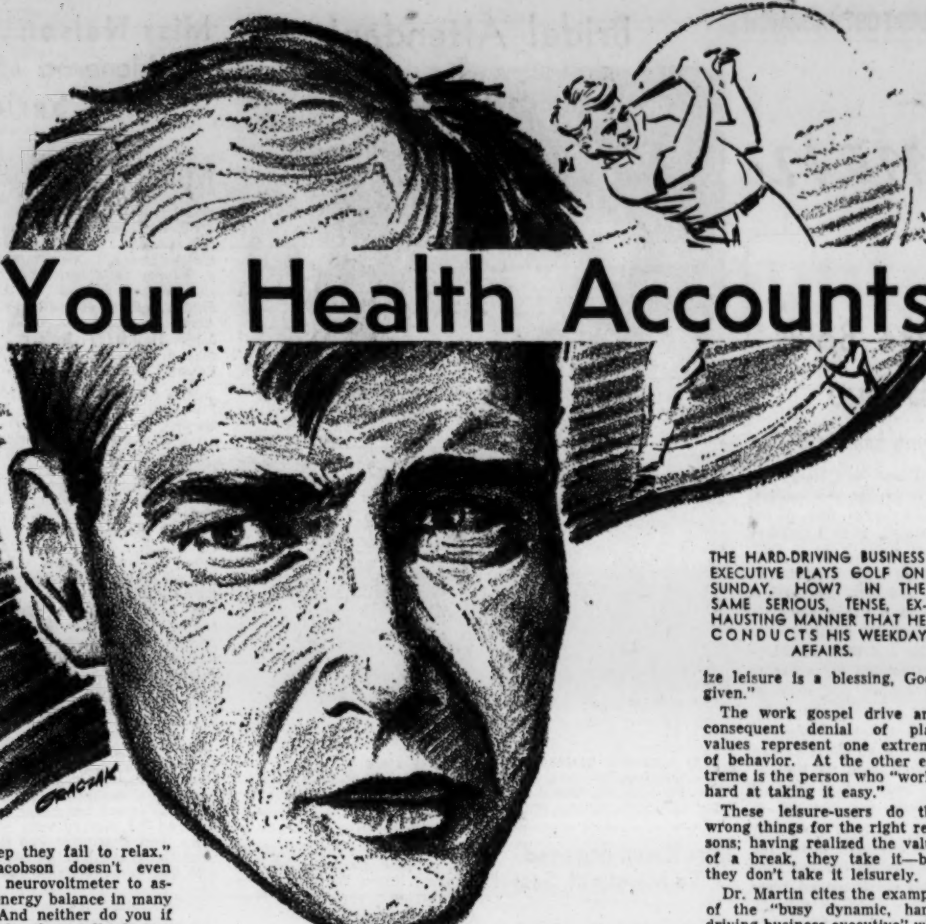

Bold Stripes
Bold stripes and coin dots are co-ordinated in striking play clothes this summer. A typical costume made in St. Louis consists of a sleeveless blouse of a drip-dry cotton with dark-colored dots on a white background. Tapered pants cut in the Italian style are made of sailcloth in widely striped pattern. A contrasting cummerbund completes a gay ensemble.

greater purchasing power you would think we would have less nervous tensions. Yet, in our emerging 'leisure state' you find people complaining of jitters, insomnia and the shakes."

The newest evidence these doubters cite is the estimated $100,000,000-a-year sales of tranquilizing drugs, so-called mood or "peace of mind" pills. These still experimental chemical compounds have been used since 1953 largely in mental institutions to make patients more receptive to therapy. Some of the warmest proponents stress these pills are tools for therapy and not the answer to mental illness.

Today, so-called normal neurotics from New York to Hollywood are popping "peace of mind" pills in their mouths. The exact physiological mechanism of these pills is still being charted. Some are depressants or blocking agents, setting up roadblocks on the nerve pathways or in the brain or hypothalamus. Others are muscle-relaxants.

The effect of the former was once summed up by a patient: "I still have my worries but I don't worry about my worries."

In a similar vein, there is talk of designing "peace of mind rooms" for business and industry. These would be models of "relaxing" color, furniture, lighting, carpeting, music and temperature designed to soothe the harried person.

Why all these peace of mind pills and rooms? Why do we need to help people to relax—can't it "come naturally?"

The answer to these questions—and to whether leisure is a burden or a blessing—comes ize leisure is a blessing, God-given."

THE HARD-DRIVING BUSINESS EXECUTIVE PLAYS GOLF ON SUNDAY. HOW? IN THE SAME SERIOUS, TENSE, EXHAUSTING MANNER THAT HE CONDUCTS HIS WEEKDAY AFFAIRS.

The work gospel drive and consequent denial of play values represent one extreme of behavior. At the other extreme is the person who "works hard at taking it easy."

These leisure-users do the wrong things for the right reasons; having realized the value of a break, they take it—but they don't take it leisurely.

Dr. Martin cites the example of the "busy dynamic, hard-driving business executive" who plays golf on Sunday. And how does he play it? In the same serious, tense, driving, exhausting manner he conducts his weekday affairs.

In short, Dr. Martin urges: "Play leisurely, not compulsively."

In this context, the words of the late philosopher Irwin Edman can be quoted. Edman, deploring the "tendency to crowd any number of accomplishments into already-crowded days" said:

"Instead of trying deliberately and systematically to fill every moment with some clearly fruitful activity, (let's) rediscover reverie and fantasy."

Words, Wit And Wisdom

By William Morris

Absquatulate.
My granddaddy was quite a salty old character," writes a reader. "The stories he used to tell about clearing the bad men out of the frontier towns of the early West make the adventures of such cream-puff cowboys as Roy Rogers and Gene Autry look tame, indeed. The story of his I remember best was climaxed by the abrupt departure of a pair of card-sharpping gamblers and wound up: 'You can bet those fellows absquatulated in a hurry.'"

"I've often wondered just where he got this wonderful word 'absquatulate.' It's not in my dictionary. Do you suppose he invented it?"

No, your grandfather did not invent "absquatulate" (pronounced ab-SKWOT-yoo-layt). It is one of a number of elaborate slang terms popular midway through the nineteenth century. It was fabricated, in imitation of a Latin compound verb, of "ab" and "squat"—and means the opposite of "squat," that is, to depart in a hurry, especially in a secretive fashion. The "ulate" ending is tacked on only to make the word sound more impressive.

In keeping with the more formal nature of society in the days of a century ago, even slang had a tendency to be more elegant and elaborate than the monosyllabic expletives of today's popular jargon. In your grandfather's day, as we have seen, the sharper "absquatulated." Today they would simply "scram!"

Are you unsure of some of the words and phrases you hear or read? For answers to your questions about correct expression write to William Morris, "Conversation Clinic," in care of the Post-Dispatch.

Cleaning Advice

Wicker and real furniture can be cleaned with warm soapy water and a brush. After you've done the scrubbing, hose the piece down to remove all traces of the soapy water and allow to dry. When the piece is bone dry, coat with shellac. By the way, the sharper any type of furniture made with reeds will tighten up the reeds and it won't harm them.

Debutantes Make Bows At Country Barbecue

By Marilee Chadeayne Martin

MISS SUSAN CABANNE PRIEST and Miss Mary Jane Macdonald made their debuts last night at a country party at the home of Mrs. Priest's mother, Mrs. Alfred Bowditch Hallowell, and Mr. Hallowell, 9743 Litzinger road, Ladue. Miss Macdonald is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Macdonald, 6 Lenox place.

About 150 guests—debutantes and their escorts—were invited for a barbecue supper and dancing. After greeting the debutantes and the hosts and hostesses on the screened porch leading off the living room, they walked through the garden to reach the party area near the barn. A straw-colored tent was stretched above the dance floor which was surrounded by tables covered with red checkered cloths and lighted with old fashioned kerosene lanterns. At the girls' places were toy farm animals, while places for the men were designated by straw field hats and cornucop pipes.

The buffet table was decorated with a long basket of white daisies and hurricane lamps holding white candles. Nearby an iron cauldron, filled with steaming ears of corn, was suspended over an open fire. The bar, set up in the barn, was decorated with paintings of chickens and dancing pigs. Scarecrows, placed at intervals about the grounds, provided a rustic touch.

Miss Priest wore a white batiste dress sprigged with tiny pink rosebuds and Miss Macdonald was in a pale blue printed cotton frock trimmed with small white velvet bows on the skirt. Both debutantes held armfuls of white daisies. Among the guests was Miss Priest's cousin, Miss Mary Lucas McNamara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. McNamara of Albany, N.Y., former St. Louisans.

Miss Priest, whose father is H. Samuel Priest, is a granddaughter of Mrs. George T. Priest, for whom she is named, and the late Mr. Priest, and of Mrs. John Bull and the late Mr. Bull. A graduate of Mary Institute, she has recently completed her sophomore year at Vassar College.

Miss Macdonald was introduced to her mother's friends at a tea last September at St. Louis Woman's Club. An alumna of Mary Institute, she was graduated this month from Brandford (Mass.) Junior College and will attend Washington University in the fall.

Earlier in the evening many of the guests attended a garden cocktail supper given by Mr. and Mrs. John G. Cella, 8 Upper Ladue road, for three other debutantes, Miss Mary Koehler Vollmer, Miss Alice Hager and Miss Susan Moss.

The buffet table arranged in the upper formal garden, was decorated with red carnations. During the party a mambo band played in the boxwood garden which overlooks the lower formal garden where guests were seated at small tables, centered with hurricane lamps. The 160 guests included the respective parents of the honorees, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Koehler Vollmer, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Hager and Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Moss.

A luncheon today was given at the University Club in honor of Miss Macdonald. Hostesses were Mrs. James T. Brownlee, Mrs. Howard F. Park Jr. and Mrs. Harry R. Bartell. Twenty-two young women were present: Miss Myrtle Boehmer, Miss Barbara Burton, Miss Anne Collins, Miss Carolyn Cone, Miss Diana Depping, Miss Betsy Holmes, Miss Sandra Humphreys, Miss Talbot Leland, Miss Mary Virginia Nelson, Miss Barbara Nixon, Miss Judy Olin, Miss Priest, Miss Natalie Reeve, Miss Judith Settler, Miss Mareth Sandrock, Miss Susan Spehrer, Miss Nancy Vogel, Miss Molly Goodson, Miss Barbara Schlueter, Miss Joan DeWitt, and Mrs. Brownlee's daughters, Miss Kathryn and Miss Judith Brownlee.

Sisters to Make Debuts Tonight.

THE only pair of debutante sisters, Miss Beverly Ann and Miss Barbara Chrisler Zeuschel, daughters of Mrs. Richard P. Sheeran, 4914 Argyle place, will make their bows tonight at a summer dance at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Taylor Gamblin (Katherine Hoffmann), 5257 Lindell boulevard.

A series of spotlights in trees and high on the house will illuminate the brick terrace at the side and broad lawn at the back where supper tables, covered in varying pastel-toned cloths—yellow, pink, blue and green—and centered with lighted lamps surrounded by spring flowers, will be scattered around an outdoor dance floor. A canvas backdrop with greenery screens the garage before which an orchestra will play.

Guests, mostly debutantes and their escorts, will be received after 9 o'clock before a huckleberry bank at the living room fireplace. The honorees will be dressed alike in white Irish linen, princess styled and ballerina length. The tight bodices, with tiny shoulder straps, feature panels of Viennese lace which deepen into the bouffant skirts. They will carry white lace baskets of spring flowers.

At midnight supper will be served from a candle-light buffet table decorated with bowls of assorted summer blossoms. Breakfast is to be served in the early hours of the morning. In the event of rain the party will move indoors, where the living room, library and dining room have been carpeted in white and more bowls of flowers will lend color to the background.

Miss Beverly and Miss Barbara attended Villa Duchesne and are graduates of the Academy of the Sacred Heart. Miss Beverly attended St. John's Hospital School of Nursing for a year. Her sister will be a sophomore at St. Louis University in the fall. They and their younger sister, Miss Brooke Zeuschel, are granddaughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Perry Chrisler and the late Mr. and Mrs. John Zeuschel.

Mrs. William Lyle Blanchard (Amy Robsart Dudley) departed last Friday for her home in New York after spending two weeks as the guest of her mother, Mrs. Clifton Rogers Dudley, 370 Walton avenue. Mrs. Blanchard was accompanied here by her husband, who returned to New York after a week's stay.

The marriage of Miss Nancy Nightingale to Andrew A. High Jr. will take place the afternoon of July 21 instead of June 21 as erroneously reported in the Post-Dispatch. The ceremony is scheduled at Euclid Avenue Methodist Church, Toledo, O. Miss Nightingale is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Nightingale of Toledo; Mr. High's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew A. High, live at 17 South Maple avenue, Webster Groves.

She is a member of several honorary societies, Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman women's scholastic; Mortar Board, senior women's; Kappa Delta Pi, education, and Phi Beta Kappa, scholastic. She also received sophomore honors. Miss Rosen has one sister, Mrs. Jack Edelman of Alton.

Mr. Sessel, an alumnus of Washington University School of Business and Public Administration, class of 1931, served two years with the Army Intelligence. He is the brother of Mrs. John Mueller of Toledo, O.

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Nuell, who recently moved from Ladue road to 6226 Northwood avenue, with their two sons, Eugene Sanford and Robert Alan Nuell, are motoring in New England. The Nuells drove East with Robert, who was graduated this month from Country Day School, to see Eugene's commencement at the Wharton School of Finance, University of Pennsylvania.

Miss Nelson Is Honored at Party Series

MISS ELIZABETH NELSON and Eugene James Savard, who are to be married Saturday morning, June 30, are being entertained at numerous parties. The bride-elect will be honored this evening at a supper and miscellaneous shower to be given by Miss Judith Sullivan at her home, 78 Aberdeen place, and tomorrow Miss Katherine Homer will give a luncheon at Glen Echo Country Club.

Miss Ann Mueller, Miss Mary Elizabeth Maloney and Miss Harriet Switzer will be hostesses at a cocktail supper next Monday at Missouri Athletic Club. A spinster dinner at Le Chateau will be given June 27 by Miss Maureen Dempsey and the following night Mr. Savard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene O. Savard, 7113 Whitworth drive, Affton, will give the rehearsal dinner at Missouri Athletic Club.

A large party, a Mexican fiesta, was given by seven friends of the engaged pair Saturday night at Hillcrest, the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Brangle in Jeddburgh, Mo. Those giving the party were the Brangles' son, Mr. and Mrs. J. Brangle Jr.; Miss Anita Piccione and her brother, Nicholas Piccione; Frank Haus, Bernard Schweiss, Warren Brown and Henry Auffenberg. Sharing honors with Miss Nelson and Mr. Savard were Miss Mary Ann Heitmeier and Bernard Callaghan MacDonald Jr., who are to be married Saturday.

Others who have given parties for Miss Nelson are: Mrs. Leo J. Dougherty, an aunt of the prospective bridegroom; Jerome Leber and John J. Steuby; Mrs. Edward Desmond; Mrs. William Farley; Mrs. Harry Cramer and Mrs. Hazel Carter Leahy, and Mrs. Leo A. Carosella.

Miss Nelson, who is the daughter of Mrs. Arthur E. Nelson, 7316 Pershing avenue, University City, and the late Mr. Nelson, and Mr. Savard will be married at Our Lady of Lourdes Church at 11 o'clock. Afterward Mrs. Nelson will give a breakfast for the wedding party and the families at the Congress Hotel.

Mr. Savard will be attended by Robert E. Hannegan Jr., as best man. Ushers will be Mr. Leber, William C. Sullivan, Donald F. Burnes, John A. Gunn Jr., Frank E. Retkowski, Edward P. Gormley Jr., Frederick James McKenna II and Mr. Steuby. Miss Nelson's attendants have been previously announced.

Pre-Wedding Parties For Marilyn Aff

MISS MARILYN AFF, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Aff, 1 Denny lane, Huntleigh Village, is being honored at a series of parties before her marriage June 30 to Walter George Ersellus. Saturday Mrs. William Reiser was hostess at the Castlereagh Tearoom at a luncheon for the bridesmaids and that evening Mrs. Walter Creely gave a cocktail party. Sunday the prospective bride's aunts, Mrs. Edwin Elmer and Miss Frieda Aff, gave a kitchen shower and tea. On June 24 Mrs. Clarence Wamser will be hostess at a barbecue and bar party shower. Mrs. Vernon Wilke, sister of Mr. Ersellus, has planned the spinster dinner on June 26. The rehearsal dinner is to be given June 29 by the prospective bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E.

Ersellus, 4960 Loughborough avenue, at Le Chateau and later Mrs. Richard Kiohr, aunt of Miss Aff, will be hostess at a party.

Parties already given include a luncheon and shower given by Mrs. Edward Rose; a shower with Mrs. George Campbell and Miss Harriet Neunist as hostesses and a similar party given by five aunts of the bridegroom-elect, Mrs. Karl Witbrodt, Mrs. Elmer Laudel, Mrs. Herman Moellenhoff, Mrs. Herbert Moellenhoff and Mrs. Martin Moellenhoff. A week ago Mrs. Lee Bierk was hostess at a crystal shower and tea.

Mrs. George Stemmler, 4541 Maryland avenue, and her daughter, Mrs. Boyce Welles Meyer, are in New York, visiting Mrs. Stemmler's sister, Mrs. John Lange. They will attend the wedding of Mrs. Lange's daughter, Miss Hope, to Donald Murray. Mrs. Lange is the former Minette Buddecke of St. Louis. The bride-elect has appeared on the Kraft Playhouse and Matinee television shows. Donald Murray is Marilyn Monroe's leading man in her latest film, "Bus Stop." He and his bride will stop in St. Louis on their way back to Hollywood.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Viviano, 1176 Center drive, Richmond Heights, accompanied by their son, Thomas Michael Viviano, and daughter, Miss Patricia Ann Viviano, have departed for three months in Europe. The travelers sailed aboard the Saturnia. After visiting relatives in Palermo, Sicily, the Vivianos will motor through Italy, France, Switzerland and Germany.

Martha Carr's

Dear Martha:

I AM writing to you with tears in my eyes. I have been married for some time. We have four beautiful children. My husband will never take us out. All he does is think of himself. He has two full wardrobes of clothes. He must be ashamed of having a family as he would rather go out by himself. He never takes an interest in the children. All he does is whip them for no reason. I keep our home clean and attractive. He is very domineering, making a nervous wreck of all of us. When the children are near him they bite their nails. Please help me.

BROKEN-HEARTED MOTHER.

Must you stand by and watch the children beaten and abused? Discipline need not—should not—be centered in only one parent and you owe it to them, as well as to the harmony of the household and to your own peace of mind, to step in and protect them from needlessly harsh treatment. I would say it's high time you spoke up for yourself, too. Why permit him to dominate the household? Don't let him take away your self-respect. Unless you do something immediately to stop him, he will only get worse, so gather up your courage and take the first step. If you feel you can't do it alone—and I wouldn't blame you for that—seek professional counseling. A family agency will stand by you as you seek to make your home something better than a place of fear and tears.

Dear Martha:

I HOPE YOU CAN STRAIGHTEN OUT a matter for us. My daughter is to be married in mid-summer and has asked two of her best friends to serve as her attendants. She found some pretty dresses in a downtown store which she thought would look well on these girls and suggested they go to look at them. One girl just didn't like them at all and said she would rather not be in the wedding if she had to wear it. She also made some remark about my daughter's spending so much on it. Isn't it customary for the bride attendant to buy her own dress, and what can we do about this other matter, the particular costume? It is pink and this girl says she never wears that color. My daughter doesn't want to use any other shade in the wedding costumes.

MOTHER.

Yes, the attendant does buy her own costume, and naturally, the thoughtful bride tries to find something which will not only look lovely in the wedding reception but will be a practical addition to her friend's wardrobe. It would have been better, of course, for her to make that clear at first with some such remark as, "I chose this particular dress because it isn't too expensive and I didn't want my wedding to be a financial hardship on anyone." But now the air must be cleared in some way. The bride has the right to select her own color scheme and if she would not be happy with any other shade and if the girl continues to refuse, perhaps it would be better to let her withdraw rather than cause an awkward situation. The other bridesmaid can get it across to her that she is supposed to buy her own dress.

Dear Martha:

I READ WITH INTEREST the letter from "Neighbor" with reference to the difficulty of obtaining the return of things lent to someone else. I find the simplest answer is this: If you do not want to refuse point blank, don't lend things you wouldn't give away. Then if your "friend" does not return the object in due time, you have lost nothing but the friend, who, incidentally, wasn't the friend he or she appeared to be.

B.A.B.

Preserve the fragrance of summer roses in a rose jar. Martha Carr's directions will tell you how to prepare one. Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Good Advice

By Ruth Millett

THIS letter is reprinted for the benefit of women who think it is impossible to get along with one daughter-in-law. It is written by a woman who is mother-in-law to six young wives and loves them all.

RUTH MILLETT when I am invited.

"I am a widow without income and my daughters-in-law seem as ready to help me as are my sons. They also teach their children to love me. So I think mothers-in-law and daughters-in-law can learn to love each other and help each other if they really want to."

Any mother-in-law who is finding it difficult to get along with a daughter-in-law ought to learn a lot from this letter.

For it makes several good points:

Treat your daughter-in-law as though she were your own daughter. Go easy on advice. Don't smother your daughter-in-law with help, but be ready to lend a hand when your help is asked for.

Keep busy with your own life. Give your daughter-in-law all the privacy she wants and needs, visiting her on invitation only.

Give her full credit for everything she does for you. And most important of all desire with all your heart to get along with your daughter-in-law.

You've got to really want her love in order to be able to win it. You don't really want her love if you are critical of her, if you look for hurts, or if you resent her being the center of your son's life.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

THE mother of a young boy writes me: "Our 13-year-old son would like very much to give a party in our finished basement for his young friends. We are, of course, delighted to let him have this party. However, the question in my mind is this: Is it necessary for either my husband or me to stay down there with them the entire evening to chaperon the party? I think one of us should stay with them, but my husband thinks this will put a damper on their good time. Will you please give us your opinion?"

I agree with your husband. Unless you have some reason for going down, such as taking them refreshments, it would be very mistrusting not to leave them to themselves. However, at least one of you should be home within call for as long as the party lasts.

Hollywood Notes

Three-Sided Television Deal

By Sheila Graham

HOLLYWOOD.

BUD ABBOTT and Lou Costello, on their "Dance With Me Henry" set, revealed there's a television deal cooking for them with Kate Smith, the gal who discovered them and put them on her radio show back in the '30s. The TV-er would be a situation comedy, in which Kate would play Lou's wife, and Bud would be her lazy, good-for-nothing brother. I'm laughing already.

Claudette Colbert, following her success with "Janus" on Broadway, is due in town and she's making no secret that she'd love to do a picture—if the right one is offered.

The Hakim brothers, for whom Anthony Quinn is making "Notre Dame de Paris" with Gina Lollobrigida, want him to stay on for another Victor Hugo story, "The Man Who Laughed."

DIRECTOR BLAKE EDWARDS, on the "Mister Cory" set, has been hypnotizing Kathy Grant's stand-in. . . . But Kathy would much rather he'd hypnotize Bing Crosby into a marriage frame of mind. She sees no one else.

Fran Bennett, 21-year-old beauty in "Giant," is really Fran Benedum, and her folks are San Antonio oilmen—oh, so rich! Incidentally, I hear Elizabeth Taylor gives the best performance of her career in the three-hour-27-minute movie of the Ferber epic. . . . Pat Medina, Richard Greene's ex, has a small bundle invested in the Broadway smash, "Most Happy Fella."

ELIZABETH TAYLOR . . . HER BEST PERFORMANCE.

AUDREY HEPBURN can't drive a car, so her studio ferries her back and forth from the set. I'm looking forward to seeing Audrey dance with Fred Astaire atop the Eiffel Tower in Paris.

Walter Slezak's idea of keeping up with the Joneses: "Spending money you don't have for the things you don't need, to impress people you don't like." How true.

and Mrs. Mulligan and seemed impressed. Their grandfather went back to reading the paper, rather pleased with his inventiveness and the success of his lesson. All it takes, he probably thought, is a little psychology. Anyone can handle children if he knows how.

A few minutes later, he glanced up. There was Patrick, marching toward him, proudly waving the biggest bloom of all. With a triumphant smile, he announced:

"Mrs. Mulligan won't do any more laughing around here."

Little Woman

Children and Flowers

By Clarissa Start

"CHILDREN and flowers just don't go together," some parents will tell you, while semi-apologizing for a back yard that consists of a sand box out of bounds, and islands of bare ground surrounded by crab grass.

I question this. I've seen many homes which have children and pretty yards and aren't finicky touch-me-not yards either. Most children can be trained to appreciate flowers and shrubs and even help care for them. The best flower waterer we have is a five-year-old not our own but a neighbor's. He can tell you which flowers need a fine spray and which ones not so fine and I've instructed him about roses and mildew. He's a most welcome guest.

MANY YEARS AGO I was impressed by the evidence of a child's respect for flowers. My doctor's wife and I were going to the Jewel Box to see the chrysanthemums and we had their three-year-old daughter along. (She graduated from grade school this year and where does the time fly anyway?) I was openly skeptical about taking a toddler to a flower exhibit but her mother insisted Jennifer knew all about flowers. And sure enough, instead of picking flowers, Jennifer put both hands behind her back and sniffed daintily at each blossom.

Taking this as my example, I began early with our boy and while he turned out to be no dainty sniffer of blooms, he never picks, pulls, or destroys flowers, and has absorbed quite a little knowledge about gardening. I'm always appalled when I see children who should know better, picking flowers without permission, or—worse still—pulling them up by the roots, or much worse—walking through them.

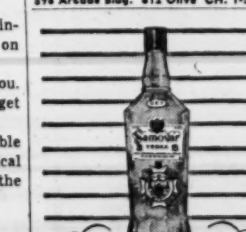

ALL OF WHICH does not prevent me from appreciating the following story. While I disapprove heartily of the conduct involved, the anecdote has a certain malevolent charm.

A man I know tells how his grandchildren, age two and three, Michael and Patrick by name, came to visit while his prize peonies were in bloom. When the children picked several of them, he explained that the flowers were not to be picked but admired as they were. And to put over his point, he made up a charming bit of whimsy.

"See these flowers," he said. "They're all alive just like you are and enjoying life. But when you pick them, they die. Now isn't it nicer to see them living? Look, there's Mrs. Murphy waving."

My Day

Delightful Visitor at Hyde Park

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, N.Y.

THE meeting of the African groups at New York's International House on Friday morning seemed to be very successful and those participating told me they all enjoyed hearing Chester Bowles the day before. Their motto is "Unity in the Family of Man," and I was particularly impressed by the type of questions asked me.

We Americans have much to learn about other peoples of the world, and I think we know less about those on the African continent than anywhere else. It is impressive and encouraging to find so many of their students over here and able to compete on a high intellectual level with our own, in spite of differences in their educational backgrounds.

THE YOUNG WOMAN who came for me was from South Africa and had been in this country for two years. No one could have asked for a more charming, gracious and poised person, and her introduction of me as the speaker of the morning was beautifully done.

As I left International House, I drove straight to Hyde Park where everything is now lush and green, perhaps even more beautiful for the slowness of spring.

At tea time, Abdul Shihi from Morocco came with his daughter, who is studying in this country and will return to her homeland next fall. Several other persons were with them and all spent a little time with me before going over to the Memorial Library to lay a wreath on my husband's grave.

nese professor, in this country on the cultural exchange program sponsored by Columbia University, came with his interpreter for dinner and to spend the night.

We found him an altogether delightful person and only wished he could have stayed longer.

Dr. Yasaka Takagi persuaded Dr. Hasegawa to come for the visit, and the latter has the same gentle philosophy and charming approach to life which endears Dr. Takagi himself to everyone.

The interpreter who came with him from Japan was taken ill Sunday. He is 30 years younger than Dr. Hasegawa, and the professor twinkled when he mentioned this difference in age.

Dr. Hasegawa has a delightful sense of humor and was particularly pleased to see my youngest granddaughter, Joan, at breakfast.

There's only one Debbie Reynolds

Her unique personality is a "special formula" that defines successful imitation. It's her own secret. A secret, too, is the unique flavor appeal of Hollywood Special Formula Bread. An artful blend of 8 kinds of flour and 8 water-free vegetables, this famous loaf has a "personality" all its own. Try one luxurious loaf—and you'll agree there is only one Hollywood Special Formula Bread.

Secrets of Charm Slim Waistline

THE new short jackets and beltless waistlines certainly make big demands for the tiniest of waists. The very place where any extra ounce of weight is most likely to settle, fashion spotlights your costume's center of interest.

A special routine of exercise is required if your waistline must be diminished, but there's a lot that can be done, too, during the course of an ordinary day.

YOU'LL SEE a big difference if you make a point never to slump down into your waist when you sit and always pull your rib cage out of your hips when you stand or walk. And if you stretch all you can as you do household chores.

A long reach to a high shelf is as beneficial as a short exercise down on the floor—don't miss a chance to get all the pull you can out of it. After sitting a while, rise to your full height, stand with your feet together and reach for the ceiling with one hand until you feel the pull at your waist, then try to out-reach this hand with the other.

A ROUTINE to accomplish far more result starts with this one: Lie on your back on the floor with both legs out straight. Bend your arms so your head rests on your hands. Bend your right knee until it almost touches your chest. Twisting your waistline, try to touch your right knee to the floor on your left side without raising your shoulders off the floor. Relax to the starting point. Then, raise the right knee again and with the same kind of twist, try to touch it to the floor on your right side. Relax before you give your left leg a similar workout. Repeat 10 times with each leg and gradually increase to 20 times daily.

With more years of research... more study and experimentation... more major contributions to dental hygiene during the past 79 years than any other company in the world, COLGATE—WORLD LEADER IN TOOTHPASTES—NOW ANNOUNCES

COLGATE BRISK* FLUORIDE TOOTHPASTE

Contains the ONLY FLUORIDE proved in 10 years of clinical tests

HARDENS TOOTH ENAMEL, MAKES TEETH STRONGER

starts working instantly

TO DEFEAT DECAY

Scientists proved this Fluoride and Brisk's Fluoride is the only Fluoride proved in 10 year clinical tests... the same fluoride now being used successfully in water supplies... the same dentists use successfully to reduce decay. That's why this same fluoride, so widely approved by medical, dental and governmental authority, is now in Brisk.

Benefits both adults and children

Brisk's Fluoride/85, Colgate's exclusive new formula, helps protect all permanent teeth whether in adults or children over six. Brisk's Fluoride is instantly released... works on contact as you brush your teeth... strengthens tooth enamel as no other decay-preventive ever could.

Works even while you eat, drink or sleep

because Brisk's Fluoride/85 not only gives you wonder-working Fluoride to strengthen tooth enamel, but provides a second, tested decay-fighter that starts working instantly... keeps working all day against the formation of decay-acids. Unless you get Brisk, you cannot get the benefits of Fluoride/85.

Only BRISK has FLUORIDE/85, gives extra protection Fluoride alone can't give... works best where you need it most Brisk's Fluoride actually concentrates in weak or "soft" spots where decay usually starts—combines with tooth enamel, becomes part of the tooth itself—thus protects as no other decay-fighter can. And Brisk's new, stay-active decay-fighter reaches into tight crevices between teeth—into food-traps where decay acids form—starts working instantly to defeat a major cause of decay.

WONDERFUL FLAVOR!

Helps keep breath fresh all day!
And there's no "tinny" aftertaste with new Brisk! Your mouth tastes sparkling cool and sweet!
Brings out all the natural whiteness of teeth!

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

YESTERDAY we spoke about the huge eggs of ostriches. These are the largest eggs being laid nowadays, but there were larger ones in certain nests several centuries ago.

A few weeks ago I spoke about the moas of New Zealand. Those remarkable birds laid eggs which were much larger than ostrich eggs.

FOR A TIME it was supposed that moa eggs were the largest ever laid by birds. Then a bird expert told the Paris Academy of Sciences about a remarkable bird which had lived on Madagascar. He gave it a scientific name which meant "bird as big as a mountain," but the present popular name is "elephant bird."

The professor had two huge eggshells to display. These had been taken to market in Madagascar by men who wanted to have them, filled with rum. Someone was smart enough to buy the shells from the natives and send them to Paris for study. Each egg held two gallons of water.

Interest in the gigantic birds which laid the eggs became widespread. Stories of rocs were recalled. Marco Polo and others had spoken of mighty birds which could carry heavy objects.

SCIENTISTS went to Madagascar. They failed to find any living elephant birds, but they discovered skeletons and many additional eggs. The remains were studied with care.

Judging by the skeletons, the elephant bird grew to a height of about nine feet. It was less tall than some of the moas of New Zealand, but elephant birds had heavier bones and laid larger eggs than any moa. The weight of a good-sized elephant bird is estimated to have been half a ton. When fresh, a single egg contained the same amount of material as 20 dozen hen's eggs.
